P R E F A C E.

The bulk of the text from which the following translation was made is printed in the volume entitled Three Irish Glossaries, pp. 1—45, from a MS. in the library of the Royal Irish Academy which I call Codex A. The Additional Articles, now for the first time published, are printed from a transcript made by me some seven years ago from the Yellow Book of Lecan, a manuscript in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, containing the copy of Cormac's Glossary which I call Codex B.

The translation now printed was made by O'Donovan many years before his death, and appears never to have been revised by him after he had acquired the wide and accurate knowledge of the ancient Irish language which he possessed when I enjoyed the privilege of knowing and learning from him. This being so, I have thought it my duty to endeavour to print his version in such form as it would have assumed had he lived to publish it. But wherever I have ventured to make any change substantially affecting the meaning, O'Donovan's words have been given either in the text or a foot-note.

The transcript of O'Donovan's version, sent out for the purpose of the present publication, contained a large body of notes, philological, topographical, and historical. These required much sifting and abbreviation. But nothing, I think, of importance has been omitted. O'Donovan's notes are signed thus:—‘O'D’. Those by the Editor are marked ‘Ed.’ Passages and words inserted in O'Donovan's text and notes are inclosed in square brackets. Attention is requested to the Corrigenda.

A D D E N D A.

P. 5, ANART. As to tig anail cf. infra p. 155 s. v. Sethor, 'unde est isin tris tig anail M.'

P. 12, note (b) But see infra p. 61.

P. 15, AMOR. The Skr. ambhas 'water,' ambhri-na 'watervessel' may be connected.

P. 15, AUCHAIDE: ἀκούω is possibly cognate.

P. 17, BUANANN. buan may be = Faunus, Umbr. foni.

P. 23, BIND. Add pindarus is in Isidorus pandurus, πανδοῦρα, a three-stringed musical instrument.

P. 25, BE NET, see Pictet, Revue archéologique, Juillet, 1868.

P. 30, CREUIMTHEER. The Old Welsh premter seems borrowed, like the Cornish prounder, prónter 'priest', from praebendarius.

P. 32, CROICENN. Add croc, crac, W. crach 'puny' may be connected with O.Lat. cracentes graciles, Skr. kriṣṇa.

P. 33, COAIRT. I would now refer urtica to an Italo-celtic root URT 'to burn,' whence the Irish ort i. losgádh (gloss by Mac Firbis in H. 2. 15, p. 181), and possibly the man's name Ultán.

P. 36, CRONTSAILLE. The t in cron-t-shaile (literally 'horn-spittle,' W. corn-boer) is inserted between n and the aspirated s (pronounced h) of saile just as in the German deren-t-halben, dessen-t-halben a t is inserted between n and h. So rigen-t-shaile 'tough spittle,' lán-t-shásad 'full satisfaction,' infra p. 77 s. v. Fled, mín-t-shuilech (gl. lucus), aon-t-shlige 'one road,' aon-t-shuil 'one eye,' O'Don. Gr. 372, aon-t-shuim 'grand total.' So after feminine ā-stems governing the genitive, in ben t-shirg 'the woman of sickness,' Senchas Mór, p. 140, and after the preposition cen now gan: cen t-shuile 'without eyes,' infra p. 58, s. v. Dall: gan t-shliocht 'without issue,' gan t-shult 'without cheerfulness,' Keating cited by O'Don. Gr. 393.

P. 45, CULLACH. Add from caull 'a testicle,' W. caill. The Skr. kola 'hog,' with which M. Pictet compares cullach, has only one l. I suspect that the Celtic words are connected with Lat. callu-m, callu-s.

P. 46, CA. The Old Irish cae 'house' is from the root xvi, Skr. çī, whence keiμai, qui-es and Goth. hai-ms, Eng. home. The Low Latin cayum 'house' is probably from an Old-Celtic caion, of which the dat. or abl. sg. caio occurs in Endlicher's glossary, Revue archéologique, Mai 1868.

P. 54, line 4. In dé-dól 'twi-light' the dól (root du 'to burn') is identical with the Laccanian δαβελός (from δαβελός) i. e. δαλός 'torch.'

P. 72, note (b) add If initial p has been lost, we may compare πέρκος, περκνός 'dusky,' the Skr. prīṇi 'variegated,' 'spotted,' which is used especially of cows, and the Latin spurcus.

P. 74, note (d) add 'But see mur i. imat infra p. 116. s. v. Mér.

P. 76, FEERN. I now think this word must be an old preterite participle passive in -na (like lá-n 'ple-nus,' dá-n 'dō-num') from the root VAR 'to choose,' Skr. vri. The fern 'mau' cited from Duīl Laithne, where the nom. dual ferno in the phrase da-(f)h erno-er-ciach 'twelve men,' lit. 'two men on ten,' also occurs, may be for fersn*, versno*, root VARS, whence Skr. vrishni 'ram', vrisha 'bull'.

P. 78, note (e) add 'But cf. scindo i. dluge nech infra p. 154.'

P. 86, line 5, etarlam is glossed in H. 2. 16, col. 108, by lamdae dogni an goba cein mbis iarnd i tinid 'lamdae (?) which the smith makes while (the) iron is in (the) fire.'

P. 86, GAET: add gart 'hospitality' is probably cognate with Latin grātus, Skr. gūrti.

P. 89, GUTH, add Probably Gu, Skr. gu 'to sound,' Gr. yoáw.

P. 92, IARN. The forms iart, iarth remind one of the Old Breton hoiart in Run-hoiart, also Run-hoarn. The Old-Celtic probably had the form isarto as well as isarno.

P. 97, IMBABACH: imba ['in quo erit'] jubar.

P. 104, LESC: add 'lose' is cognate with λοξός, luxus.

P. 110, line 2 add Skr. mā.

P. 111, MUG-ÉIME, line 7. Dinn Tradui would in Old Welsh be Din Tri-dui. "Dwy is an appellative for several rivers, as Dwy fawr ['Big Dwy'] and Dwy Fach ['Little Dwy'] in Arfon." Pugh.

P. 117, MOLT: sult 'fat' may be cognate with stultus, stolidus, Skr. sthūla 'bulky,' 'fat,' sthūlatā 'bulkiness.'

P. 117, MÁSS, add = μαστός 'breast,' 'udder,' 'knoll.'

P. 117, MENDAT. The root is MAND, whence Skr. mandirā 'house,' mandurā 'stable,' Gr. μάνερα 'stall,' with which M. Pictet (Origg. Indo-européennes, II. 19), puts the Ir. manrach 'sheepfold.'

P. 117, NENAID. Add as to which see Pictet's Origg. Indo-européennes, I. 323.

P. 132, OSSAR might just as well be equated with ὑστερός.

P. 132, OSNAD is for sonad*, svanātu* = M. Bret. huanat 'a sigh', root SVAN 'to sound,' Skr. svana, Lat. sonus.

P. 144, ROP (from rup-vo-s*?) I would put with rup in Latin ru-m-po, rup-tu-s = Skr. lup-ta. From the root RUP or LUP come Zend raopi 'a kind of dog,' Skr. lopāka 'jackal,' Gr. ά-λύπης 'fox,' Lat. lupus 'wolf,' and (with the common change of p to c) the Irish luch 'mouse.'

P. 164, UR, line 2, after dicitur insert [isna brethaib nemed 'in the Bretha Nemed,' F].

P. 165, UIM, add but cf. Gr. όμφη.

FURTHER CORRIGENDA.

P. 8, AITHECH: delete the reference to Skr. atiyaças. For patika (which occurs in compound adjectives for pati, πότις, Goth. fath-s) is more likely the Skr. cognate.

P. 11, A, line 5, for 'It will come' read 'I will bring (it)': cf. toi 'bring thou' infra s. v. Lethech. Line 14, omit 'but this seems wrong.'

P. 24, line 3, for bratan read bratán: and cf. nocabiat brattána isind abaind-sin, Trip. B. 166, col. 2 ('there will not be salmons in that river').

P. 31, CERBSIRE, for 'is a v' read 'is not a v'

P. 35, CANÓIN, for 'It also meant' etc., read "The acc. dual of a cognate n-stem meaning canonicus is found on the Aran inscription," &c.

P. 59, DUILLE, line 6, for atchiu 'I see' read áiliu 'I pray,' and note that gaibiu, guidiu and ibiu are originally á-stems, as appears from the 3d sg. pres. indic. gaib, guid and ib.

P. 68, ÉC, line 3, for angew read angeu

P. 75, note (c), for sassud read sassad

P. 100, note (a), for is read id

P. 104, LOS CUIRN, line 3, for llos read llost

P. 110, n. (d), for quacz read quaez

P. 117, MAOTHAL, for leth read leth

P. 145, REE, line 3, for 'Hard' read 'Here (comes).' O'D is clearly right: windsi (spelt undseo in O'Curry's Lectures, pp. 490, 507) is a pronominal adverb meaning 'here.' O'Davoren's anssa is a blunder for annso, andso 'here'.

P. 149, SEGAMLAE. Here again O'D is right: messtar bú 'cows are estimated'—the passive here as occasionally taking the accusative (bú=βοῦς)

P. 160, note (b) line 2, for ermaissin read ermaissiu

FURTHER ADDENDA.

P. 2, AMOS: The gloss in Leabhar Breacc cited by O'D seems nanamus (gl. satilitum) quoted in Lib. Hymn. ed. Todd, 232.

P. 5, ANAET: the gen. pl. occurs twice in the Tripartite Life: "1. clocc 7 1. cailech naltóre 7 1. anart faraccaibh hi tir condacht ('50 bells and 50 altar-chalices and 50 linen cloths he left them in the land of the Connughtmen') Eg. 9. a. 2. na cailecha oc denum nananart altóra ('the nuns making the altar-cloths') i. Cochmaiss 7 Tigris 7 Lupait 7 Darercæ, ib. 17. b. 1.

P. 8, AITHECH. The gen. sg. masc. is aithig, fem. aithige: luighe in aithigh thighe 7 na haithaighe thighe ('the oath of the man of the house and of the woman of the house'), O'Davoren 51. Hence aithechus i. laochdacht 'heroism' ib. 49.

AITHCHES: the suffix ess also occurs in manchess, Trip. B. 173.

AIGEAN: isand ocián n-imechtrach 'into the external ocean' H. 2. 16. c. 391.

AITTENN, gen. s. atinn, Senchas Mór, 166.

AIRNDEL: an gach tigradh forrethar airndil nach suidi(g)thi anmann in eiggil (in every place in which a trap is set animals are not to be put in danger) O'Dav. 82, éccell.

P. 13, AISLINGE: is andsin diu roindis boethíne in aislinge n-aurdairc i. e. teora cathaire do aicsin do hi nim i. e. cathair óir 7 cathair argait 7 cathair gloine ('so then B. related the remarkable vision, i. e. three cities which he saw in heaven, i. e. a city of gold and a city of silver and a city of glass'), Note on Félide, June 10.

P. 14, ALCHUNG. The dat. sg. spelt ealchaing is in O'Curry's Lectures, 512.

AINCES: as tré erchaoidedh foillsighter aincesa am betha (it is through definition are cleared up the doubts of the world), O'Dav. 83.

ABRAS: intabras dungní incorp do dia (the work which the body does for God), Milan 36 r.

ANNACH: O. Ir. andach, dat. anduch, Goidilica, p. 26.

P. 15, AUCHAIDE is an emphatic form of the 2d. sg. imperative, and should have been rendered 'hear thou.'

P. 16, AÍ: tomus n-ae 'measure of pleadings', Senchas Mór, 18. lecem ae n-aicitail O'Dav. 47, 'let us leave a pleading (or case) of commentary' (i. e. requiring comment).

P. 18, BACHALL a fem. á-stem: gen. sg. inna bachla, O'Curry, Lect. 538, dat. bachaill Trip. Eg. 13 a. 2.

P. 20, BIALL, gen. sg. béla, Senchas Mór, 166, 170.

P. 30, CROSS: dobrí cros ditsailiu forochtar dochinn (put a cross of thy saliva on top of thy head) Z. 926.

P. 31, CREATRA: bert benén cretra di ó patrice ('B. took the consecrated elements to her from P.') et surrexit confessim viva, Trip. Eg. 16. a. 1.

CERBSIRE: a cirpsere i. e. a scoaire, Trip. Eg. 18. b. 2. cirbsire, O'Clery's Glossary.

COIC. Athgein bothi domnaig a choice, Trip. Eg. 18. b. 2.

P. 32, CROICENN, n. pl. crocni loeg nallaid ('hides of wild calves'). Note, Félide, March 5.

CAISEL: a fine example (with ss) is found on the Termon-fechin (co. Louth) inscription discovered in 1867 by George Du Noyer:—Oroit do ultan et do dubthach dorigni in caissel (pray ye for U. and for D. who made the caissel).

P. 36, CEL. A similar phrase gar cian co tigfa ('a short time till he shall come') occurs in a note to the Félide, Nov. 25, cf. batax for phoesamaib cen moir (leg. céin móir) timchell herenn 'they were safe for a long time all round Ireland', Longes mac n'Usnig. O'D is right in his rendering of gar cian co tis. His quotation from Horace should be cancelled.

P. 38, line 4: notesctha a folt 7 a ingne cecha dardain chaplaite cecha bliadna cohaimsir adomnain ('his hair and his nails used to be cut every Maunday Thursday every year till the time of A.'), Note to Félide, Nov. 24.

P. 39, CULIAN, nom. pl. dall-chuilein 'blind puppies', O'Dav. p. 51, araicht. Corn. coloin.

CEL 'death' O'Davoren has cil i. e. bas ('death') and quotes cotarla'c faolb fir cil (so that he made a truly deadly shot).

P. 42, CUMAL, gen. sg. cumaille, Senchas Mór, 162.

P. 44, CENDAIS. O'Davoren has ceannas i. srian (= frenum), and cites each gach eamhain ina cain cendas coir (a horse of each pair in his fine proper bridle).

P. 45, CULLACH: cf. echcullach (stallion), muccullach (boar). Senchas Mór, 126.

P. 47, CAM: midhach teora cam (a champion of three fights), i. téarna ó tri cama (he escaped from three fights) O'Davoren, 47.

CUACH NAIDM: mer fo cuachnaidm (finger under axe) occurs in O'Davoren, p. 64 s. v. cliath.

P. 48, CACAIT. See note on Féilire, Sep. 9, and O'Clery's Glossary s. v. Cogaidh.

P. 54, DRAC, W. dreic. DROICHEAT: drochet bethad ('bridge of life') Sanctain's h. 4. gen. sg. droichitt, Senchas Mór, 124.

P. 56, DEACH: cf. alt 7 dialt 7 recomarc a comreim, is and is comrag mbairne, O'Dav. 65.

P. 59, DRUTH: ise aithni in druth in corrcrechda dobeithe ina édan (this is the means of recognizing the fool, the corrcrechda 'lump' to be in his forehead) O'Davoren, 69.

P. 60, DERNA: gen. dernann, acc. pl. dolluid a ful triana (n) dernanda ('their blood went through their palms') Trip. Eg. 15. a. 1.

P. 63, As to the story of Macha, see O'Curry, Lectures, 527.

P. 64, EMDHE, an emphatic 2d. sg. imperative like achaide supra.

P. 67, ÉGEM: arégi (gl. queritur), airégem (gl. querimonia).

P. 68, ELUD: elud bathis ('deserting baptism'), Sench. Mór, 8. elud dligid, ib. 256, eluthach, elodach, ib. 112, 50.

P. 71, FÍN: gen. sg. fíne, fíno, fína.

P. 72, FIR. The story called Táin teora nerc Eodach (O'Curry, Lectures, 584) seems to relate to these cows.

P. 73, FESCOR: gen. sg. inhuaire (f^h) escur, Trip. Eg. 7. 6. 1.

P. 76, FRAIG: acc. sg. diles don coin tria fraigidh no for dorns acht ni de-esistar (lawful for the dog to go through a roof or by a door, provided that he do not cut) O'Davoren, 81, eeses.

P. 82, GAIMRED. In déccaib ('mortuus est'), which O'D renders 'to death (has he gone)' I see a b-preterite, like rosellaib 'vidisti' (Féilire, July 4), anaib 'mansit', O'Dav. 56, brigtaib 'dennunciat', ib. 52, 60, bruchtaib 'eructavit', ib. 58, and feraib 'fecit'. Seirglige Conc.

P. 83, note (e) Add 'the badgers went (forth): then C. killed a hundred of them and shewed them at the feast'. Omit [leg. do-das-aspen?]

P. 84, GIABUR: O'Davoren 62 has ciabar i. salach no merdreich ('filthy or harlot').

P. 89, GOLLTRAIGI. In a quatrain cited in a note on the Féilire, June 23, adband seems to mean a strain of music: Rochachain do mochoe chain Inténán dona nemdaib Tri hadbaind do barr inchreind Cóica bliadan cech adboind ('sang to fair Mochoe the little bird from the heavens three strains (?) from the tree's top, fifty years at each strain').

INSAMAIN. O'Davoren, 81, explains esomain by obann no lasamain (sudden or flamby).

P. 96, ITHE. O'D is right, ithe occurs as a verbal noun, Senchas Mór, 238, and in the notes to the Féilire, Jan. 16, June 21: we also find com-ithi (gl. commessions) and ithemair (gl. voraces).

P. 100, LUDA. Cancel the first half of the note. The Old Irish form is lutu, an n-stem, of which the dat. sg. lutain occurs in the St. Gall incantation, Z. 926, the acc. sg. ludain in a note to the Féilire, Feb. 7.

P. 101, LIAE, gen. liacc, dat. liicc, acc. liicc-n, a dissyllabic masc. stem in nc (whence lecán gl. lapillus) has been confounded with the monosyllabic fem. ā-stem lecc, gen. leicce, dat. leicc ('a flagstone'), which is = Lat. planca, W. llech f. 'a flat stone.'

CORMAC'S GLOSSARY

Incipit.

PRIMA LITTERA.

ADAM i.e. homo vel terrigena [i. on talmuidecht 'from the earthiness' vel truneus i. tamhan B].

ADOMNÁN [Adamnan B] i.e. homunculus.

A proper name—O'D. : a dimin. of the name Adam (disbegad anma Adaim, B): doubtful whether a double dimin. (-án+án) or a compound with nán 'little' (a) = Lat. nânus, cf. perhaps the names Lomnanus, Lib. Arm. 16^a 2, and Sesnanus, ibid. 9^b 1, Flaithnán, gen. Flaithnáin—Chron. Scot. 274, Lachtnán, gen. Lacht-náin, ib. 304, LONGECNAN.—Ed.

ARD 'high or height', ab arduo [i. onni is ard i. collis i. cnoc B].

Cognate with Lat. arduus and Zend eredhva.—Ed.

ADRÁD 'adoration', ab adoratione [i. on edurguidhe B].

M. Bret. azeuliff, W. addoli.—Ed.

ASGALT 'dearth', i.e. eis-geilt 'grasslessness', or as-colt 'foodlessness': [colt biad B].

This is ascalt in B and Chron. Scot. 214. As to the neg. prefix es- (Gaulish ex-, W. eh-), see Zeuss, 831. With geilt cf. oc geilt 'grazing' infra s. v. Serrach and gelid 'depascitur' Z. 432, Skr. girāmi, gilāmi deglutio. As to colt = $\pi\acute{o}\lambda\tau\omega\varsigma$ see Three Ir. Glossaries XXIX.—Ed.

ASGLAND or ASGLANG 'a load on the shoulder' [?], i.e. huas-glaind 'over the shoulder'. Gland or glang i.e. a shoulder.

The meaning given by O'D. to asgland is a guess. Can as be O.Lat. ossum, Zend ačta, Skr. asthi, Greek ἴστεον?—Ed.

ÁRAD 'a ladder', i.e. rith 'running', or riád 'going'; against á 'a hill'. A i.e. everything high or everything noble: i.e. á 'high'.

Aradh i. dréimire 'ladder' O'Clery.—O'D. n. pl. ar it árid dogairter, ut dicitur scale vel caeli sunt sancti. Amra Col., Lebar na huidre.—Ed.

ADALTRACH 'adulterous', i.e. ab adulterio [i. on adaltras B].

ADALTAIR 'adulterer', ab adultero.

ACAIIS 'because', i.e. a causa [i. on chuis B].

W. o achos, where achos, achaus seems = Lat. occāsio.—Ed.

(a) Nan i. bec ('little') ut dicitur nanus i. abac ('dwarf') no lucharban ('pigmy', leprechaun), H. 2, 16, col. 120.

ALTROM 'nurture', id est ab eo quod est alo. [i.e. on brethir is alo ailim ata B].

B has Altram, which is explained 'nutritio', Z. 733, 743; gen. altrama.—Ed.

AICHER 'sharp', ab eo quod est accr i.e. fierce, or sharp, or strong.

Acher, Z. 928; W. egr, 'sharp' Br. égras 'verjuice'. Cognate with, but not borrowed from, acer with its long penult.—Ed.

AMOS i.e. am-fhos or an-fos, he who has no rest, but who moves from place to place.

B. adds i.o. tigerna dialailiu 'from (one) lord to another'.—Ed. The meaning is that this word is compounded with am negative, and fos rest. The Four Masters use the word, spelt amhas, to signify a hireling soldier. In the Leabhar Breac it translates the word satellites. It is now used in Munster to denote a hound or beagle.—O'D. From amos comes the diminutive amsán, of which the nom. pl. amsáin occurs, Fél. Prol. 152. I have also met amsaine and amsach—see Diarmusach, infra.—Ed.

AR ['work of the plough'], ab eo quod est aro 'I plough'.

ANNE [Ainne B] 'a circle', veteres [i.e. na sendaine B] enim ponebant an pro circo, unde dicitur annus [i.e. bliadain i.e. fa cuairt bis an bliadain B].

AIRCHES 'a trap or enclosure' i.e. ab arceo [i.e. on cumgach, B], i.e. because of its holding (a) whatsoever is put down (b) into it.

'A trap for catching wild hogs', H. 3, 18, p. 541.—O'D.

ANDSEIRG [Anserg B] 'greatly shrunk or wasted', i.e. difficult or painful is his state.

O'D.'s explanation of andseirg or anserg seems a guess. B. adds, no a ferg no a nasa.—Ed.

AIRGET 'silver' quasi airgent i.e. ab argento.

This is a genuine Celtic word: cf. Argento-ratum, Argento-magus, and the rivername Argenteus: M. Bret. argant, Corn. arghans, arhans, W. ariant.—Ed.

ARCO FUIN DOM DIA, i.e. I pray, i.e. postulo veniam a deo vel gratias ago, vel I ask forgiveness a Deo post peccatum. Aliter arco [fuin] ab arceo finem Deo, i.e. I command my end to God; quamvis primo peccavi, I ask, i.e. pardon from my God; arceo i.e. I bind.

The commencement of this article is translated from B—A being here corrupt. The glossographer's double explanation of fuin, from venia and from finis, shows that he really knew nothing about its meaning. O'D. cites a verse from Lebar na h-uidre, fo. 77, ascribed to Art Aenfhir [A. D. 220] son of Conn of the 100 Battles, in which the word occurs:

Arco fuin dom rig, ferr máin ná each máin:

Mó chorpa útag in úaig, cona chloich chruaid cáin.

"I ask death (?) of my king, a treasure better than every treasure, My body perfect in a tomb, with its hard, fair stone".

Fuin also occurs infra, s.v. Fair, where it is clearly the opposite of 'sunrise'. Connected with fuin are fuined in the phrases fuined gréine 'sunset', Z. 432, 6 thurgabáil gréine

(a) Better 'because that it compresses'. B. has i. iarsinni doimarg inni teit ind.—Ed.

(b) A. has focherd, read fochertar; O'D. 'driven'.

co suined (which reminds one of Skr. avanati) and the Old Welsh plural funid (gl. obitus i. occassus) Juvencus, p. 10. Fuin is probably borrowed from Lat. funus 'burial', 'death'. The verb arcō 'I ask' (cf. W. arc 'a request', Lat. arc-esso, Skr. rch), is a good example of the old 1 pers. sg. pres. indic. act. in -u (-o), of which several examples are given in the Beitraqe zur vergl. sprachf. III. 47, 48.—Ed.

ASTOL 'spear', i.e. ab hastula, i.e. a lance or a long spear.

B has Asskul, and adds no assu-de a dul. Astal amra uas duillind i. slissiu amra H. 2. 16. col. 90. Astal i.e. slis no ga leabhair, O'Clery.—Ed.

ASCAID [Ascath B] i.e. 'a hero', unde asgaete [ascata B], i.e. heroie or ehampionlike, from the terribleness of the hero, like a shade or like a phantom.

Ascada (gl. emuli) Milan, ascadaib (gl. aemulisi), Z. 1064, seem to belong to this. So also aissecht 'contention', which Ebel (Beitr. V. 13) brings from aith-sech—root SAK 'to follow' (sequi).—Ed.

AN or AM, a Gaelic negative: as there is nath 'science', and annath 'ignorance'; em 'swift', and aneim 'slow'; nert 'strength', and amnert 'weakness'.

An is the Skr. an- a-, Gr. άν-, Lat. in-, Goth. un-. It occurs in several Old Celtic names: as An-drastē, An-calites, An-valonnácos, An-darta. The other particle am- (see Amos, supra), was identified by Siegfried with Skr. sāmi 'half', ṣam, sēmi—see Zeuss G.C. 829—and the Vedic nēma 'half' with Ir. nem- 'non'.—Ed.

ADAMRA 'admirable', ab admiratione [i.e. on ingantos B].

Hence adamrugur 'admiror', Z. 444.—Ed.

AURDAM 'an addition to a house' i.e. aur-doim, i.e. aur-tegdais 'attached house' i.e. side-house.

B. explains aurtegdais by fri tegdais anechtair 'against a house on the outside'. See the Four Masters A. D. 1070, where we read that the Gospel of Columcille was stolen from the western erdom of the church of Kells.—O'D. Aurdam seems = a Greek παράδομας.—Ed.

ALMSAN 'alms', quasi elimsan ab eleemosyna. Or quasi almusson (?) for high (a) is the voice of charity.

The son in almusson seems = Lat. sonus, Z. 969.—Ed.

ART, three things it means (b). Art, i.e. 'noble', unde dicitur fine airt or art fine 'a noble tribe'. Art, i.e. 'god', unde dicitur Eochaid find fuath n-airt i.e. 'Eochaid the Fair with the form of a god', i.e. from the comeliness of that man. Item Cúchulainn post mortem dixisse perhibetur domcmaid art uasal 'a noble art, i.e. a noble god, was put to death'. Art i.e. a stone or a grave-flag, cuius diminutivum artéine i.e. a small stone, unde vel inde dixit Guaire Aidne:—

|-------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| Dochélit [doehélit] | They will hide, [they will hide] |
| mór n-amra ind artéini | Mueh of marvel, the little stones (c) |
| béte for lige Mareáin | That will be on the grave of Marcán |
| maie Aeda maic Mareéini. | Son of Aed, son of Mareéine. |

(a) 'loud' O'D.

(b) 'are called' O'D.

(c) 'The little stone will conceal great nobility' O'D.

Eochaid find fuath n-airt was son of Feidlimid Rechtmar and uncle of Art Aenfhir, King of Ireland, A. D. 220. The allusion to Cuchulainn is from a legend that that hero, who was slain A. D. 2, appeared to his friends after his death, and told them 'romenad art uasal', meaning himself. This legend will be found in the Book of Leinster (H. 2,18) fol. 78b. Guaire Aidne, king of Connaught, died A. D. 662. The lines above quoted probably relate to Marcán, Chief of Hy-Many, slain A. D. 650.—O'D. As to art 'god', see Three Ir. Glossaries, XXXIII, and cf. the Old-Welsh name, Art-mail (leg. Arthmail 'dei servus'?). As to art 'a stone', see Three Ir. Glossaries, XXVIII: art and anart are glossed by cruaid 7 maoth, H. 2, 16. col. 88.—Ed.

ARG i.e. three things it means (a) : arg i.e. 'drop', unde dicitur ru-arc i.e. ro-arg i.e. a great drop i.e. a great flowing of wet. Arg secondly, i.e. 'hero', unde dicitur argda i.e. heroic; cuius uxor arggeind [arggen B]. Argeind then (signifies) i.e. it is natural (gein) for an arg 'hero' to be with her, and it is good for him. Vel arg-cuin, i.e. from arg 'hero' and cuiniu 'woman'. Arg, moreover, i.e. 'famous', unde dicitur aircetul i.e. arg-cetul i.e. a poem (cetul) famous (arg) from the frequency with which it is sung in concert (b). It cannot be interpreted a 'poem of heroes' arg, because it is not for heroes tantum, i. e. only, that it is composed.

Arg 'drop' may have lost an initial p, and be radically connected with Lat. spargo and even the name of the Vedic rain-god Parjanya (also a word for 'raincloud'). Arg 'hero' may be the Greek ἀρχός, Skr. arha-s. Arg 'famous', is perhaps only an intensive prefix = ἀρχι—Ed.

ABB 'abbot' ab eo quod est πάππας, vel a nomine hebraico quod est abba 'pater'.

Abb is declined as a t-stem : acc. sg. cell cen abaid, Amra Col., apaid, Senchas Mór, 50, n. pl. seund-apid Z. 274.—Ed.

ATHAIR 'father': hoc ater primitus dicebatur, quasi pater.

ALT ('cliff' or 'height') ab altitudine.

W. allt 'cliff', Corn. als (gl. littus), Bret. aut (gl. ripa).—Ed.

ANA i.e. mater deorum hibernensium (c). It was well she nursed deos i.e. the gods: de cuius nomine dicitur ana i.e. plenty [and the] Da chich Anainne 'Two Paps of Ana' west of Luachair nominantur, ut fabularerunt (d). Vel ana quod est annio vel aniud Graece [?] quod interpretatur 'dapes' [i. biad B].

Ana, or as she is most usually called Danann, was the mother of the three chieftains of the Tuatha dé Danann, Brian, Iuchar, and Iucharbu, who were accounted gods for their feasts of necromancy. The "Two Paps", in the district of Luachair Deaghaidh in the County of Kerry, are two mountains, still so called, in the barony of Magunihy.—O'D. As to ana, God is said to be the well (topur) of the áine in Z.1052 and in Z.1041, (as a gloss on the Epist. ad Coloss. III, 5: avaritiam quae est simulacrorum servitus) am. fongnáiter ídil sic fognáither donaib áníb 'as idols are served, sic is service done to the treasures'. For the connection between words signifying 'god' and 'wealth' cf. Lat.

(a) 'are called' O'D. (b) conchanar 'is recited' O'D.

(c) So in H. 3, 18, p. 635, col. 8: Iath n-ananu i. Eiriu i. Anu mater deorum utgentiles fingunt. The name of Anu re-occurs infra s. v. Buananu.—Ed.

(d) B reads: 'ut fabula fertur i. amail aderait na scelaide' as the story-tellers say'.—Ed.

deus, divus and dives, Ops 'bona dea' and opes, in-ops, Slav. bogū 'god' and bogatū 'rich'. And see Schleicher, Beitr. IV, 359.—Ed.

ANRUTH nomen secundi gradus poetarum.

Re-occurs infra p. 6.—Ed.

AMRATH ('a funeral elegy') i.e. nem-rath 'non-wage' i.e. reward is not given after it, for it is after one's death it is composed. Aliter, there is omus or amos i.e. death, the am then is from amos. Amrath, then, is death-wage i.e. a reward after death, which is given by the family of him for whom it [?] is made (a). Sed hujus postremum non tam laudo [i. ni is firindige 7 ni moluim in dedenac B.]

AED i.e. fire. By inverting the noun aed it becomes dea, i.e. the goddess of fire, et quod Vestam illam deam esse ignis fabulaverunt, Vesta dea ignis dicitur i. e. aed.

Cognate with alθog.—O'D. Also with Lat. aedes, Skr. edhas 'firewood', AS. ād, root ādh. Hence too the Gaulish tribe-name Aedui and in Welsh aidd 'warmth'.

AMNAS 'forgiveness' quasi amnes, ab eo quod est amnestia i.e. all-forgiveness or entire forgiveness.

AURSA [aurso B] 'a post or prop' i.e. airisiu 'rest', because the house rests on it. [In margine] Aursa i.e. or-sin i.e. one edge (or) to house, another to weather (sín = W. hin).

O'D renders "because one (post) is at the east, the other at the weather side of the house".—Ed. Aursa is now written ursa, and understood to mean a prop and the jamb of a door.—O'D. The dative sg.—isín ursain—occurs infra s. v. Nescóit.—Ed.

AITITIU 'recognition' [?] i.e. aith-detiu i.e. detiu iterum, it having been recognised [?] by another person prius.

A law-term denoting legal recognition, as when a son recognises or accepts the liabilities of his father, or when a landlord recognises a covenant made by his vassal or tenant.—O'D. di detiu, di chomdetiu di aititin, Senchas Mór, 64, where it is rendered 'acknowledgment': so atitiu in the Cogad G. r. G. 54: the dat. sg. aititin, Senchas Mór, p. 140, is rendered 'control' [?] while do aititin, ib. p. 142, is rendered 'to be faithful'. The verb ro-aititnigestar 'acknowledged' ib. 156.—Ed.

ANART 'a linen cloth' i.e. in-irt i.e. irt 'death' ut dixit Moran mac Main, as he was in the house in which he was nursed [? tig anail] 'dath don dig irt' 'colour of the drink of irt' i.e. of the drink of death. Anart, then, (signifies) death-like for its paleness: it is like the hue of death, for there is nothing of redness therein, quasi exsanguis mortuus [i. amail nech marsh gan fuli B]

(a) nart gl. linteum occurs in Lib. Arm. 177 b. 1.—Ed. Moran, son of Moen, was chief judge to king Feradach Finnfechtnach in the first century. See Four Masters, A. D. 14.—O'D.

AUDACHT 'a dying testament' i.e. uath-fecht i.e. when one sets out on a journey (fecht) of (the) grave (uath), i.e. of death.

Occurs, spelt edoc and aidacht, in Lib. Arm. 18 b. 1.—Ed.

(a) A adds lógairecht furri which O'D. renders by 'loud lamentation for it'. Read lógmáirecht furri?—Ed.

ANOMAIN i.e. a name of a poetical composition, i.e. án-shomáin 'noble profit'. (i.e. a name of the compositions from their profits), i.e. because of the greatness of its reward and its rank; and it is the poem of the Ollam, unde dicitur 'the anomain sustains the ollam'.

Text somewhat doubtful. B has inloing ollam anamain 'the ollam sustains the anamain': cf. anamain cetharreich infra, s. v. Bót.—Ed.

ANRUTH nomen secundi gradus poetarum i.e. the rich stream—sruth—of beautiful praise (which flows) from him with the stream of treasures —áne—(which flows) to him in return.

The ánruth's number of stories was 175, Senchas Mór, p. 44. After the synod of Druim Ceta his retinue was reduced to twelve (xii. i cléir ind áraid).—Ed.

ANAIR i.e. name of a poetical composition: it is the poem which the clé makes i.e. an-áir not satire (áir) but it is praise. Though this is now (applied) similarly to every kind of eulogy (a) it is more appropriate to the present species, for it is the ingenuity of the poets that invented these names to distinguish the various species, and it was not (the) subject matter (b) that was considered by them.—B inserts another etymology: Anair dono for reith in ree-so .i. aon a hiar .i. an aen tarmforteend a forcend ocus is debricht a deach 7 a tarmforteendaib 7 eitsechtaib deochraigies fria nath debrichta. 'Anair runs in this manner quasi aon a hiar 'its end is one', i.e. the termination at the end (of each line) is a monosyllable; and its metre is debricht, and (it is) by its terminations and jingles that it is distinguished from the nath debrichta'.

The examples of the metre called anair which are given in the Book of Ballymote, fol. 162, represent it as composed in lines of six syllables, whereas the examples of debricht are in lines of eight syllables. So that the assertion, that the metre of anair is debricht, seems to be a mistake, arising, perhaps, from an error of transcription.—O'D. Pictet, Nouvel Essai sur les inscriptions gauloises, p. 79, connects with anair the Gaulish name Anare-viseos, which he proposes to explain by 'carminum laudis gnarus'.—Ed.

ANFOBRACHT, the name for a man who is in a decline, and whom disease reduces, so that there is no fat nor juice in him, for the noun bracht signifies fat.

So in Senchas móir, pp. 124, 140, di ambobracht .i. in ben t-sírg cin súg nirt 'the woman in a decline without juice of strength'—Ed. So, too, in O'Clery's Glossary and the Four Masters, A. D. 1114.—O'D. A has Anforbracht.—Ed.

ADART 'a pillow' quasi ad-irt, a property (adae) of death (irt), for sleep is accounted as death, and irt is a name for death, and death is a name for the sleep. It is natural to lie upon a pillow, and it is a sign of sleep, unde dicitur descайд chodulta freslige 'lying down is sleep's leaven' (c). (Aliter) Adart i.c. ath-ard 're-height' (d) because it is higher than the rest of the bed.

Adhart is still used in Kilkeeney and Waterford for 'pillow' and ceann adhaint for 'head of the bed'. Bás fri h-adhart or bás le adhart is used by Keating to

(a) 'laudatory poem'.—O'D. (b) lit 'nature'.—Ed. (c) 'beginning'.—O'D.
(d) 'additional elevation'.—O'L.

denote death on one's bed. Eirgis an ríg dia adhart fri maeth-eirgi na gréine glan-aille: robdar daime ag eirgi an aenacht dia n-adartaib 'the king rose (a) from his pillow at the soft rising of the bright-fair sun : men were at the same time rising from their pillows'. Book of Fermoy, fol. 52.—O'D.

AIRE 'the temple' [?] i.e. of the head, i.e. ar-áui (b) because it grows in front of the ear. Aire also is a name for everything high.

B has Ara i. ar áui i. fria ó anair. Are i. re uachtarach in duine ('the upper part of a man') A cech n-ardd 7 hí cech n-isel 'A (means) everything high and I everything low'.—O'D. Aire occurs in the acc. dual in the S. Gall incantation, Z. 926: dabir im du dá are 'put them round thy two aires' : O'D's explanation 'temple' seems a guess. Can it be the cheek and (as Siegfried thought) connected with παρεία? The áui explained by ó (i.e. cluas 'ear') is = Lith. ausis, the Latin auris.—Ed.

AITHLE 'an old cloak' [?] i. ath-fholae i.e. it is worse than a cloak (folae).

B has: is mesae cid indas folae.—Ed. aithle i. seanbhrat 'old garment' O'Clery.—O'D. But cf. aithle thened, infra s. v. Aithinne, and the adverbial phrases as a aithle sin 'thereafter', Senchas Mór, p. 302, and do aithle.—Ed.

AXAL or AXAIL 'the proper name of an angel', ab auxilio quod angeli hominibus praebent.

B. adds: on shurtacht dobeirsum do chach 'from the aid which he gives to every one'.—Ed. O'Donnell, Vit. Columbae i. 35, tells us that this was the name of S. Columbkille's guardian angel.—O'D.

ARATHAR 'plough' ab arato.

B adds: on trebad 'from the ploughing'. Arathair the gen. sg. occurs infra s. v. Clithar sét. Corn. adarar, W. aradr, M. Bret. arazr (leg. arazr?).—Ed. The word for 'plough' now used is céchta—arathar is everywhere forgotten.—O'D.

ÁNA i.e. small vessels which were at the wells under the strict laws, unde dicitur damaid [daimid B] ána for lindib 'they assign vessels to pools' (c); and it is of silver that they used to be oftenest; ut Mac dá Cherda dixit on Cnoc Rafann :

This great rath whereon I am (d)
Wherein is a little well with a bright cup (án),
Sweet was the voice of the wood of blackbirds,
Round the rath of Fiacha son of Moinche.

Now, for the drinking of weary men thereout they were left over them, at the wells, and it was by kings they were put at them (in order) to test their laws.

Mac dá cherda ['son of two arts'], called also Comgan, was a saint and poet of the Deses of Munster, of the middle of the 8th century, one of the eight celebrated students of Armagh. Cnoc Rafann is a parish and townland in the barony of Middlethird, County Tipperary, and the rath referred to is still to be seen about 2 miles N. of Cahir. It was the seat of Fiacha Muillethan, son of Eogan Mór, king of Munster A. D. 175, and of Moncha, daughter of Del, son of Dacrega, the Druid; and it remained in the possession of his descendants, the O'Sullivans, until the year 1192, when the English drove them from the plain of Cashel and erected within this rath a strong castle, of which only one small tower now remains. A silver cup lying at a well was a good test of the respect shown to the law if it remained undisturbed.—O'D. An, a fem. ā-stem, has perhaps lost an initial p, and may be connected with the Skr. pānam 'a drinking-vessel'.—Ed.

ATHGABÁIL 'lawful reprisal', because every one recovers (athgaiil) his right through it. Aliter gabáil ('distress') the three cows which Assal first seized from Mog, son of Nuada: Athgabail then [was] the six cows [replevied] on the next day. Lege in the Fenchas Mór.

The passage in the Senchas Mór here referred to is printed at p. 64 of the volume of ancient laws published at Dublin in 1865.—Ed. Assal was the son of Conn of the 100 battles and held office under him as aithechfortha. Mog, son of Nuada, held a similar office under Coirpre, king of Ulster. A case had occurred between the two kings, which led to the seizure by Assal of three cows belonging to the king of Ulster's people. But they having been rescued by Mog (a), Asal seized six cows in reprisal on the following day. These proceedings are here referred to as the first case on record of legal reprisal or athgabáil.—O'D. See further Dr. Ferguson's paper in the Transactions of the R. I. Academy, in which many coincidences between the English and Brehon laws of distress and replevin are pointed out with much ingenuity and learning.—Ed.

AITHECH 'a champion' [?] i.e. aith 'keen' and oech 'foe'. Aithech, then, is a keen foe, and it is a name for a gallant hero only.

AITHCHES i.e. uxor ejus, quomodo láiches a laico [i.e. on tuata B]

Aithech is possibly = Skr. atīyaças 'much-renowned'. In aithches, láiches the feminine termination is borrowed from the Latin -issa, Gr. -ισσα.—Ed. In O'D's supplement to O'Reilly aithech-tighe is explained 'the man or woman of the house'.—Ed.

AUNASC 'earring' i.e. nasc 'ring', aue 'of an ear', i.e. a gold ring which is round the fingers or in the ears of the sons of the nobles.

As to au, gen. aue v. supra s. v. Aire: nasc is cognate with Lat. nexus, necto.—Ed.

AIGEAN 'ocean' i. e. óg-fhaen 'perfectly flat' as if it is spread out.

B. reads aigen, but the W. eigiaun (OW. * eiciaun) seems to show that A is here right. Benfey, I think, has compared a Skr. ā-çayána περι-κείμενος, to which he refers ώκεανός. O'Clery has aighén i.e. fairge 'sea': faen = W. gwaen.—Ed.

AITTENN 'furze' i. e. aith-tenn or aith-tinn, because it is sharp (aith) and lacerating (tenn). Unde dixit Mac Samain [or Maolodrain B]

Not dear (to me is) a sharpshrub
Which is on the side of the hedge.
Its foliage has defeated (?) me for ever (b) :
Its wooden thorns (?) do not defend me.

The bard Mac Samain flourished in the middle of the eighth century, and was one of the eight celebrated students of Armagh. In H. 3, 18, p. 112, he is styled a Brehon, and the verses here cited are alluded to. In B these verses are given thus:—

|------------------------|--|
| Nibu iumain fid fuirme | Not dear was a lowly [?] tree |
| sancan asas im thuirbe | Which here and there grows round Turvey. |
| adom chumbeen a dule | Its leaves tear me : |
| nim anaice a fidrube. | Its wooden thorns do not defend me. |

(a) The cows escaped, and returned to their calves.—Ed.

(b) 'Its foliage for ever shelters me'. O'D. But is not romráin for rom-shráin?

AURDÚINE 'antefort' i.e. at the doors of the forts, which is made by the artizans (a).

Probably a παρατείχισμα.—Ed.

AIRBER 'a load carried in the arms' [?] : to the east (in front) of thee thou bearest it between thy two arms, for to the west of thee thou bearest the loads (aire) in general. Air then is everything eastern, ut est Airmuma 'East-Munster', 'Ormond'. But ir is everything that is furthest from thee, i.e. Irmuma 'West-Munster', the Munster that is furthest from thee, that is Irmuma. Et ut dicitur Ara airthir 'eastern Aran', for there are the three Arans there i.e. Ara airthir 'eastern Aran' is the nearest to Ireland. Ara irthir 'western Aran' is the nearest to the Ocean, i.e. is furthest from Ireland westwards. But this is the most western Ára in the world.

AINE 'name of a place', a nomine Aine, daughter of Eogabail.

This place is a parish in the County Limerick, barony of Small County, now called Knockany, from a conspicuous hill, which was anciently called Druim Chollchoille 'hill of the hazelwood', and was in the ancient territory of Deise beag 'little Decies'. Aine was of the Tuath dé Danann race. See H. 3, 17, p. 781, and the Four Masters, A.D. 186.—O'D.

ABARTA [Abbartu B] 'benediction' i.e. a seventh of the person's food is taken (as a reward for the benediction). This is a lawful abarta 'price of benediction'. It is for his benediction alone that the one gives it to the other, not at all for its peculiar merit, but for his saying to the other 'I say the benediction': ar chobele [?] then is it given.

The word abarta signifies properly the pronouncing of a benediction, from abraim 'I speak or pronounce', and is transferred to denote the complimentary reward given for pronouncing a benediction or the fine imposed for not pronouncing it. In H. 3, 17, p. 408, in a lawtract mentioning the fines payable for neglect of various duties is the following: Im abartain i. im in nemabartain im nembendachad sechtmad biata in graid na derna in bendachad 'For abarta i.e. for the non-abarta i.e. for non-benediction (the fine is) a seventh of the feeding of the person, according to his rank, who did not make the benediction'. It was an ancient custom for workmen on completing any work and delivering it over finished to their employer to give it their blessing. This was the abarta, and if it was omitted, the workman was subject to a fine or loss of a portion of his hire, equal to a seventh part of his feeding or refection—the amount of the refection being settled by the Brehon law in proportion to the rank of the art or trade which he professed. In the same lawtract occurs the following: im abartain mná diaraile sechtmad lániata na mná na derna in bendachad 'for the abarta of one woman to another, the seventh part of the full refection of the woman who did not give the blessing'.—O'D.

AILGES 'a derogatory request' then, i.e. geis a request. It is for disgrace (ail) then only that this request is made and not for praise: the seventh part of the price of honour of him of whom the ailges is asked, this is the lawful ailges.

When a man was requested to perform something impossible, for the purpose of exposing him to ridicule or disgrace, he was entitled by the Breton law to demand a fine or reparation equal to the seventh part of the price fixed by law as the price of his honour [tlog einig (a)], which varied according to his rank or degree.—O'D. Ailgeis is explained by ollegeis 'great prohibition', in O'D's supplement to O'Reilly, where also ailgeis in-dligthech 'an unlawful request' is cited.—Ed.

ATHABAE 'deadly nightshade' (quasi athabath from ath intensive [?] and) bath 'death'.

Occurs infra s.v. Orc trcith. A word tathabha which seems cognate is given in O'D's supplement and rendered by 'white lily root'.—Ed.

AIMINN 'delightful' ab eo quod est amænum [i. aibind B.]

This word is now written aoibhinn.—O'D.

AIRCHINNECH 'an erenach' : ἀρχές Graece excelsus Latine dicitur. Airchinnech then (signifies) 'noble head'.

After 'latine' B has, airchend óg nasal cend comlan 'noble perfect head'. "Colgan's Irish etymology (ar 'over' and ceann 'a head') is no doubt the true one, as is evident from the corresponding Welsh arbennig". Todd, St. Patrick, pp. 162, 163. Airchinnech means 'princeps' in Z. 1046 gl. 14. Nau-eirchinnech means 'nauclerus' in Lib. Armach. 188 b. 2. In Middle Irish airchinnech is glossed by 'archidiaconus' (Ir. Glosses, p. 75, No. 449).—Ed.

AMBUAE i.e. not fundamental (or original) : buae (signifies) everything fundamental (or original).

Buae is doubtless cognate with Skr. bhava 'origo', root bhū.—In O'D's supplement ambuae gen. ambui is glossed by deoraid 'advena' and by drochfer 'a bad man'.—Ed.

ADAE i.e. ad dee 'to God' i.e. due to God.

This word is explained 'glorious' in H. 2. 16 [col. 88] and said to be derived from the Greek : adæ Graece i.e. gloriosus Latine vel adæ ad dee i.e. convenit deo gloria.—O'D.

Ada is explained 'due', 'legally due' in O'D's supplement to O'Reilly.—Ed.

ALTAN 'razor' i.e. ail 'edge' and teinn 'sharp cutting', should it so happen.

Acc. sg. altain, Milan codex: W. ellyn, M. Bret. autenn.—Ed.

ADANN 'a rushlight', i.e. one rushlight, ut poeta

'A rushlight' (adann), a rushlight.
Should it happen in thy bright mansion,
For God's sake light it not quickly
For sake of quick talk that profits not'.

Ut dixit Colmán son of Lénine :

"As blackbirds to swans, an ounce to a mass,
Forms of peasant women to forms of queens,
Kings to Domnall, a murmur to a concert,
An adann to a candle, [so is] a sword to my sword!"

(a) W. enehwerth, O. Bret. enepgwerth. With einech, enep, which primarily mean 'face', cf. Skr. anika Zend ainika.—Ed.

S. Colmáu Mac Lenine was the founder of the see of Cloyne and died 24 Nov. A. D. 604, aged about 80 years. He had been poet to Aed Caem king of Cashel about the middle of the 6th century. The verses here quoted were pronounced by him at the synod of Druim Ceta, according to the Book of Leinster fo. 8, where they are given with an interlineary gloss. By 'my sword' in the last verse, the poet probably means the bardic power of satire which he possessed, and which was more powerful than a sword.—O'D. I find in one of my transcripts from Lebar na h-uidre Colmán's quatrain, with a gloss, as follows:—

Táncatar fásein na filid isin n-airecht 7 dúan molta léo dó 7 aidbsi (i. corus cronain) ainn in chíúil sin 7 ba céol derseraigthech hé ('thereafter came the poets into the assembly and with them a song of praise for him, and aidbsi was the name of that music, and it was a splendid music'), ut Colmán mac Lénéne dixit

Luin oc heolaib ' ningi o[c] dirnaih² crotha ban n-ætbech oc crothaib rígna ríg ic Domnall dord ic aidbsi³ adand oc cainmill⁴ cole⁵ oc mo choilc-se.

7 innóenecht dognitis in ceol-sin, 'and they used to make that music at one time' (i.e. in concert). With adann are connected adannadh 'the candlelighter in a church', O'D.'s supplement to O'Reilly, and adannaim 'I kindle'.—Ed.

A i.e. a wain or a ear or a chariot, ut Fer Muman a quibusdam flebilibus audivit in aquilonali parte [i. mar docualaid fer muman don taoib tuaidhde o dainib truaga a(c) coine B.]

|------------------------|--|
| "Inn éssar dam do á"? | "Is thy car lent to me"? |
| "Tó mani má mo á: | "It will come unless broken (is) my car: |
| Ara taire mo á mo mó". | Let my car come back early". |
| "Mani má do á tó". | "Unless broken (is) thy car it will come". |

O'D. renders this quatrain thus: "Will you lend me your car? I will if you do not break it. Will my car be returned soon? It shall if your car be not broken". But éssar is the third sg. passive of íasaim (a). The second tó is according to O'D. glossed by tiofadh in an extract by Eugene Curry from a ms. belonging to "Wm. Monck Mara Esq.", and by tiofaidh in a ms. of the R. I. Academy No. 169, p. 229. It is the Welsh daw 'veniet'. Ara is the common conjunction Z. 679, which precedes the imperative, Z. 680. In the ms. last cited the first tó is glossed by béarad, but this seems wrong. Mó is = W. moch, which Siegfried equated with Lat. mox. A, for * aga, seems cognate with O. Norse ök vehiculum gen. akar.—Ed.

Fer Muman might be rendered 'Munsterman', but it seems rather to be a proper name, as he is called Fear Mumhan mac Echenach in a ms. quoted by Dr. O'Connor in the Stowe Catalogue, treating of the laws of Cormac mac Airt. In the ms. H. 3, 18, p. 637, two lines of his poetry are quoted to exemplify the meaning of nat [borrowed from Latin natus]: "Nat i. tón, ut dixit Fear Mumhan:—

1. i. deróli na luin i farrad na n-ela 'petty (are) the blackbirds in comparison with the swans'.

2. i. dirna ainn do más moir 'dirna is a name for a great mass'.

3. i. deroil cach céol i farrad aidbse 'petty (is) every music in comparison with aidbsi'.

4. i. deról oenchainnill hec hi farrad cainle moire 'petty (is) one little candle in comparison with a large candle'.

5. i. cláideb 'a sword'.

(a). I have not met this verb, but the verbal noun íasach 'loan' gen. íasachto, íasachta is of common occurrence. Perhaps we should read éssair or tasair and regard it as a 2nd sg. deponential.—Ed.

Fragments of his poetry are given in H. 3, 17. The quatrain above cited is quoted in this ms., p. 662, to prove that mó means moch 'early'—O'D.

AITIRE 'hostage' i.e. between (iter) the two (dé) i.e. between two covenanters.

In Senchas Mór, p. 60, aitire is rendered 'guarantee': at p. 118 it is mis-spelt aitaire and rendered 'hostage'. Aitire cairde, ib. 192, is rendered 'hostage in a territorial matter'. At p. 232 slan n-aitire is glossed by in lanad n-eirci dlighid in t-aitiri i telgud aitiris air 'the full 'eric'-fine to which the hostage is entitled for casting hostagesship upon him'.—Ed.

AINGEL 'angel' ab eo quod est angelus i.e. bonus nuntius i.e. a good messenger, unde Scotti dicunt angel-solas ('angel-bright') i.e. sunny i.e. joyous.

AIGRERE 'a judge' quasi aige réire 'chief of judgment' (riar) i.e. a brehon.

AIGNE 'a pleader' i.e. a man who pleads (aiges) a cause (ái) i.e. eloquent discourse [?] or a covenant.

B has 'fer aiges ái no fer gníes ái 'a man who makes a cause'.—O'D. the brehon or in t-aighne 'the pleader' accompanied a person taking athgabáil or withernam Senchas Mór p. 84. The phrases aigne tagra, aigne toxuil occur ib. 294. As to ai see infra p. 16.—Ed.

AIRNDEL ['a deer-trap'?] i.e. air-indel i.e. a noble setting is it.

O'D. conjectured airndel to be a birdtrap. Eugene Curry told me it was 'a set spear'. Mere guesses. Bir airndil 'the spear (veru) of a trap' is cited by O'D. Suppt. s. v. Bir. In lieu of inideal n-amra hí B has indel aire.—Ed.

AITHINNE [aithenne B], 'fire-brand' i.e. aith-tene or aithle thened 'remnant of fire'.

B adds: no aith-tene i.e. tene aith ('sharp fire') no aith tenna i.e. fuidle [leg. fuigle] na crann ('leavings of trees'): aithinne (gl. torris, gl. fax) Z. 726.—Ed.

APSTOL 'apostle' i.e. ab postulo, i.e. ad dominum postulo i.e. I summon (a).

AINDER i.e. a woman i.e. not a der, not a girl, der enim Graece (b) filia vel virgo vocatur.

Ainder, now ainnear, is still understood to mean a marriageable young woman.—O'D. The W. anner 'heifer' seems cognate.—Ed.

ANIDAN 'impure' [?] i.e. an a negative, idan however i.e. idon ab eo quod est idoneus i.e. faithful.

The nom. pl. m. of idan occurs in Z. 1060: bat idain fri each réit (gl. in omnibus fidem bonam ostendentes) 'let them be faithful in every thing'. Anidan would therefore rather seem to be 'unfaithful'. O'Clery, however, explains it by neamglan.—Ed.

ADBA OTHNOE i.e. adba uath onae or uinde, uath 'clay' aud ond [gen. uinde] 'a stone' i.e. a habitation (adba) of clay and stone, ut dixit (poeta).

Lia ('stone') is he (masculine)—lith rolass—

According to the structures of sages and histories.

Ond ('stone') is it (neuter) according to (the) nature of rock.

The clock ('stone') is she (feminine) iarrastair (?)

(a) tóchuirimm 'I send.'—O'D.

(b) Inserted from B. The alleged word 'dear' 'daughter', which appears in O'Clery and O'Reilly, and has misled Zeuss (G. C. p. 45). Pictet (Origg. II, 353), Max Müller and others, has perhaps originated in this imaginary Greek der.—Ed.

This quotation is evidently taken from some old work on the gender of nouns.—O'D. It must have been written when the existence of three genders (here distinguished by é, st, ed, the Irish pronouns for he, she and it) was recognised in Irish. Compare Demi and Traeth infra. Lith rolass seems one of those chevilles or expletives which unfortunately occur so often in Irish verse. O'D. renders it by 'a fact which is evident'. For iarrastair B has iar saor-dataid, which O'D. renders 'when dressed by art'.—Ed.

AICILLNE 'servitude' i.e. auco gillnae (a) i.e. when the man gave a sét taurclotha to another, i.e. the price of his honour on receiving cows from him, it is meet (auco) for him afterwards to yield servitude (gillne) to that man and to receive cows from him according to the custom of chieftainry. Though he desires to accept cows from another, he cannot, but (must) accept them from the man from whom he gets the sevit taurclotha. Now, although after accepting cows according to the custom of chieftainry from the vassals by the chiefs, there is the name of aigille to the vassals, yet this is improper, proprie autem aigille dicere to the men who receive sevit taurclotha though they do not give a reward for the mutual service of the chieftainry.

O'D. understood this passage thus: "Aigillne is a Brehon law term applied to one who places himself under the protection of another; and it is derived from augo, lawful, meet, or proper, and giallne 'to do homage'. On this occasion the protegee having first received a certain number of séds, or cows, by way of subsidy, or present from the protector, in token of the protector's superiority, pays him a certain tribute called séd taurclotha as the price of his protection. After this the protegee delivers pledges to the protector, and again receives séds from him as from his lord and chieftain. After this ceremony has been gone through, it is not in the protegee's power to take subsidy from any other at any time, except from the person to whom he has thus given the seoda taurclotha. The term aigillne [ms. aigille—Ed.] is sometimes applied to the chieftains [mss. célib 'vassals'.—Ed.] after they have received cows as tribute from the vassals, according to the custom called bés n-airchenda 'custom of chieftainry'. But this is a misnomer, for aigillne [ms. aigille—Ed.] is properly applied to those who give the sevit taurclotha in token of the superiority of the person to whom they are given, though they should not continue to pay the chief for his protection".

The word sét 'cow', which occurs so often in the article just translated and in the Brehon laws, seems to be the Breton saout 'le gros bétail particulièrement les bêtes à cornes'.—Ed.

Suppt.—Ed.

ALCHUNG quasi armchong .i. congbaid arma ('it contains arms').

Alchung was conjectured by O'D to mean 'an armoury', by Curry 'a rack or hook for hanging up arms'.—Ed.

ALLUD .i. nos ('custom') no alad .i. a laude .i. on molad ('from the praise').

This is obscure. O'Clery has alladh .i. oirdhearcas 'fame', 'conspicuousness'.—Ed.

ALAD .i. il a dath .i. imda datha and ('many colours on him'), no alad .i. uile dath .i. fola-dath .i. dath fola fair sech inslán ('colour of blood on him compared with the healthy person').

O'Davoren (Three Ir. Gl. p. 48) glosses alad by exsamail 'various', 'different'. It means also 'speckled', 'parti-coloured'.—Ed.

AICCOCHT .i. icht anaice ('children in nurture') (a) ar is inace bis an deiscipal ac ind aiti ('for it is in nurture (a) that the disciple is with the tutor').

O'D renders aiccicht by 'tutorage'. But it seems another form of aicecht (gl. lectio) 'a lesson': cf. accept 'a lesson' O'Don. Supp., ur-aicecht, and the low-Latin accepturium .i. lectionem, Trans. Philolog. Soc. 1860-61, p. 249.

AINCES ('doubt') quasi ances .i. aiucid a fis ort ('knowledge of it is a protection to thee').

O'D. translates 'a doubt of its knowledge is upon thee'. But aincid clearly means either 'protects' or 'protection': ances occurs in Senchas Mór p. 102 and in the phrase ances athgabála ib. 108. It is glossed by cuntabairt in H. 2. 16, col. 89.

ABRAS [i.] abra .i. inailt ('bondmaid') feis .i. lamtorad ('hand-produce').
Abras din .i. lamtorad inailte ('hand-produce of a bondmaid').

The glossographer means that abras 'yarnspinning' is compounded of the low Latin abra 'ancilla' and the Irish feis, which, with the meaning above given, I have not met elsewhere (b). It probably comes from the root VAX, Skr. vaksh, whence also av̄ξω, and Eng. I wax.—Ed. Ni dón abras an chéadshnáithe is a common saying.—O'D.

ANNACH .i. an-dag non dagh non bonum, dagh hebraicé bonum interpretatur, droch hebraice malum interpretatur unde dicitur drochta .i. olc he ('bad it is') .i. seinlestar ('an old vessel').

(a) 'by him' O'D; but aice is glossed by altrum (O'Dav. p. 53) and by oileamhain (O'Clery).—Ed.

(b) Except in the glossary in H. 2. 16, where I find Abrass hebraic .i. abar fles, Abra .i. inailt ut dicitur in libro mulierum abrae suae arindi foglennt feis lamtornid.—Ed.

In a gloss to the prologue to the Féilire, l. 237 the gen. sg. annaig is glossed by feirge 'of anger'.—Ed.

AMOR ('a trough') i. ime a or ['round it is its edge'] no ampur am ica diultad conach glan acht in inglan ('or am-pur, am for negation (shewing) that it is not clean but it is unclean'). pur i. glan ('clean').

Possibly borrowed from amphora with change of gender and declension.—Ed.

ADNACAL ('sepulchre') i. ad dlidet ('law') 7 cal coimet ('keeping') 7 nai duine ('human being') i. coimet dligthech in duine ('lawful keeping of the human being').

The Old-Irish form is adnacul, Z. 731,992, ad-ra-nact 'who was buried' Lib. Arm.—Ed.
ABALL ('apple-tree') [i. ab] Abellano oppido Campaniae no eba eill i. eillned eba ('pollution of Eve') i. in cetben ('the first woman') no aob oll ar met a toraid ('from the greatness of its fruit'). Ubali ('an apple') eodem modo.

O'D renders aob oll by 'large produce', Curry by 'rich-great'. For cognates to aball and uball see Ebel, Beitr. II. 170.—Ed.

ACH acho [άχεω] graece doleo latine i. galar ('a disease').

Better explained in H. 2. 16. col. 90 by interiecht galair 'an interjection of disease'. Bret. ach fi! W. hach—Ed.

AC ('no') graece nego latine i. diultad ('to deny').

The Greek word in view is οὐκ.—O'D. acc itir 'not at all' O'Don. Gram. 327. acc ol siat, 'no!' say they, ib. 390. "Marbhar fochetóir Nóiise 7 foad in ben letso" ol in rectaire. "Acc" or in rí. "Let Nóiise be slain forthwith and let the woman sleep with thee", says the Steward. "No!" says the King, Longes mac n'Usnig, Book of Leinster.—Ed.

ALCHENG ab alligando i. arma.

This is the same as ailhong already given.—O'D.

AITHRINNE i. rinn aith ('sharp point') i. tenga aith fri hair ('a sharp tongue for satire').

O'Clergy explains aithrinn in the same way.—Ed.

ADNA i. ais quod ad senes pertinent aes illi enim dicunt g. unde aetas latine.

The passage is evidently corrupt.—O'D. In H. 2. 16 col. 88 it runs as follows: Adnai ais i. adsen a i. quod ad senes pertinet. Μεις graece illi enim dicunt eos [έτοει] unde aetas Latine dicitur.—Ed.

AUCHAIDE i. cluinnte ('heard') quasi aure accipe. unde est ni auclar i. ni cluiner ('is not heard').

ANTICHRISTOS, graece quod est latine contrarius Christo, ante [άντη] enim graece contra latine significant.

AIRISTOTILÉS, aris i. artis, tot [ταῖτης] i. hujus [Ms. hs.] tiles [τέλος] i. fines [leg. finis]

[The three next following articles are in B, but have been overlooked by O'Donovan]

ADBERTAIG .i. ab adversario .i. on adbirseoir.

Adbirseoir is now 'the devil'. Adbairt .i. ab adversario, H. 2. 16.—Ed.

ANAM 'soul' ab anima dicitur .i. ona suailchib ('from the virtues').

cf. anam-chara 'teacher', lit. 'soul-friend'.—Ed.

Ao quasi au ab aure .i. on cluais.

Ao (if not the same as au 'ear' in au-nasc supra) seems to be a verb in the 1 sg. prss. indic. from the root av, whence āt̄w, ēt̄-āt̄w and the Latin au-di-o.—Ed.

[O'D. cites the following two articles from Mac Firbis' copy :—]

ACNAMACHT on focal is actualis ('from the word that is actualis') .i. proinn fir obra ('dinner of a workman').

In H. 2, 16 the gloss runs thus: Aicnabsath .i. aicce 7 sath .i. praind fir op̄ra.—Ed.

Ai .i. ebert (a saying') .i. ab aio .i. raidim ('I say').

So in H. 2. 16, col. 88, Ai ab aio .i. dlomaim. Here g has been lost between vowels. The root is AGH, whence Lat. ad-agium, āio, Greek ἀμί for ἀγ-μι, Skr. āha 'he spoke'. See Aignc supra p. 12.—Ed.

SECUNDA LITTERA.

BENDACHT ('a blessing') quasi benedicta a benedictione dicitur.

BUANANN nurse of the heroes, i.e. bé n-Anann (a) from their similarity to each other, for as the Ánu was mother of gods, sic Buanann erat mother of the heroes i.e. a good mother. Aliter Buan-ann [i. daghmatair 'good mother' B.] the buan i.e. is bón i.e. from bonum, as is said genither buan ó ambuan 'buan is born from ambuan' i.e. good from evil. The ann that is in Buanann denotes mater. It is this that is in Ana [Anand B] i.e. mater deorum. Buanann then (means) a good mother for teaching feasts of arms to the heroes.

It is impossible to bring buan 'good' from the Latin bōnum with its short penult. Rather of. W. buan 'swift', which seems the Skr. javana. For the change of meaning from 'swift' to 'good' cf. σπουδαῖος. As to Buanann, I would connect it with the Skr. bhāvana 'auctor', 'creator'.—Ed.

BRAN i.e. a raven, unde dicitur brandae i.e. ravenlike for blackness and destructiveness [?] and brandub i.e. a black raven, unde dicitur branorgain i.e. that which a raven plunders.

B adds: no brand i.e. athinde ['a firebrand', v. supra p. 12] 7 is aranduibe (b) diblinaib. 'and it is because of the blackness of them both'. W. Corn. bran 'crow.' M. Bret. bran (gl. cornix, corvus). Ebel compares Slav. vranj, Lith. várnas (corvus), värna (cornix).—Ed.

BÉIST 'a beast' i.e. a bestia.

M. Ir. péist, W. bwyst. The e in bestia must have been long by nature.—Ed.

BARC ('a barque or boat') i.e. à barca.

Gen. sg. lucht na bairci (leg. bairce) 'crew of the barque', Senchas Mór, 128, dat. bairc infra s.v. Baircne: 'barca, quae cuncta navis commercia ad littus portat' Isid. 19,1,19. Br. bare.—Ed.

BÉS ('a custom') ab eo quod est besus i.e. 'a custom'.

Gen. sg. bésa Z. 1049, n. pl. bési Z. 1049, acc. pl. bésu Z. 1066.

BRETH 'a decision' i.e. a relic (fuigell) for the breth is the relic of some one else, for some one else passed the breth before.

Breth gen. brithe 'judicium' Z. 82. B here has Breth i.e. bret i.e. fudell nach aile in bret ar rosfuc nach aile remand in mbreth. The Gaulish vergo-bretus is of course cognate.—O'D renders fuigell by 'decision'.—Ed.

(a) Bé is glossed by 'ben' or 'mulier', but this can hardly be its meaning here. Besides the transported shows that it is neuter.—Ed. (b) Ms. aranduib.—Ed.

BRÁTH [braath B] 'a judgment' i.e. Welsh, from that which is braut i.e. judex [leg. judicium] for it is with the Judge alone is that Day of the Judgment, i.e. Jesus Christ.

Bráth Z. 20, 1090, gen. bráthha, an u-stem. In Gaulish we seem to have this word in Bratu-spantium 'val du jugement', as Pictet (Nouvel Essai, p. 59) translates it, and in bratu-de 'ex imperio' of the inscription of Nîmes (Beitr. II. 104). So in Oscan brateis 'imperii' (Beitr. v. 342) em-bratur 'imperator.' So the Sabelian inscription of Novelli (Kuhu's Zeitschrift XV. 241) T. Veti duno didet Herclo Jovio brat... data '(T. Vettius donum dedit Herculi Jovio ex imperio data)' seems to agree beautifully with the Gaulish Garta Bidillanoviacos dede matrebo namausikabo bratu-de ('G. B. dedit Matribus Nemausicis ex imperio') of the Nîmes inscription.

BRÁTHAIR 'brother' quasi fratair, for frater was corrupted into it. Or frater quasi frauter eo quod fraudat ter i.e. patrem et matrem et fratrem.

W. brawd pl. brodyr.

BACHALL 'a crozier' quasi bacul i.e. a baculo, vel bachall ut poeta dicitur:—

Iath is a name for a bell with its voice—

I will not conceal the pure knowledge—

bach is to rap (buain) at one's door yonder, bricht and bacc mean crozier (bachall).

This quatrain is not in B. From bachall comes bachlach (cf. sen-bachlach infra s. v. Prull, voc. sg. a bachlaig infra s. v. Munnu) = W. baglog 'shepherd' = Bret. baelek 'presbyter'. Iath 'a bell with its voice' is possibly cognate with airéw. Bach is explained by buain in O'Dav. p. 60. Bricht I have not met elsewhere with this meaning: bacc (= W. bach) means billhook, in Z. 1093: bacc boana finime (a) gl. ligo.

BÁDUD 'drowning' i.e. from báth i.e. sea.

W. boddi, Corn. bedhy, Bret. beuzi: βαθύς, βυθίζω, Skr. root gāh from GVADH 'submergi', a-gādha 'very deep'.—Ed.

BATEN i.e. bath aitin i.e. 'sudden death' i.e. a muirtchenn ('morkin') that dies alone, for báth when it is short (timorta), means death.

Muirtchenn [like the English provincial word morkin and the Welsh burgun] is borrowed from the Latin morticinum 'carriou'. MacFirbis explains it by ni dogabh báis gan marbhadh 'arambi drochghnuaí maribh' 'what gets death without killing and on which is an ill countenance of death'—O'D. Timorta (timortae B) O'D conjectured to be de morte; but it is the past participle of timaircim, and literally means 'coarctatus,' Z. 996.—Ed.

BAIRCNE [Barcne B] i.e. a she-cat, because it was first brought in a barque.

Explained by cat bán i.e. a white cat in H. 2, 16.—O'D. O'Davoren, p. 58, explains it by baire-niad 'ship-hero', "from the ark of the son of Lamech he was first brought, or a strong ship-hero, which was brought from the barque of Bresal Brec." In this ship were the cait bronfinna duba, 'the cats whitebreasted, black', Senchas Mór, p. 152.—Ed.

BABLUAN [Bavluan B] i.e. nomen mulieris, quasi Babilon i.e. confusio i.e. confusion of the one tongue on the plain of Shenaar into many tongues.

(a) better buana fidnime: cf. bac no corrān buana, Senchas Mór, p. 140.—Ed.

BABLOIR i.e. a name for Patrick.

i. fear morghlórach ('a very clamorous man'). blór i. guth no glór ('voice or speech'), O'Clery.—Ed.

BAB [Babb B] an interjection of intension, de nomine of the pig of Bress son of Elatha, for there was not in Ireland a pig more excellent. Babgiter, then, was its name.

Bress mac Elathan was a Fomorian by his father's side, and of the Tuatha dé Danann by his mother's side. He was monarch of Ireland according to the Book of Lecan, and all the ms. accounts of the Tuatha dé.—O'D. Bab reminds one of παπατ, παπα, but is hardly cognate.—Ed.

BROSSNAI ['a bundle of fuel'] i.e. briss-ní ['break-thing'] (is) that, (a name applied) to withered branches and to twigs (a) of trees, because it is broken (brister) by hand and an axe is not applied to it.

Understood in every part of Ireland where Irish is spoken and even in those countries where they speak English only.—O'D. brossna crínaig do tabairt diar ngorad, Trip. Life of Patrick.—Ed.

BOLL 'a bubble', quasi bull de nomine bulla i.e. a bubble of water.

W. bwl pl. bylion, Bret. boul or bolod.—Ed.

BIROR 'watercress' i.e. bir a well or stream and hor i.e. hair (b). Biror then i.e. hair of a well or of a stream.

Biror [W. berwr, Corn. beler, Bret. béler] is now biolar.—O'D. See Ir. Glosses, p. 55, No. 184.—Ed.

BELLTAINE 'May-day' i.e. bil-tene i.e. lucky fire, i.e. two fires which Drnids used to make with great incantations, and they used to bring the cattle [as a safeguard] against the diseases of each year to those fires [in marg.] they used to drive the cattle between them.

beltene indiu i. for cétáin 'May-day today', i.e. on a Wednesday, Southampton Psalter (Goidilica p. 44). Now bcailltaine, a fem. iâ-stem.—Ed.

BRACCAILLE 'a glove': bracc i.e. 'hand' and cail 'a case' i.e. a glove (lamand).

W. breichell seems the same word, but is explained 'a place for the arm (brachium) by Pughe: cf. brac and bracand infra.—Ed.

BROCOIT 'bragget' i.e. a Welsh (word). Braccat [leg. bracaunt], then, it is with the Britons: brac is a name for malt: braccat, however, (means) sain-linn i.e. goodly ale. Brocoit i.e. a goodly ale that is made from malt [and honey].

et mil 'and honey' are added by B. The W. bracaunt, now bragawd, is said to be made of the wort of ale and mead fermented together. Brac now brag 'malt' is the Gaulish brace 'genus farris' cited by Pliny. See Diefenbach, Origines Europaeae, 265, where the subject is exhausted. The non-aspiration of the c and t of the Irish word shew that it is borrowed.—Ed. The word is used by the 4 Masters at A.D. 1107 ... co seasccait dabbach etir miadh agus brogóid 'with 60 vats both of mead and ale [bragget]'.—O'D.

(a) 'decayed brambles and withered branches'.—O'D. (b) 'beard' (or mane) O'D.

BINIT 'rennet', i.e. benait i.e. it strikes (?) in milk till it is thick and coagulated.

Occurs often in medical mss. Still in use, pronounced binid.—O'D. Gael. binid f. 1. 'cheese-rennet or the bag that contains it. 2. the stomach.—Ed.

BRARACHT i.e. breh 'bringing forth' i.e. partus [i. torches B].

B has barath.—Ed.

BLÁIL 'batchet' i.e. bith-ail i.e. a durable edge.

biáil (gl. securis) Z. 1092 W. bwyell, Corn. bool. Ohg. bihal, bigil, bial. In Cormac's bith-ail the bith is a common intensive prefix (possibly = bith, Gaulish bitu 'mundus').—Ed.

BARAD i.e. death.

cf. baire i. báis infra s. v. Gaire.—Ed.

BOMLACHT i.e. cow and milk.

As to bó see infra. The mlacht is cognate with mulgeo, mulctus, ἀμέλγω, Skr. mārjmi, mārjām.—Ed.

BUACHAIL 'herdsman' [from bó 'cow' and] cail 'a keeping' i.e. the keeper of the cows.

B. has buachail i. buaire fein 7 cail coimet 'a cowherd (is) he and cail 'keeping'. W. bugail, Corn. bugel (gl. pastor), Br. bugel. O'D. compares θουκόλος. If so, the cail (cali*-s) is the Skr. kal 'to drive on', Lat. cel in celer, celox.—Ed. Buachail now denotes a boy or youth without reference to any occupation.—O'D. cf. ιπποθουκόλος and Skr. goyuga, Max Müller, Oxford Essays, 1856, p. 18.—Ed.

BUARACH 'a cow-spance' (a) i.e. bó 'cow' and árach 'spanceel'.

Still used to denote a spanceel by which the hind-legs of a cow are tied while she is being milked.—O'D. ceangal bhos ar bhoin, O'Clery.—Ed.

BUARACH also i.e. bó-erge 'cow-rising' i.e. early in the morning, unde dicitur fescor imbuarach.

B, heter, fescor 7 buarach 'evening and morning': focerd crann i (m)buaroch la gach fungaire 'a tree was brought early by every woodman', O'Davoren p. 57.—Ed.

BASC i.e. everything red. Base then, when it is (a name) for a necklace, is a noun (b) and is properly applied to the draconic beads.

The allusion is to the dracontia or draconites mentioned by Pliny, H. N. XXXVII. 10, and Solinus c. 43, a kind of precious stone taken out of the brain of a dragon whilst alive.—O'D.

BRISC 'brittle' ab eo quod est priscus, for everything withered and everything old is brittle.

brisc = Br. bresh or brusk 'fragile'. brisc is perhaps from brud-ci* where brud = the Latin root frud in frustum (frudtum), O.N. brut in briota 'to break'. O'D compares Swed. bryta. As to the vowel, brisc would agree better with O.N. britia 'zerstücken'.—Ed.

BÓ 'a cow'. nomen de sono vocis sua factum est. [i. ainm arnadenam dfoghar in gotha uodein B.]

(a) Recte spancel = Nhg. spannseil.—Ed. (b) 'a name' O'D, but see Zenss p. 972.

Cognate with Lat. bos.—O'D. stem bōv, Gr. βοῦς and γαῖος ὁ ἐργάτης βοῦς, Skr. gau (stem gav), OHG. chuo, AS. cū, Eng. cow. These point to an Indo-European stem GVAV. The W. buwch, Bret. buoc'h or bioc'h, Corn. bûch, bûgh seem to come from bavaccā*.—Ed.

BÓBAITH 'a murrain' i.e. bó-bath 'cow-death,' and bath (is) death. It is the bó-ár 'murrain'.

BOLG BELCHI [bélcē B] i.e. bél-cheo 'mouth-vapour' i.e. a vapour which passes from its mouths.

bolg is a bag and bolg bélchi may be the fungus puffball now in Munster commonly called bolgán beice.—Cf. bélchi with A.S. bealcan 'eructare'.—O'D.

BLIND i.e. a dead man's spittle, unde dicitur bás mblinnach 'a frothing death'. Blindauga 'blind' in lingua Galleorum 'language of the foreigners'.

O'D compares Gr. βλέννα 'mucus', also βλέννος. In B we have Blinn i. snaithe ruise mairb ['thread of a dead man's eye'], unde dicitur blind i. dall no caech 'sightless or blind'. Blind-auga seems Old Norse auga is O.N. for 'eye', A. S. éage, ége.—Ed.

BERIT 'a sow' i.e. it bears (berith) i. brithid [it brings forth ?]

B has birit.—Ed. O'Clery birid i. cráin i. muc beiriotais, 'a sow, i.e. a breeding pig'.—O'D.

BENNTRAIGE [Bentraigī B] 'Bantrymen' i.e. binit-rige 'rennet-kingdom' from the cheese-curds that the king of Cashel is entitled to from them (is) this. Vel a Benta patre eorum.

Benntraighe, now Bantry, an ancient territory in the County of Cork. According to Duald Mac Firbis the Beantraighe descend from Beanda son of Concobhar mac Nessa, one of the Ernaans of Munster. There is another Bantry in Leinster, lying between the rivers Barrow and Slaney, which, however, (from the mention of Cashel,) cannot be the territory intended by our author.—O'D.

BÓGE [Boige B] i.e. name for a cauldron of covetousness which was made by the artizans. This, then, is the form in which it is i.e. nine chains out of it, and it is not larger than the head of a large goblet: a hole at the end of every chain and nine artizans standing around it, the company singing the poem (a), with the point of the spear of each man through the hole of the chain that was next to him. And he that gave a donation to them, it was into this cauldron he put it; unde dicitur coire sainnte 'cauldron of covetousness'. This then was the legitimate contents of the cauldron, i.e. a brethnasc of pure gold, (weighing) twelve ounces.

See Three Irish Glossaries, pref. LVIII. note.—Ed.

BOGE also, is the name of a small vessel in which were five ounces of gold: it was for drinking ale out of; and it was given as a prize to a poet i.e. to an ollamh (b). Unde dicitur in the Bretha nemed (the laws of the privileged classes)—ballan baisse boge coic n-uinge bánóir 'a boge is a handvessel of five ounces of pure gold'.

(a) oe cantain no o(c) cur na cléri A. = oe cur na clíara B., a deriv. from clíar 'poet,' W. cler?—Ed.

(b) B has dfileab 7 dollamnaib 'to poets and to ollaves'.—Ed.

BRIAR i.e. a pin of one ounce of gold, ut est in the Bretha nemed : briar [derg B] dely briar is a n-uinge 'a red pin of one ounce'.

BRÁTHCHÆI [Bradcaí B] i.e. brethcheo áei. Aliter, quod est verius, i.e. Cáei Caenbrethach, pupil of Fenius Farsaid. This is the disciple who went to the children of Israel to learn Hebrew, and he was the brehon at the expulsion of the sons of Miled. The reason that he is called Cáei Caenbrethach 'mild-judging' is because he passed sentences according to law, and therefore there are many instances in the language. Every time there is no king in the districts, it is a bráthchæi that serves on (a) them i.e. for (administering) local law [?]. (b). When, however, there is a king, he is absolute ruler (?) as (seems) good to him.

A bráthchæi was a brehon elected to administer the laws in a territory during an interregnum. The only recorded instance of this is the appointment of Cuan O'Lochain, after the death of Maelschlainn II in 1020.—O'D. In H. 2,16 col. 92, brathchæi is explained by breth ocaí ainn aicpta belri.—Ed.

BRUINNECH [Bruindech B] 'a mother' because she nourishes infants on her breasts, i.e. suis mammillis [fora eiguib fodein B]

So O'Davoren (Three Ir. Gl. p. 56) who quotes nabí bruinnech balb i.e. his mother or the wife whom he took was not dumb', and at p. 61: ba hí a bruin(n)ech ro-oilestar mac de 'it was his mother that nursed God's son'.—Ed. So O'Clery.—O'D.

BALBH 'stammering', ab eo quod est balbus.

In balbh the bh is a v, so, though cognate with Lat. balbus (for valvus*, gualvus*, guarvus*?), it is not borrowed from it.—Ed.

BÓRT i.e. fire, unde dicitur in the Anamain cetharreich 'the fire (bót) of Áine grandson of Lugaid which burns'.

So in H. 2,16, col. 90: Aod 7 tnu 7 smer 7 bott (i.e. beo-ait) 7 tene quinque nomina ingnis. Compare, perhaps, the Gaulish man's name Bottus.—Ed. 'The fire of O'Lugdech burns'.—O'D.

BUAS i.e. full knowledge of poetic art: because science (imbas) goes after poetic art, inde dicitur barr buaisse 'end (or top or crown) of poetical knowledge'.

A has Buas i.e. soas nairchedail imais arindí doetit himais iarmbuas [leg. imbas iarmbuais] unde dicitur etc. B has buas i.e. soes n-arcetail arinni, dothet imbas iarmbuais inde dicitur etc. I take imbas (see Imbas forosnai) to be an intensive of bas i.e. fis: see O'Clery: feal-bhas i.e. droich-fios. O'D renders barr by 'right'.—Ed.

BRÍ i.e. every malediction, ut est in the Bretha nemed : i.e. brí-amon smethraige [brimon smetrach B] i.e. the name of an operation which poets perform on a person who refuses them [aught]. He [the poet] grinds the person's ear-lobe, between his two fingers, and the person dies on whom he performs (this) operation. True is this, as this member is on a man outside, so is this man outside men. As this member is softer and smoother (c) quam alia membra, sic et hic homo.

(a) B has is brathcæi fogni etorra 'it is a brathcæi that serves among them'.—Ed.

(b) O'D translates "and hence there are many instances in the language of the appointment of a Brathcæi for the purpose of governing whenever it happened that there was no king in the territory".

(c) 'tenderer and softer'.—O'D.

BRIGIT i.e. a poetess, daughter of the Dagda. This is Brigit the female sage, or woman of wisdom, i.e. Brigit the goddess whom poets adored, because very great and very famous was her protecting care. It is therefore they call her goddess of poets by this name. Whose sisters were Brigit the female physician [woman of leechcraft,] Brigit the female smith [woman of smithwork]; from whose names with all Irishmen a goddess was called Brigit. Brigit, then, breo-aigit, breo-shaigit 'a fiery arrow'.

B. omits the absurd etymology of Brigit, which name is certainly (as Siegfried thought) connected with the O.Celtic goddess-name Brigantia and possibly with the Skr. Brhaspati and O.Norse Bragi. The name of the Dagda (as to whom see infra s.v. Ruadprofessa) Siegfried thought was borrowed from Lat. doctus, as augtor from auctor, legtór from lector. But why not then Dogda? I would rather regard it as a genuine Celtic part. pass. meaning doctus, but to be connected with the root DAGH in $\delta\iota\text{-}\delta\alpha\chi\acute{\eta}$, $\delta\iota\text{-}\delta\iota\text{-}\delta\alpha\chi\text{-}a$.—Ed.

BEC 'little' quasi ec in Hebrew.

B has Bec quasi ec ebraicé, parvus interpretatur i.e. dechned tosaig fil and 'a cutting-off the beginning is there', and the glossographer means that ec has lost b by aphaeresis. Becc is W. bach.—Ed.

BIDBA 'a guilty person', graece bi-θávaroç i.e. bis mortuus i.e. he deserves his death twice.

BIL from Bial i.e. an idol god, unde beltine 'May day' i.e. fire of Bel.

A different etymology s. v. Belltaine, utrum horum?—O'D. In H. 2. 16 col. 93: Bil i. ohiel i. dia idaltoicteg [?] saide conataithe tene ina annaim i taiti samraid dogres 7 doaigheftis cethrai eter in da thenid ('a fire was kindled in his name at the beginning of summer always, and cattle were driven between the two fires').—Ed.

BAIRE graece baronntes [barones B] fortes dicuntur. Or baire i.e. búire 'pride'.

Mercenarii sunt qui serviunt accepta mercede, iidem et barones Graeco nomine, quod sint fortes in lahoribus: $\beta\alpha\rho\nu\zeta$ enim dicitur gravis quod sit fortis, Isidor. Origg. ix. 4. In H. 2. 16, col. 92, we have Baræ graece barones merciniari (i. lucht tuarastoil), fortes dicuntur. Broc fochracæ din in bari, unde dicitur bare buri. In Senchas Mór, p. 52, tre-baire is rendered 'three individuals'.—Ed. Báire is the pl. of bár [leg. báir?] 'a chieftain'.—O'D.

BIND 'sweet', 'melodious' i.e. a pindro i.e. from a harp.

B has 'a pinnro i.e. ón cruit. H. 2. 16, 'a pindaro i.e. cruit'.—Ed.

BRINDA [Brind B] i.e. a verbo frendo, for he (it?) does not speak clearly, vel a bruto eloquio.

O'D supposed this to be O'Clery's Brionn i.e. brég 'a lie'; but it rather seems his brinn i.e. brionglóide 'a vision'; cf. brinna 'a vision' Book of Lismore cited by O'D. Supp. to O'R.—Ed.

TER TIA LITTERA.

CORMAC i.e. corb-mac i.e. corb 'a chariot', Corbmac then (means) son of a chariot. Cormac Geltai Gaeth of Leinster was the first so called, because he was born in a chariot. This, then, is the correct orthography of that name i.e. Corbmac i.e. so that a b be in the first syllable of that name Cormae i.e. b scribitur ut Corbmac.

Cormac G. G., grand-father of Cathaoir Mór, flourished in the first century.—O'D. COIRBRE quasi coir-breo ['a just flame'], or Coirbre quasi corb-aire i.e. cuirb-peri (?) or driver (airai) of a chariot.

A common Irish name, now usually written Cairbre.—Ed.

CATHAL i.e. Welsh (is) this i.e. catell, i.e. cat 'battle' in the Welsh is cath in Scoticâ, the ell then is ail 'rock'. Cathal then i.e. ail catha 'rock of battle'.

A common Irish name. With Welsh Catell Zeuss, 96, compares the Gaulish name Catullus.—Ed.

COB i.e. victory. Cobthach [a man's name] victorious.

Glück, K. N. 45, connects the Gaulish names Cob-nertus, Cobenerdus, Ver-cobius. Cob i. caomh ('fair') no buaidh ('victory') O'Davoren.—Ed.

CLITHAR SÉT. Alii dicunt that it is a name for a cow in-calf, because she conceals (do-cel) her calf in her: quod non verum est; sed verius, vel aliter, Clithar-sét [clethar set B] i.e. a king-cow, for clithar is a name for 'king' in the Duil Feda Máir ['Book of the great wood'] and it is edad, 'e.' that (a), A sét gabla, then, is the smallest, and is a name for a bull dairt (yearling) and a cow colpach (heifer), or for a bull colpach and a cow dairt. Samaisc is the second (kind of) sét. Laulgach ('a milch-cow') or an ox which works at the plough, (is) the third sét, and this is the ri-sét 'king-sét'. And this is the manner in which they are classified in the judgment of Caei Cáinbrethach: (one of) every three séts (should be) a sét gablae, another a samaisc, another a laulgach or a plough-ox. They are varied in their order until the mulct is completed (impud forai beos corí cend na herca) (a). And these are the séts required to be given in Patrick's law, for its séts are half an ounce.

From a ms. note of the late Eugene Curry I gather that he thought the ri-séét was the unit by reference to which an eric was calculated. Four seoit gabla = two samaisci = one ri-séét. Thus, to take his own illustration, suppose the fine was 3 cumhals or 21 cows: this might be made up thus: 10 ri-seoit = 10 cows 16 samaisci = 8 "
 12 seoit gabla = 3 "

The amount might obviously be made up in many other ways, e.g. 5 ri-seoit + 30 samaisci + 4 seoit gabla = 21 cows, and this power of varying the components is perhaps what Cormac refers to by the phrase impud foraib etc.—Ed.

CRUIMTHER i.e. the Gaelic of presbyter. In Welsh it is premter: prem 'worm' in the Welsh is cruim in the Gaelic. Cruimther, then, is not a correct change of presbyter: but it is a correct change of premter. The Britons, then, who were in attendance on Patrick when preaching were they who made the change, and it is premter that they changed; and accordingly the literati of the Britons explained it, i.e. as the worm is bare, sic decet presbyterum, who is bare of sin and quite naked of the world, etc. secundum eum qui dixit ego [autem] sum vermis [Ps. xxii.6: ataimse conad crum me 7 nach duine B] etc.

Cf. Cruimther Fraech, an Irish saint, and Cruimtheris (= presbyterissa) one of S. Patrick's textrices et sacrorum linteorum confectrices (Colgan, Trias Thaum., p. 167), daughter of a British king (ib. p. 163).—O'D. I doubt if Cormac is right in deducing cruimther from premter. This leaves unexplained the vowel of the first syllable and the aspiration of the t. The gen. sg. of cruimther occurs in the Féilire, April 29: Martra Germaine cruumthir. In Old-Celtic cruimther would be cromitiros or cruumtiros, which resembles the oghamian curimittirros, as transliterated in one of the Siegfried mss. The 'Crubthir Fintam' of the life of S. Kepi (Rees, Lives of the Cambro-British saints, pp. 184, 185) seems a blunder for Crumthir Fintain. With cruim 'worm', O.W. prem, now prýf, Corn. prif, Bret. prev, cf. Skr. krmi, Zend kerema, Lith. kirmi-s.—Ed.

CLOCH 'a stone' three names for it i.e. onn its inexplicable name (fiarmbelra) cloch its common name: cloech its descriptive name, i.e. because it cloes ('overcomes') everything, etc.

Cloch f. W. clog m. 'a detached rock', clogan f. 'a large stone'. Onn its 'inexplicable' (q.v. 'obsolete' or 'primitive'?) name, is perhaps in O.W. onn-presen (gl. foratorium).—Ed.

CROSS quasi crux 'a cross'.

(a) Literally: 'an inversion (or conversion) upon them till it reaches the end of the mulct' i.e. till the amount of the eric is made up.

CREATRA [cretair B] 'a creature' i.e. a creatura.

Now always written and pronounced créatúir—O'D. W. créadur, Corn. croadur, creatur. Br. krouadur.—Ed.

CAITHIGUD 'depreciation' i.e. likening to chaff (cáith) from the likeness and comparison of the man from his emptiness and unprofitableness.

Caithiughudh is glossed by tathair 'reproach' in O'D.'s supplement to O'Reilly. So O'Davoren p. 67, who quotes arrobatar a tuisci i n-ilur lanamnasa conach urusa a caithiugud oldas a molad ('for their ideas were that, in many marriages it is not easier to reproach than to praise them'). Examples of both cap and pell (gen. pill) occur in Lebar na huidre (note on the Amra col.): ruthar i capp (i.e. i carr) is ndiaid phill (i.e. eich) do [fh]race (i.e. do ben) a seail (i.e. a fir) 'thy wife, O man, is brought in a car behind a horse'.—Ed.

Caisel 'a stone-fort' seem, like O.W. castell pl. cestill, to be borrowed from Lat. castellum, though the single l of the Irish word raises some doubt. Hence caisleoir i. fer deunmha caisil, O'Clergy.—Ed.

CASAL [Caisel A] a cassla (leg. casula) B.

CLÍR 'a poet of the third order,' he was so called from his resemblance to a house-post (clí) i.e. is besem in a clíad no donclet is besad na cleithe, B. It is strong at the floor, it is slender at the ridge, and straightly he covers (a) (and) is covered. Sic is a clí among the poets. Strong in visitation in his own territories, he is gentle in exterior territories. As the clí (post) is in the house from floor to ridge, so then is the dignity of this graed whereunto is the name of clí. [He covers] that which is below him: is covered by that which is higher. He is straight in the practices of his poetry.

Interlined in A:—"from ánruth to fochlacon: a clí then covers that which is lowest: he is covered (b) by that which is higher": with this agrees B: doeim dana in clí inni besid nisle docmar som onni besad nuaisliu is diriug am(b)esaib a dana, where note the forms besid-n and besad-n. The Clí had eighty stories. Senchas Már, p. 44. Anair was the name of his poetry, supra p. 6.—Ed.

CANA, then, a name of a grade of poets i.e. cantaid [caintid B] 'a chanter', because he recites (chanas) the productions of his art before kings and peoples. ut ipse est admoll i.e. admoltaig [admoltaid B] for he is the most lively [gresgem 'most continuous' (c)] for panegyric and storytelling, even before grades of poets (d).

B has caill crithmon. creth mon i.e. mon cles 7 creth exi [leg. écsé] i.e. caill as a taet cless na uadh ind aircetail. O'D supposed caill to be for coil n. pl. of coll, but is it not caill 'a wood'? crinmon (a) a derivation, like krívw, cerno, from the root krív?—Ed. The ancient Irish poets believed that there were fountains at the heads of the chief rivers of Ireland, over each of which grew nine hazels, that those hazels produced at certain times beautiful red nuts which fell on the surface of the water, that the salmon of the rivers came up and ate them, that the eating of them was the cause of the red spots on the salmon's belly, that whoever could catch and eat one of these salmon would be endowed with the sublimest poetic intellect. Hence we often meet such phrases as these in ancient poems:—"Had I the nut of Science", "Had I eaten of the salmon of knowledge". See Dinnseanchas of Sinoinn in the Book of Lecan, fo. 240.—O'D.

CANOIN 'the canon', the canonical scripture, quasi cáin-on, for what it says is pure (cáin) and is truth.

O'Davoren explains it, pp. 66, 70, by uasal 'noble'. At p. 72 he cites caidh-dia dinicfa co felmacaib 'a noble (rather 'pure') God who will come with disciples.' Caid (= an Old Celict cadi-s*), is probably from the same root as castus (= cad-tus) and καθ-αρός.—Ed.

|----------------------------------|---|
| Cen colt ar cráib cerníne | Without food quickly on dishes; |

| cen adba fir fodruba disorchi | Without a man's habitation under (the) roof of darkness; |
| cen díl dámi resi robesen brissi | Without paying storytellers; this was prosperity for Bress. |

see infra s.v. Riss. Cerníne (cernene i.e. mias B) is a diminutive of cern i.e. mias O'Dav. 63. colt 'food' = πόλτος, puls, pultis : crip (which O'Clery s. v. Cerníne glosses by luath) seems cognate with κραπνός, with which Curtius connects Goth. hlaupa (notwithstanding the undisplaced p) 'I leap,' Ohg. hloufu 'I run.'—Ed.

CERMNAS i.e. a lie and deception, quasi cermain feiss i.e. deceptive knowledge and art, unde dicitur in the Gaire Echach (a) 'cen nach cernnas' 'without any deception'.

Aliter it was named from cervix.

See Irish Glosses No. 979. The gen. sg. cercaill (comrad cennchercaille 'a pillow-conversation') occurs at the beginning of the Táin bó cuailgne, the dat. pl. cercaillib in Senchas Mór, p. 126.—Ed.

COIC, i.e. a secret, ut Nédi mac Adnai (dixit) Ní chualai coic nuin ol me no ol moin gaiar gair "thou didst not hear an evil secret of me (c), O short-lived Caier"!

See Gaire infra.—O'D. nuin is explained 'evil' in H. 3. 18 (a ms. in Trin. Coll. Dub.) p. 61. The form moin 'me' is very curious: cf. perhaps Lith. manèn, and consider the O.W. muin (gl. meus) infra s. v. Modebroth.—Ed.

CARTIT i.e. a pin i.e. (in the) Pictish language, i.e. a pin on which is put its shank.

No doubt a loanword, for gartit*, and, like W. garthon 'goad' Corn. garthon (gl. stimulus), Br. garzon, from Ohg. gart, A.S. geard, Goth. gazds.—Ed.

COTH i.e. food: cothudh i.e. sustenance. unde dicitur mael-cothaid i.e. a man [?] that sustains, unde est, in the Dialogue of the Two Sages, for rem cothaid 'in the progress of sustenance'.

Mael-cothaidh became common in Ireland as the proper name of a man. The Dialogue of the two Sages is still extant in H. 2. 16 [ms. in T. C. D.] and is, perhaps, the oldest Irish composition now in existence. It is said to be a disputation which took place at Emania in Ulster between Ferceirtne the poet and Néidhe mac Adna.—O'D. With coth (gen. coid, Sench. Mór, p. 190) cf. πατ-έοματ, Skr. pita 'bread', Goth. fōdjan, 'feed', fod-eins 'food'.—Ed.

(a) 'for their being purified.'—O'D.

(b) A and B have ciar chail i.e. ciar coimet, which O'D. renders "ciarchail; ciar i.e. to keep". But this is nonsense: coimet here, as at caile supra, is the explanation of caill, and not of ciar, which I venture to put with Lat. cere-brum, and Goth. hvarir-nei 'skull'. W. cern 'side of the head'. Bret. kern 'sommet de la tête' may also be connected.—Ed.

(c) 'I have not heard an evil secret'.—O'D.

CIMB i.e. silver. It was from the silver that was given (as tribute) to the Fomorians it received (lit. merited) its appellation. Cimb then, (has been) a name for every (kind of) tribute thenceforward, although it was the name (but) for silver prius; because it was so frequently given in great quantity (a) to the Fomorians. Unde dicitur in the Bretha nemed: cimb [cimm B] uim olas n-uim i puincerni puinc 'a tribute of bronze since I placed the bronze [?] in the notched balance'.

cimb is perhaps 'ransom-money' rather than 'tribute': cf. cimbid (gl. vinctus) Z. 1004, cimbith supra. p. 30, cimbidi (gl. custodias) Lib. Arm. 189, and the Gaulish Cimbr (gl. latrones), with which Cimberius is probably connected.—Ed.

COICENG 'an equal yoke' [?] i.e. com-chuing, because it is an equal yoke on both sides.

COING i.e. com-ching 'going together'. [?]

COIMMESS [?] i.e. equal power on each side.

CUMLACHTAIG [cumlachtaid B] i.e. nomen for a young pig when he goes from his sty (as a cru B = ácrū A) to suck, and seeks his dam to suck her teats (b), quasi cum lacte ambulans. Unde dicitur cumlachtach (is) the man, i.e. munificent, kindly, who gives something to every one. Sic porca snum suo largitur lac.

So O'Davoren p. 62: 'Comlachtaidh, a name for a sucking-pig, i.e. he follows after his milk (lacht) i.e. after his mother, i.e. he remembers his milk'.—Ed.

CLAIRIU i. division, inde est leniud clairenn i.e. prevention [?] of division and distribution.

B reads leniud clairend i. tairmese etc. 'confusion of division, &c.—Ed.

CRUFHECHTA a carrion-crow.

Perhaps a poetical name meaning corvus (cru) praelii (fechta) fecht = O. W. gweith. O'Davoren, p. 63, has cruechta i. bodba, in the plural.—Ed.

CUL 'a chariot', ut dixit Cúchulainn

Cul a chariot—hardy was the order—
In which I used to go with Conchobar;
And néit was a name for the battle,
Which I used to gain for Cathbu's son.

CUL i.e. a chariot, unde est culgaire 'the creaking of a chariot'.

cul = O. Slav. kolo: cf. Gr. κυλίω, A.S. hweól, 'wheel' O.N. hiól. See Culmaire. infra.—Ed.

CUPAR (caubar B) i.e. an old bird [a kite?].

Perhaps W. bar-cud.—Ed.

CULLIAN i.e. culén 'pup' i.e. a dog (cú) that follows (lenas) every one.

W. colwyn m.—Ed.

(a) Literally, 'for its frequency and for its quantity (with it which) it was given to the Fomori', B has doberthe i cis do fomorib 'it was given in tribute to the F'.—Ed.

(b) O'D 'when he goes to suck and the dam refuses to let him suck her teats'.

COINFODORNE i.e. otters i.e. fodobarnai i.e. subaqueous. Dobar is a word common to Gaelic and Welsh. dobur i.e. 'water', uude dicitur dobar-chú and in the Welsh it is called doborcí.

The modern Welsh words are dwfr 'water', dyfrgi or dwrgi 'otter': Corn. doferghi (gl. lutrins), Bret. dour-gi and also ki-dour, literally 'waterdog'—Ed. dobharchú still living in Donegal, obsolete in every other part of Ireland. Explained madra uisge 'waterdog' by O'Clery.—O'D.

B. adds i.e. gruth indsin. W. caws, Corn. caus (gl. caseus), Br. kaouz.—Ed.

CAIRT 'parchment' i.e. a carta: carta enim in qua nondum scriptor quisquam scripsit in se. Carta then i.e. 'parchment' i.e. for parchment (membrum) is it a name.

CRUM DUMA ['dunghill']. 'maggot-mound' [?] i.e. 'dung', unde dicitur cin chon crum duma 'the crime of a dunghill dog'.

crum was supposed by O'Davoren, p. 63 and O'Donovan to be the same as cruim 'vermis', supra p. 28, and duma to be duma 'tumulus'. I would rather compare crum with καλώνη cul-men, hol-m and duma with Skr. dhūma, Lat. fūmus, fūmus (cf. καπ-ρός with καπ-νός). cf. W. tomen-dail. Bret. bern-teil.—Ed.

CERBALL i.e. cerr-bél 'wry-mouthed', his mouth on his jaw. Cerball then i.e. cer for focher, fochuir ball or bell 'he waged war' [bell] from bellum 'war'. Cerball, then, means a warlike champion. Inde poeta.

Cerball was a leader on his expedition:
Not very slow were his two hands:
He slew Cormac,—great the shame—
Nine score hundreds five times.

This quatrain is, according to E. Curry, taken from a poem by Gilla na Naemh O'Duinn, who died in 1160. No part of the article is in B and it is probably an interpolation.—Ed.

CEL 'heaven' [occurs supra, p. 36.]

CEL 'death' and every thing of terror.

The root seems cal in Lat. celare, domi-cilium, καλια, Ohg. helan. As to the O. Norse Hel gen. Heljar, our hell. see Grimm D.M. 289.—Ed.

CIL i. partial or everything oblique: unde lethchil 'half biased'.

CASTOIT 'chastity' from castitas, [occurs supra p. 35].

CARTOIT i.e. entire devotedness: it is a name for love. [occurs supra, p. 35].

CICHT i.e. 'a carver'.

Explained in H. 3. 18 thus: cicht i.e. geibire i.e. rindaire 'a carver or engraver'.—O'D.
O'Davoren, p. 63 has cicht i.e. geibiach, which seems cognate.—Ed.

CLOINN 'a sword', i.e. because it overcomes (clóides) every injustice.

CULMAIRE i.e. a chariot-builder.

See cul supra, p. 39.

CUISNIT (a) i.e. cosnait i.e. cosnam dála 'disputation in a court'. Or cos na dála 'foot, or bar, or tribune, of the Court', on which the pleader stands: and it is at it or from it he pleads and it is on it he stands. Hence the pleader (dái) is not to be unsteady.

Cuisin from which this word is obviously derived, is explained by O'D. (Supp. to O'R.) 'to sue', 'to follow'. He refers to Welsh Laws p. 401, art. 9. O'Davoren, p. 71, has cuisnet i.e. cuisn7ens [i.e. cuis 'causa' nitens] in tugait taithnemach 'the brilliant cause'.—Ed.

COLOMNA AIS or ÁISSE 'columns of age' i.e. times (stages of human life), viz., infancy, boyhood, puberty, adolescence, old age, decrepitude.

The word in A, óclachus, which O'D. renders 'adolescence', is oglachass (leg. óglachas) in B, which seems better, óclachas (cf. óclachdī gl. juvenilia Z. 822) being a derivative from óc 'young', and óglachas from óg 'integer' 'perfectus' Z. 28.—Ed.

COIRE 'a caldron' i.e. cóí úire 'passage of the raw': úir (is) everything raw i.e. raw flesh.

Not in B. Siegfried compared coire with A.S. hver 'lebes' 'cacabus', Eng. ewer.—Ed.

COIRE BRECCÁIN 'Breccán's caldron' i.e. a great whirlpool which is between Ireland and Scotland to the north, in the meeting of the various seas, viz., the sea which encompasses Ireland at the north-west, and the sea which encompasses Scotland at the north-east, and the sea to the south between Ireland and Scotland. They whirl round (b) like moulding compasses (c), each of them taking the place (d) of the other, like the paddles (e) ... of a millwheel, until they are sucked (f) into the depths so that the caldron remains with its mouth wide open; and it would suck (g) even the whole of Ireland into its yawning gullet. It vomits iterum that draught up, so that its thunderous eructation and its bursting and its roaring are heard among the clouds, like the steam-boiling of a caldron on the fire (h).

Now Breccán son of Main, son of Niall of the Nine Hostages, had fifty currachs trading between Ireland and Scotland, until they fell at one time into the caldron there, and there came from it not one, or, not even tidings of destruction (i); and their fate was not known, until Lugaid, the Blind Poet, came to Bangor, and his people went to the strand of Inver Béec, and found a bare small skull there, and they

 (b) Fo-s-cerd iaram immasech (= Foscerd iaram imonsech, B) literally: 'It (the caldron) puts them (the seas) under in turns': See focertam 'submittimus', fucertia 'demittitur' Z. 845.
 (c) Fochornailius luathrinne: luathrin H. 3. 17. p. 664. O'D. [transcript of Breton laws] 949, a moulding pair of compasses used by iron or brass-founders.—Ed.
 (d) Lit. "and each of them is put into another's tomb", tumam late Lat. and Sp. tumba Diez, E. W. i. 414.—Ed.
 (e) Orcel, nom. sg. oircel, Senchas Már, p. 124. I do not know the meaning of tairrechtae, in B tairechtae.—Ed.
 (f) A co suidet, B 7 suigthe: both seem corrupt. Read co suigetar.—Ed.
 (g) 'It would swallow Eire wholly into its vast mouth'.—O'D.
 (h) B reads fo cosmiviles nqualwicedar coire mbis for tein.—Ed.
 (i) Orcne, later oirgne. O'D. cites a proverb nibh oirgne cen scinling 'no destruction without an escaping'.

brought it to Lugaid, and asked him whose was the head ; and he said to them : " Put the end of the poet's wand upon it". This was done, et dixit Lugaid the Poet : " The tempestuous water, the waters of [leg. or] the whirlpool (a) destroyed Breccán. This is the head of Breccán's dog ; and it is little of great", said he, " for Breccán was drowned with his people in that whirlpool."

After the description of the whirlpool B inserts the following : Brecan din cendaige án do huibh neill .l. curach accendach iter eirind 7 albain dochuiredar iaram forsan choire ni shin 7 rotasluigit uile imale 7 niterna cidh sciula orne as, ' Brecan, then, a noble merchant of the Hy Néill. [had] fifty curraghs trading between Ireland and Scotland. They fell afterwards on that caldron, and it swallowed them (ro-ta-sluigith) all together, and not even news of (their) destruction escaped from it'. To this, and not to the Maelstrom, Giraldus Cambrensis appears to refer in Top. Hib. It was situate between the Irish coast and the island of Rathlin, (Reeves, Columba 29 note : the Corribrekin of Scott's Lord of the Isles and of Leyden's ballad lies between Jura and Scarba.—Ed.

Inver Béce is the ancient name of Drogheda, according to the Book of Lismore, p. 185.—O'D.

CUMAL ['a she-slave'] i.e. a woman that is grinding at a quern ; for this was the business of bondswomen before the mills were made.

See Cuan O'Lochain's poem on the beautiful Ciarnaid, the cumhal or bondmaid of king Cormac mac Airt, and on the erection of the first mill in Meath near the hill of Tara. The best copy is in H. 3.3.—O'D.

CREPSCUIL ['evening twilight'] i.e. crepusculum, ab eo quod est crepusculum i.e. dubia lux i.e. nomen for vespers [evening time], ut dixit Colmán mac Lénine :

Rop tánaise triúin crepscuiil ' It was at the second (hour) of strong twilight

COTUD 'a whetstone' i.e. everything hard [?], ab eo quod est cotis i.e. a stone (lie) i.e. a whetstone on which iron weapons are ground.

Cotud B = cadut A. cotut i. a cote i. lie for eid H. 2. 16. col. 97.—Ed..

CEINTICUL [cintecal B :] i.e. Welsh was corrupted there, i.e. ccnical, [cainecal B] : it is to this then is the name of this thing among the Britons i.e. to wool (d) whereof they make a blanket (e), unde dicitur " thou hast made a ccnntical [cintecol B] of it" etc.

This is the Middle Welsh kenhughel (Laws, i. 308), the Old Welsh form of which was probably some form like contecul (con-tegulum*?). All the other Welsh words cited in this Glossary are Old Welsh.—Ed.

CETICOL i.e. cét ' chewing', tícol i.e. raw dough.

(a) B has Dobais dotrethan ardat mba brecan uisce no chuire.

(b) This, substituting crepscuiil for creaps cuiil, is the reading of B.—Ed.

(c) " Second only to triúin vespers (black twilight, strong twilight), was the mode of trial of Peter the Apostle."

This has reference to Peter's denial of Christ, before the crowing of the cock.—O'D.

(d) do olaind eilces B 'of coarse wool'.—Ed. (e) 'winnowing sheets', 'coarse blankets'.—O'D.

Not in B. O'D. translates céit by 'first', which would be cét. The passage seems hopelessly obscure.—Ed.

COICETUL i.e. a singing together.

Qy. 'harmony'? W. cynganedd.—Ed.

CUISIL 'counsel' i.e. that is Welsh, and Latin was corrupted there: quasi consil, ab eo quod est consilium. Inde dicitur "it is from, or by, thy cuisol ['advice'] it was done".

W. cysyl, Corn. cusul, cusyl, Bret. kuzul.—Ed.

CUAILLE ('a stake') i.e. de an cual no caoile quam alia ('from a great faggot' (ancual?) or (it is) slenderer (caoile) quam alia'.

O'D. leaves the words de an cual untranslated. The an may perhaps be intensive. As to cual see infra.—Ed.

Usually written currach, and now applied to a marsh or fen where shrubs grow. Anciently it also meant a race-course. In this sense it was originally applied to the Cuirrech Liffe, now the Curragh of Kildare, which was never a moor, but was the field of sports belonging to the royal fort of Dún Aillinne, one of the palaces of the kings of Leinster. It was also applied in this sense to Cuirrech chinn Eitigh near Roscommon. See 4 Masters, A.D. 1234, 1397.—O'D. In chaillech reided Currech 'the nun that used to run (over the) Curragh' occurs in Broccán's hymn in praise of Brigit, l. 97, and here, according to Dr. Todd (Lib. Hymn. 67, note (j)), the scholiast says "currech a cursu equorum dictus est".—Currech a curribus, H. 2.16, col. 97.—Ed.

coimgni i. senchas, O'Davoren.—Ed.

CAR i. conair ('a way').

caoi is still living in Connaught.—O'D. cae 'road', also cói, is from the root KI, whence Gr. κίω, Lat. cio, cieo, citus: and in Cornish ke 'go thou', pl. keugh 'go ye', Bret. ké 'go thou', kit 'go ye'.—Ed.

CA i. tech ('house') unde dicitur cerdcha i. tech cerda ('an artizan's house').

cérdcha, pronounced céarta, is a living word for 'smithy'. O'D. cerddchae (gl. officina) Z. 70, cerdcha (gl. fabrica) Ir. gl. No. 218.—Ed.

CRESCA i. tech cumang ('a narrow house').

CULMAIRE i. saor denma carpait ('an artificer who makes a chariot').

see Cul supra, p. 39.

COBTACH i. fer dliges fiacha ('a man that owes debts').

CRÓ i. bas ('death') ut dixit corbmac nirbo flaith um cri comero ('There was not (c) a prince in my heart till my death').

Probably Cormac mac Airt, king of Ireland in the 3rd century, who was believed to have been converted to Christianity.—O'D. The quotation is from a quatrain cited in H. 3. 18. p. 66: Peccad buan ollbrath each bíf. Nirob flaith im cri com ero. im doenacht a maic de bíf. Cid tú bud rig ni bo ro; and the fact that this quatrain begins with a word borrowed from Latin renders it unlikely that it was composed in the third century.—Ed.

CAINCELL a cancella i. cliath ('hurdle').

CENDAITE ('a last bequest') i.e. cend-laite i.e. laithe cinaid in duine ('the day of a person's fate').

See Cogadh Gaedhel re Gallaibh ed. Todd p. 200: mo bheannacht do Dhonnchadh ar mo cheinnaiti d'ic tar m'eis 'my blessing to D. for discharging my last bequests after me'. O'Clery remarks that the word has lost an l ['luis tobeanadh as an bhfocal so ceannlaithe'].—O'D.

CELT i.e. vestis i.e. edach ('raiment'). Decelt i.e. brat 7 leine ('a cloak and a shirt').

In col. 21 we find Celt i.e. cech ditiu unde dicitur de chelt i.e. de ditiu. The Highland kilt is a corruption of this.—O'D. The root seems to be CAL v. supra s. v. Cel p. 40.—Ed.

CUIF i.e. tulcuba ('a cup').

CAM i.e. comland ('a conflict').

CARR i.e. gai ('a spear'). Diceltair i.e. erand gai cen iarn fair ('a shaft of a spear without (the) iron upon it').

CERB i.e. argad ('silver').

Possibly Skr. çubhra from KVABH-ra.—Ed.

CUACH NAIDM i.e. tuag dunad.

'a shoulder-knot' O'D. sed qu. Tuag is an axe and also a bow. In H. 3. 18. p. 67, we have Cuachnaidm i.e. tuadnaidm. Cuachdunad i.e. tuadhðhunad.—Ed.

CUINSTI i.e. drech ('a face') ut dicitur eid enedach a cuinsi eucht ('though scarred is her face, cuinsi (and) form.)'

'though scarred is the image of her face' O'D. cf. O'Davoren: cucht i.e. cuinsi 7 cruth 'face and form'.—Ed.

CERA i.e. in dagdae ('the Dagdae').

Vide supra s.v. Brigit.—O'D. If the Dagdae was a god (and in H. 2. 16, col. 99 the glossographer explains the word by dagh-dia 'good god') Cera may come from the root KAR, and be connected with the Latin cerus 'creator', Ceres etc.—Ed.

COIBCHI .i. cendach ('buying') ut dicitur tulach na coibche an oenach tailten ('Market Hill' 'hill of the buying' at the fair of Teltown (in Meath))

CUINDFIUCH .i. fas ('void') .i. cuinnfiuch ni co eet chura ('every contract is void but the first contract').

From a poem attributed to S. Cíaran of Cluain-mac-nois, who died at the age of 33, Sept. 9, A. D. 549. It is fabled that his death was caused by the prayers of the other saints of Ireland, who envied him his fame for sanctity and miracle-working. The poem was composed to counteract the effect of their prayers, or at least to complain of those who wished to cut short his life before he had produced fruit worthy of his ministry.—O'D.

CONLE i. coblige ('copulation').

CERMNA 'a hare' [?] i. cu ciar bis isin muine ('a brown hound which is in the brake').

O'Reilly has "cearmna 'a cutting' i. gearradh o. g". But qy. did he mistake gearradh for gerfhiadh 'a hare'? O'D.

carna i. feoil 'flesh' O'Clery, is doubtless a formation from a stem identical with that of the Latin caro, viz. caren, which Curtius, G. E. 143, assumes to have been shortened from carven, sed qu.—Ed.

QUARTA LITTERA.

DOMNALL i.e. doman-nuall i.e. the celebrity (nuall) of the world (domain) about him. Or Domnall i.e. doman-uaill i.e. pride of (the) world about him.

Domn is from the same root as the Latin dominus, [Skr. damana], and the last syllable all (a common termination of the proper names of men) is the adjective all 'great', 'mighty', 'noble'.—O'D. identified by Siegfried with the Skr. arya. The domn is possibly = Gaulish Dubnus (Glück K.N. 68, O.Welsh Dubn) with which Glück connects the Goth. diup 'deep'. But I would rather follow Siegfried in referring it, with Dumno Domnos in Dumno-rix, Verjugo-dunnus, Δομνοκλειος and the O. Ir. coimdemnacht (gl. dominatus), comdemnigedar (gl. dominatur), to dominus, damana.—Ed.

DIARMAIT a man's name, i.e. di-airmit, there is no airmit i.e. injunction upon him.

di is the privative particle, which Glück sees in the Gaulish Di-ablintres. From airmit comes a verb which occurs in the Tripartite Life, and is curiously mistranslated in Mr. Skene's Chronicles of the Picts and Scots, p. 17.—Ed.

DUTHCERN [Duithcernd B, 'niggardly' 'churlish'] i.e. di-shuithcern, 'not suithcern i.e. not suith i.e. not sochla'.

Sochla is said to mean 'good' in O'D. Supp. Here O'D. guesses it to be 'happy'.—In B suith-ernd is glossed by tioldlaicthe 'given'. O'Clery explains doithchearnas by dochearnas i.e. dothiodhnacal no droicheimeach.—Ed.

DISS [Dis B] 'puny', 'weak' ab eo quod est dispectus i.e. feeble, insignificant.
Dis i.e. dearoil, O'Clery.—Ed.

DENMNE [deinme B] i.e. di- for negation, i.e. di-ainmne 'without patience'.

O'Clery has Deinmne i.e. luath ('swift') no deithbhireach ('hasty'): ainmne Z. 1042, (gl. patientiam) Z. 1045.—Ed.

DISCREIT i.e. discretus locus [i.e. log discreitech B]. a hiding place?.—O'D.

DOTCHAID [leg. Dothchaid?] i.e. di-thacaid 'without riches or prosperity'.

Re-occurs infra. B has dotced i.e. di-toiced: dodchad 'infelicitas' Z. 606.—Ed.

DIUMUSACH ['haughty'] i.e. di-amusach 'he brings not a soldier (amus) to (do) anything, but seeks to achieve [?] it alone.

Diummusach i.e. di-ammusach B. diummussay (gl. superbus) Z. 1051.—Ed. Hence the name Dempsey.—O'D.

DIUTHACH or DIUTHANN nomen doloris which is produced by rubbing thy two thighs in travelling.—Ed.

After this article B has Dairmitiu .i. diairmitu .i. nemairmitiu.—Ed.

DÁL .i. 'a division', inde dicitur Dál Ríata and Dál nAraide.

So Beda, Eccles. Hist. lib. i. c. i.—O'D. Hence the verb fo-dlat 'discernunt' Z. 33, where he compares the W. daul (?) W. dol, a dale.—Ed.

DABACH ['a tub'] i.e. dé-oach 'two-eared', i.e. two ears (handles) upon it, for there used to be no handles on vessels at first.

cf. caile dabha (gl. famula) and dabach (gl. caba), Ir. Glosses, Nos. 158, 277.—Ed.

DOMAN [Dommun B] 'the world' .i. dé-oman 'double fear' i.e. fear of death and of hell. Doman i.e. dimain 'vain', from its transitoriness. Doman (quasi) deman for its covetousness. Doman i.e. de-main, two wealths are ... through it (a) i.e. heaven and earth.

DÍRE 'a fine' .i. dí-aire 'two distinctions [?] to nobles for their nobility, or digalbre 'compensation' (b) .i. di-er rithe (c) 'two that were given to nobles for their nobility.'

O'D reads di erridhe, and translates these words "two payments made": díre is the W. dirwy f.—Ed.

DÍGAL ['vengeance'] i.e. nem-gal 'non-criing' i.e. the crying ceases [anad, anaid B] of every one for whom is wrought revenge [digabail 'diminution' B] of wretchedness (d): di at one time is negation, at another, augmentation (e). Aliter diagal i.e. lamentation with the one party and weeping (gol) from the other. Diagal then i.e. dé-gul 'a double cry'.

dígal is the Welsh dial 'vengeance'. The word gal, gol, gul 'cry', 'wail' is from the root GAL, GAR, Skr. grī, (Beitr. V. 223). The word translated 'of wretchedness'—aprainde—seems the gen. sg. of a deriv. from apprinn which is thus explained in H. 2. 16, col. 89: graece aporea (ἀντοπία) .i. egestas latine dommatu i.e. is dometu na dernad. O'Clery, too, has aprainde i.e. olc ('evil'), aprainn i.e. truagh ('wretched'), dioghal aprainne i.e. dioghal truagh. O'Donovan read a phrainde, translating 'of his dinner'.—Ed.

DIE i. e. a day; inde dicitur olc die i.e. a bad day: die, then, from dies [leg. deus], for it is from gods (déib) that the pagans used to name their days, ut est dies Jovis, dies Veneris. Die also (means) lamentation, ut Colman mac hui Cluasaig dixit:—

A heart without sorrow is not good;

Dead-sick is every one who is weeping (f):

(For) the son whom they rejected to the west of Cliu,
(I am) in grief for Cuimine.

(a) O'D omits to translate conagair trit, for which B has atcotar trit.—Ed.

(b) digalbre in Z. 742 is explained 'defectus morbi' 'anitas' seid qu.—Ed.

(c) di er rithe. B.

(d) 'Dígal' 'digestion'. i.e. nem-phal, the allaying of the appetite of every one who digests his dinner'.—O'D.

(e) di cach la cain is diultad alaill is aidhliugud B.—Ed.

(f) B has Nimath críde ce (n) chíte mairb teim coich be a die inna roimdatar iarcliciu ba deo iar cummeniu.—Ed.

The words conit fas iar cuminiu, interlined in A, mean 'which is a wilderness after Cuimine'.—O'D.

See Todd Lib. Hymn. 71 et seq.—Ed. Cuimine was the poet's foster-son.—O'D. Die 'day' is written dia by O'Clery. W. dian 'days'.—Ed.

DETHBIR [Deitber B] 'lawful' i. e. di-ath-bir : di- 'not' across the ath- for cath ('battle') : bir 'a word', there will not be logomachy about it (a). dedbir Z. 606,—deithbhir i. dlighteach, O'Clery.—Ed.

DINIM [dinnim B] i. e. di-shn̄im 'without fatigue', i.e. there is no fatigue about it.

'untiredness' guesses O'D. O'Reilly glosses dinnim by dereoil 'feeble', which makes one think of W. dinwgf.—Ed. Sn̄imh means either 'sadness' or 'spinning' (cf. νῆσις, for σνῆ-σις?).

DÁSOCHT [dasacht B] 'madness' i. e. di-socht i. e. is not silent. Or dasocht i. e. di-osacht, it is not at rest, but [going] from place to place, both as to motion and speaking.

Dásacht 'insania', Z. 771, dásachtach 'insanus', Z. 777.—Ed.

Doss i.e. a name of a grade of poets i.e. from his resemblance to a bush (doss). The fochloc is a doss in the second year, i.e. (there are) four leaves upon him: the doss has four (to accompany him on his visitation) in the territory.

doss was the name of a poet of the third order.—O'D. He had 50 stories, Senchas Mór, 45.—Ed.

DIBURDUD [Diburtud B] i.e. dibrú aited 'expulsion of vengeance' (b), i.e. the end of the eric (is) this, i.e. fosterage on friendship [?] so that there be no evil-mind [ill-feeling] afterwards.

Similar glosses occur in H. 2.16 col. 101: Diubrudath i. e. dibru aited broc debta. Dibruted dibru aited niargairi in mbroc debta. Diburdud, translated 'compensation', occurs in Senchas Mór pp. 230, 232: cf. the verb diubraitir 'full satisfaction is made', O'D.'s supp. to O'R. Cinadus, translated 'friendship', seems a derivative from cín gen. cinad 'fault' 'crime'.—Ed.

DOBRITH i.e. dobur and ith i.e. water and corn: this is (the) allowance of people of repentance and penitence.

O'D guesses 'gruel' or 'pottage'. O'Davoren p. 79, also explains dobrith as a compound of dobur and ith. 'Or', he says, 'bir' 'water' in the British and ith 'corn' in the Gaelic. And it is to this that the author's mind was directed (when he said) that it was not easier for him to be a week (living) on corn and on water than to be fasting two (days) till night every month of the three months'.—Ed.

DOBUR, i.e. two things it signifies (c): dobur first, is water, unde dicitur dobarchú i.e. water-dog, i.e. an otter. Dobar also everything dark (d) i.e. everything opaque: do- a negative and pur from [Lat.] purus i.e. transparent. Dobur then i.e. di-phur i.e. impure i.e. impure or opaque.

DEDÓL 'twilight', i.e. dé-dhúal i.e. belonging (dúal) to night and belonging (dúal) to day, i.e. so that it is light mixed of darkness and of light.

(a) O'D translates the particle ath as if it was áth 'a ford' which of course makes the passage greater nonsense than it is.—Ed.

(b) O'D read dibru aited i. diubru aited, and translates 'the rendering of full satisfaction'.—Ed.

(c) fordingair 'so-called'.—O'D.

(d) In O'Davoren's glossary, p. 73, s. v. Dubh, docha should doubtless be dorcha.—Ed.

Dedól, i.e. dia-dhual i.e. two goodly distributions to God, actual and theoretic (corporal and spiritual works).

DROCH i.e. everything bad: ut est droch-ben 'a bad woman' or drochfher 'a bad man'.

W. drwg, Corn. droc.—Ed. Only used now as the first element of a compound—O'D. The dat. pl. drochaib occurs infra p. 61.—Ed.

DRAC i.e. a dracone quasi dracc i.e. fire or anger.

Drag i.e. teine ('fire') i.e. fearg ('anger'), O'Clery.—O'D.

DREND 'a quarrel', unde dicitur drennach 'quarrelsome': drenn also is 'rough', unde dicitur aindrend i.e. a mountain.

So O'Davoren, p. 73: drenn i.e. debaid ut est nis dring drenga 'he did not fight fights', whence it would seem that there was a second form dring: cf. Asglan and Asglang supra.—Ed. Drenn 'rough' frequently enters into topographical names.—O'D.

DEL [Deil B] i.e. a cow's teat, unde dicitur in the Bretha nemed 'until there are to him two milks of teats' (a), aliter dalta ('alumnus') dádel i.e. son of two cows.

'fostered on the milk of two cows' O'D. del = Gr. Θηλή, Ohg. tila. Hence apparently delech 'a milch cow' Senchas Mór, 64 and cf. dedel 'a calf', infra p. 61.—Deala i.e. sine no ballán ('a teat or a milkpail') O'Clery.—Ed.

DELLUGUD 'distinction' 'separation' i.e. deliugud of the (one) thing from another, as teats which are named delai [dela B] are separated. (Or) deliugud i.e. de-ailicad 'two divisions' [?]

cf. Eng. to deal, Nhg. theilen.—O'D.

DROICHET 'a bridge' i.e. every one passes over (doroichet) it from one side to the other of the water or the trench. Droichet, again, i.e. droich-shét, i.e. a straight road, for droch is everything straight i.e. unstraightness is not fitting for it, so that it be not slippery. Or droch-shét a bad road, from its badness.

DESHRUITH [desruith B] 'insignificant' [?] i.e. di-sruith, not a sruith 'senior', dignified person'.

Manx jeuish.—Ed. Mesgegra [Messgedra B] was a hero of Leinster, slain by Conall Cernach.—O'D.

DOMMAE 'poor' (c) i.e. de-sommae 'unwealthy'.

Hence dommetu 'poverty' Z. 272: cf. sommae 'dives' Z. 727, and Lib. Armach. 18a, 2.—Ed.

DUBACH 'sorrowful', i.e. di-shubach 'uncheerful', i.e. dí for negation, dé, or du or do for negation.

DUILBIR 'cheerless' i.e. di for negation.

Still in use: opposite of suilbhír 'cheerful'.—O'D.

DULBAIR 'not eloquent' i.e. do-labair 'ill-spoken', di-shulbair not subair 'eloquent', not so-labair.

Sulbair, whence the verb sulbairigim 'bene loquor' Z. 833, 586 = O. W. helabar.—Ed.

DIMSE 'ugliness' [?] i.e. di-maisse.

Dimsi is the reading of B. cf. dimes 'contemptio' Z. 832. The diuire of A is obviously wrong.—Ed.

DOETHCHAID 'poor' [?] i.e. do-sothchaid i.e. not sothchedach, 'not wealthy'.

A here is quite corrupt: cf. dothchaid supra p. 49: cf. the adjectives sothcedach, dothcedach, Senchas Mór, p. 40.—Ed.

DONÆ [Dona B] 'wretched' i.e. dí-áne i.e. to be without áne 'wealth'.

is uad rochínset B. Corco-laighdhe is a territory in the S.W. of the county of Cork, extending from Bandon to Crookhaven and to the river of Kenmare.—O'D.

DUARFHINE, a name for the poets, i.e. tribe of duars, duar, then, is a word. Duar-fine, then, the tribe who are for arranging, i.e. words. Duar also, is a name for a quatrain, ut dicitur in the Bretha nemed 'cia duar donesa nath', i.e. the quatrain that is most excellent for the panegyric. [no is airdercae B].

(a) unde dicitur temel ? temen B.—Ed. (b) O'D read de-scin for deg-scin. (c) 'Scanty' or 'scarce'.—O'D.

A (and O'D follows A in this) puts this article under Dairfine. B., however, has the distinct article Duarfine.—Ed.

DIAN-CÉCHT a name for the sage of the leechcraft of Ireland, i.e. dia na-cecht, 'god of the powers': cecht then is a name for every power. Diancécht i.e. deus salutis i.e. of health. Diancecht then is the god of health, ut dixit Néde mac Adnai cechtsam dercca aithscenmaim ailcne (a) 'we have mastered eyes with a pebble's rebound'.—ailcne i.e. a small splinter which flew [?] from the stone and struck his eye so that he was blind. He spoke of its power upon him. Non ut imperiti dicunt cecht som, i.e. cecht-som 'it blinded'.

The name of Dian-cécht occurs in the S. Gall incantations, Z. 926. As to Néde mac Adnai's blinding, see Three Irish Glossaries, pp. xxxix, xl.—Ed.

DÉÁCH ['a general name for a combination of two or more syllables up to octosyllables', 'a syllable'] i. e. de-fuach i. e. de-focul 'of a word' fuach a word i.e. meeting in a word [?] i.e. syllable with syllable. The déach is least. For though a syllable is called déach, this is not but it is called déach because it is under the déach, or is a déach's foundation, and it is from that (words) grow to the end of bricht wherein are i.e. eight syllables, as is said in Latin unus non est numerus, sed ab eo crescent numeri (b). Now the poets of the Gael reckon eight déachs, and a monosyllable (cos) is that dialt, i.e. because there is no joint (alt=artus) in it, and it is not divided. Recomarc is the second déach, i.e. from meeting with another, i.e. a syllable with a syllable, ut Cormac. Iarcomarc is the third déach, i.e. an after-meeting, after the first meeting, ut Cormacán. Files the fourth déach (c) because it folds (filles); if four be put round a tree downwards or round anything else, it is in a filled ('turn') that the quaternity folds round it (d), i.e. two hither and two thither, not uneven is that burden (ere), for there is no odd syllable (e) outside its two halves (f), ut est Mur-chert-ach-án. Not so the déach which is after it i.e. Clænre the fifth déach. It is called clænré, because it is divided unevenly [clæn 'obliquus'] though it is put round a thing, for heavier and more are three than are two; for there are five syllables in a clænré, as is fian-am-ail-ech-ar. The sixth déach is luibenchosach: luib i.e. luibne is the finger of the hand, and the cossa of the fingers from them upwards, i.e. the elbow and the hand (g), as far as the joint of the shoulder; and it is to this in a human being's body that the [sixth] déach is compared. Six joints from the end (h) of the finger to the joint of the shoulder. Six syllables also are in a luibenchossach, ut est fian-am-ail-ech-ar-ad. Claidennus, the seventh déach, i.e. claidem manus, i.e.

(a) This is the reading of B. O'D's version is "the flying of the stone exerted its power over my eye".—Ed.

(b) B translates this: ni numir a haon acht is uadh thasait na numrecha.—Ed.

(c) B reads: aimm an cethrama deich 'name of the fourth déach'.—Ed.

(d) "It folds equally about it, i.e. two on one side and two on the other: there is no unevenness in the number".—O'D.

(e) lit. "syllable of superfluity" (forcrith, forcraid).—Ed.

(f) 'In either division'—O'D.

(g) "the radius and the palm".—O'D.

(h) ind = O.W. hinn (gl. limite), Juvencus, p. 26, Goth, andeis 'end'.—Ed.

of the hand, i.e. claidem is all from the end of the finger to the joint, that is between the shoulderblade and the maethán: seven joints, then, are therein: seven syllables in a claidemnus: ut est fian-am-ail-ech-ar-ad-ard. Bricht is the eighth déach, because it is exalted (brígther); for thereof is made a nath: this, then, is the most excellent of them, that in which a nath is composed darinné ellcither nadellaing nath [?]. Eight joints, then, are from the end of the finger to the retaking of the maethán into the shoulderblade. Eight syllables also are in a bricht, ut est fian-am-ail-ech-ar-ad-ar-dae.

O'D's version of the first two sentences of the article is: " Déach, a metrical foot, i.e. defhuach, i.e. the meeting of words, for fuach means a word. Déach is the smallest division of a word; it is a technical name for a syllable, not because it is a syllable, but because it is the materies of which words grow from the dissyllabic to the octosyllabic".—Ed. Déach in H. 3, 18, p. 634, col. 4, is so written, and explained as défuach i. *comrac da sillab*i*. traig 7 gip lin sillab*i*h conrisidh* and iarsin is deech (sic) a ainm beos, "i.e. a meeting of two syllables, i.e. a foot; and whatever be the number of syllables it attains to afterwards, déach is still its name."—Ed.

DELIDIND [Delidin B, delind A] 'inversion of letters', i.e. separation (deiliugud) from the end (ind), ut est ref, i.e. a delidind of fer (a).

DELG i.e. del 'a wand' in its straightness, unless it be 'death'.

cf. deil i. echlasc, O'Don. Supp. to O'R. deil i. dealughadh 'separation' ib.—Ed.

DEMI [Deme B] i.e. everything neuter with the Latiner is deme with the Gaelic poet.

v. supra s.v. Abda Othnoe and infra s.v. Traeth.—Ed.

DOIDUINE, i.e. dag-duine 'a good man', ut Néde mac Adnai said innse glam do doiduiniu 'hard (to make) a satire on a good man'. Da, then, is everything good in the Welsh, ut dicitur gruc da, i.e. a good woman.

Doeduine i. dechduine occurs in H. 3. 18. p. 69, col. 2: doi 'good' is, like δῖος δίνειν, from the root div.—Ed.

DRUCHTA DEA, i.e. corn and milk, ut Scotti dicunt druchta dea Dromma Ceta 'the goodly [?] dews of Druim Ceta'.

Druim Ceata, a place on the river Roe, near Newtown Limavady in the Co. of Derry, where was held, A. D. 590, a convention at which S. Columb-cille presided.—O'D. déa—O'Clery writes drúchta déa—is the gen. pl. of dia 'god', and = Lat. divo-m.—Ed.

DERCAIN ('an acorn') i. dair-chnú i. cnú na darach í ('nut of the oak is it').

dercu is the nom. sg. H. 3. 18. p. 69. gen. dercon, Southampton Psalter, 57 a.—Ed.

(a) cf. Nasau infra, where the glossographer says that ne is the delidind of én.—Ed.

DERB-LOMA ('a churn') i.e. de urbaigh doniter í ('by cutting [?] it is made') no di-sherb i.e. ni serb ammbi inti ('not bitter what is in it').

Loma is the gen. sg. of loim 'milk'. Derb is written dcarbh by O'Clery, and explained by cuinneog (=W. cunnog 'milkpail') no ballán. He illustrates the word by the phrase m-hó-sa re hó na dearbha 'my ear at the ear (handle) of the churn'.—Ed.

DISCIR i. dis a coir ('little its justice') [dis] i. bec ('little').

Discir is 'fierce'.—Ed.

DUL .i. cainte ('a satirist') dofulachta é ara doilge ('unendurable is he for his harshness').

So O'Clery: Dul i. cainteoír no fer aoire ('man of satire') 7 as dofhulang é da bhrigh sin.—Ed.

DULEBAD i. dola fid vel quasi de lebad i. de levitate i. ar etroma ('for (its) lightness').

Same as the modern duileabhair 'foliage'.—O'D.

DUAIRC ('sad') .i. doairesina .i. ni hail là nech cid a descin ('one does not like at all to be seen') no diserc é ('or he is unamiable').

A living word: opposite to suairc.—O'D.

Doss .i. fili ('poet'), quasi duass ('a gift') .i. tinscra ('a reward') .i. tinde argaid ('a ring of silver').

Duasach 'bountiful', O'D. Gr. 340. O'Clery explains Tionnsca by coibhche, 'buying'; but it may also mean 'a reward' or 'payment'. In H. 2.16: Duas i. $\delta\omega\varsigma$ graece tinnsera i. tinde argit 7 esgra ('a ring of silver and a vessel'). The meaning of the glossographer seems to be that a doss or poet was so called from the duas or 'gift' that was made to him.—Ed.

DALL ('blind') a talpa no di-sell .i. cen tsuile ('without eyes') quia est sell .i. suil ('an eye').

Mac Firbis glosses talpa by pest dall.—O'D. Manx doal, W. dall. The Ir. sell 'eye' seems cognate with W. syllu 'to observe', Br. sellout, sellet.—Ed.

DAL i. a dalin hebraico sithula i. sithlad (a) in lenda dognither aga dail ('the filtering of the ale which is made in its distribution').

DAM a verbo domo, i.e. taiberim no ardam fria gabajl.

I do not understand this: taiberim is dono not domo (arin taibrid 'ut detis' Z. 441 taibre, toibre 'da' 'des' Z. 998 1050, 1051). (Perhaps the glossographer meant dam 'an ox', which is certainly cognate with domo, දාමාලිය, Skr. danya etc. ar-dhamk is now 'a plough': dáimhim, damhaim, 'I yield', 'grant', 'concede', dámtha 'concession' dámthain 'to concede'. O'D. suppt. may be connected with dam.—Ed.)

Docho interpretatur puto unde doig dicitur.

docho (like arco supra) is an example of the old vocalic ending of the 1 pers. present indic. active (see Beitraege zur vergl. sprachf. III. 47,48). It is cognate with dočew. Doig may here be the 3rd sg. pres. indic., but in Z. 85 it is an adj. 'verisimilis', compar. doču Z. 284. Doich a verbo docho puto H. 2. 16. col. 100.—Ed. Docho and doigh are still living words, for 'likely' 'probable': is doigh liom 'I think' or 'I am of opinion'.—O'D.

(a) Sithlaid (gl. crebrat) Lib. Hymn. ed. Todd. v. 215.

DERCAINED .i. dicredim ('disbelief') .i. im fagbail fochraicce ('as to obtaining reward').

Evidently a religious term to denote despair.—O'D. Read derchóined, and cf. derchóiniud 'desperatio' Z. 41.—Ed.

DEBAID ('a fight') .i. dede baothi aci no dede buith oci ('two follies it has, or two parties to be in it').

debaid, debuith 'lis' 'dissidium', Z. 607.—Ed.

DESS ('right hand', 'south') quasi des a dextera.

Ir. des, Z. 58, 147, = Skr. daksha: W. deheu, Corn. dyghow, Br. dehou = Goth. taihsvð, Ohg. zesawa, ðeziá.—Ed.

DÉR ('a tear') a graeco dero eado, quia cadunt lacrymae.

dér f. gen. dére, Manx jeir, is from dacr*=W. dagr, M. Bret. dazrou, ðákrv, lacruma, dacruma, Goth. tagr, Eng. tear.—Ed.

DESCAID ('lees') .i. caid iat 7 suabais, quia fit [ms. fid] des gach suabais. Descaid .i. daoscairnaigidh (a) na daine ebait é (i.e. caidh are they and pleasant, for des is everything pleasant. Descaid i.e. it debases the people who drink it').

Quaere this rendering, and cf. descad fo bairgin and descad pectho, Z. 738.—Ed.

DUILE .i. duilio [δουλείω] .i. servio .i. fogantaide [leg. fogantaigi, H. 3. 18, p. 69 col. 3].

So in H. 2. 16., col. 100: Duli, duleo graece. servio latine duli din fognamthide. Here are two more verbs with the vocalic ending in the 1st sg. pres. indic. act. In Old Irish mss. they would have been written duiliu and fogantaigu. They belong to the i- conjugation, like atchiu 'I see', airmiu 'I reckon', atsluindiu 'I call to', báigiu 'I fight', congaiiriū 'I call', gaibiu 'I take', guidiu 'I pray', ibiu 'I drink', tibiu 'I smile', etc.—Ed.

DALB .i. bréig ('a falsehood') a dolo .i. on ceilg.

dalbh in O'Clery, who has also the derivative dalbhda .i. doilbthi .i. draoidheacht 'magic'.—O'D. The Skr. dalbha, Gr. δόλος, O.N. tál are cognate.—Ed.

DESCUD imorro [Ms. ӯ] cind .i. des do cud ('pleasant to a head') .i. don chind iatside ('to the head are they') quia fit cud .i. cend ('head') ut dicitur falcud ('headwashing').

Another form of descaid supra, and should come immediately after that article.—O'D. falcud seems merely bad spelling for folcud=W. golchi 'lavare'.—Ed.

DRUTH .i. oinmit ('an oaf') quasi diraith cen fiach fair ina chintaib ('suretyless without a debt on him for his crimes').

acht aithgin ('save restitution') adds H. 3. 18, p. 69 col. 3. sef yw drud dyn ynfyd (oinmit), Welsh Laws, cited by Pughe s. v. Drud.—Ed.

DRUTH .i. merdreach ('a harlot') .i. dir aod iside .i. a losgad bad dír quia fit aodh .i. tine ('dír-aedh' is she, i. e. to burn her were right (dír), because aedh is 'fire').

(a) Ms. daoscair naigidh, but in H. 3. 18, p. 69, col. 3, daescairigid: cf. doiscari (gl. vilitatem) Z. 743.—Ed.

See Diez, Etym. Wörterbuch i. 159. s. v. Drudo. See also Mertrech infra. O'Davoren p. 75 has Druth i. droch duine 'malus homo'. As to aed v. supra p. 5, and add M. Bret. oaz 'jealousy'.—Ed.

DROIGEN ('blackthorn') i. trog-aon ('wretched one') aon is trogmaire do cranduib ar imad a delg ('one of the most miserable of trees because of (the) abundance of its thorns').

Cf. W. draen.—O'D. Corn. drain (gl. spina), Manx drine: in Zeuss 738 draigen glosses pirus (leg. prunus?).—Ed.

DRIS ('brambles') i. der-uis i. deroil ('small') 7 uis ('use'(a)) inde dicitur dreaan ('a wren') i. der 7 en i. en bec deroil no drui en i. en doni faitsine ('der 'small', and én 'bird' i.e. a little small bird, or drui-én 'a druid-bird' i.e. a bird that makes prophecy').

Driss (gl. vepres) Z. 139 [pl. drissi, Milau] Corn. dreisan.—O'D. pl. Corn. dreis (gl. vepres), O. Welsh drisi (gl. tribulis, gl. spinis, gl. dumos). Hence O. Ir. dristenach 'dumetum' Z. 777. O'Davoren p. 79, explains Drisiuc as 'he who is a bramble (dris) for tearing and who is a dog (cú) for churlishness or for shamelessness'.—Ed.

As to the dreán, W. dryw, in the life of S. Moling preserved in Marsh's Library (Dublin) 3. 1. 4. fol. 70, the wren is called "magus avium eo quod aliquibus praebet augurium".—O'D.

DERNA ('the palm of the hand') i. eodem modo [scil. from der 'small'] no dír-ni i. ni diriuch no reidh ('a thing straight or smooth') ut dicitur ni reidi derna ('a thing smoother than a palm').

DILMUIN i. dele muin i. deligud ('a separation') cin ní for a muin ('without any thing on his back, muin') no di lanamain i. cin mnáí aige ('without a wife with him').

Zeuss 25, 733, 739 explains dílmin, dílmuin by 'litus' [?]: O'Clery by dileas 'proprius', 'justus': the derivative dilmaine means 'rightful forfeiture' Senchas Mór, pp. 210, 258. O'Davoren pp. 73, 79 explains dilmuin by dilis 'rightful' and quotes ar it dilmuine air a reir bretheman 'for they are dilmuine according to a brehon's sentence' and nach duine dobeir a geall in dilmuine, which he explains by nech dilmuiniges a geall tarceann neich 7 donic aithrike 'whoever forfeits his pledge for any one and who pays security'.—Ed.

DELG ('a pin'). i. delseacc no'deleg ex quo legid [leg. ligat] duas partes togae.

DUBAD ('blacking') dybos [?] graece i. niger.

A derivative from the adj. dub (W. du) an u-stem. The oghamite Dufstano on the Killeen Cormac inscription, seems to represent a primeval Celtic Dubutanós gen. sg. of the u-stem Dubu-tanus 'Black-thin': cf. dub-glas (gl. ceruleus).—Ed.

DILI ('a flood') i. diluvium i. puratum i. scris no glanad an talman ('scraping or cleansing (b) of the earth').

gen. sg. dilenn, Note to Féilire, Dec. 11.—Ed.

DRAI ('an enchanter') i. dorua ái i. aircetal ar is tria dan dognisium a brechta ('i.e. poetry, for it is through his art that he makes his incantations').

This word (now draoi) is to be separated from drui 'a druid' gen. druid, and (I think) to be identified with the A.S. drý 'magus'.—Ed.

(a) 'growth'.—O'D. (b) "rinsing or washing".—O'D.

DITHO graece pauper latine unde dithachtach dicitur.

Read, perhaps, dithachta, and cf. dīth (gl. detrimentum)? Z. 26.—Ed.

DAG i. maith ('good') DROCH i. ole ('bad') unde dicitur droch do drochaib dag do dagaib ('bad to the bad and good to the good').

dag = W. da.—O'D. droch 'bad' = W. drwg, v. supra, p. 54.—Ed.

DROCH din i. roth carpuit ('wheel of a chariot').

Perhaps Gr. τροχός, if this be for θροκός: droch óir ('a hoop of gold'?) occurs in Lib. Arm. 17 b. 1.—Ed.

DICMAIRC ['theft'] i. cin athcomare ('without asking').

Read Dichmairc as in Senchas Mór, pp. 166, 172. Diochmaire i. goid ('theft') O'Clery.—Ed.

DIBADH i. abdulbas ('an enormous death').

In all genealogical books, this word is used in the sense of extinction, to become extinct, or to die without issue, which is evidently the idea intended to be expressed by abdul-bhás.—O'D. Diobhadh i. bás.—O'Clery. Dibath i. adhbul bás i. iarsinní na facuib nech dia éis ('because it leaves not any one after it'), H. 3. 18. p. 68, col. 3: fai-thi cen dibad, Colmán's Hymn, 44. Is diba (see Gaire infra) W. disu, cognate with dibadh?—Ed.

DEDEL i. laogh bó ('a cow's calf').

Dedhel i. láogh bó.—O'Clery. Perhaps a reduplicated form: cf. del supra p. 52, and Goth. daddja lacto.—Ed.

DER i. abdal ('great') ut est dermar i. abalmor ('very big', 'immense').

Used as a prefix.—O'D. See Zeuss 834, where dermár glosses enormis, immense.—Ed.

DAIF i. deogh ('drink').

O'Clery agrees, and adds as an example ro ól a dhaiſ i. do ibh a dhigh 'he drank his drink'.—O'D.

DER i. ingen ('a girl').

v. supra s. v. Ainder. If the word is really Irish, it might be referred to the root dha 'to drink', 'suck', whence del, delech, dedel. But it is impossible to connect it with duh, whence duhitar, δυγατίη, daughter.—Ed.

DOE i. duine ('a human being').

cf. Doiduine supra, and qy. if this gloss has not originated in a misunderstanding of that word. Skr. dhava-s would be dó in Irish, as lava 'hair' is ló.—Ed.

DORBLUS ('darkness') i. dobar-lux ('darkness-light') i. etarscarad lai 7 aidhqui ('separation of day and night').

Seems to mean diluculum, or the twilight of dawn: as to dobar see dobur i. each ndoirche supra, p. 53.—Ed.

DLUG i. acobar ('a desire').

Slugh i. acobar, H. 2. 16. col. 100. The word occurs in a quatrain attributed to Colum cille in H. 3. 11. p. 80: Nóebrí gréine glan, As caoime cach dlug, Atach n-amra dam, Ar slúag ndemna ndub ('The holy, pure King of the sun, who is more loveable than any desire, an admirable prayer for me against a host of black demons').—Ed.

DOBRACHE i. flinchaise ('moist') ut est fer manuan anduain an merligh ('in the Poem of the Robber').

|---|--|
| Ulcha dobrach andomnach a luan a mairt mac meirnech (a) | A beard moist on Sunday, On Monday, on Tuesday he is a mariner [?] |
| fo bratach senrech sroiglech (b) sruamach maigneche mil meirlech | Under sheets prosperous, flowing [?] With great hosts [?] is the plundering hero. |

Dobhrach is an adj. from dobhur 'water'.—O'D. The first line of the quatrain and part of the second are correctly rendered. O'D's translation of the remainder is mere guesswork.—Ed.

DAM hebraice damae enim tacens interpretatur.

H. 2. 15 adds: ut dicitur fer fordaim.—O'D. fer for dami eo quod tacet H. 2. 16, col. 99.—Ed.

DIAMAIN i. di-anim ('without blemish') [i. neamhainmheach, O'Clery].

So O'Davoren, 76, 'Diamuin i. glan 'pure' ut est diamuin tortach torbach 'pure, fruitful profitable', and it says in (another place) diamuin fri slan i. e. he is pure to pay eric to her.—Ed.

DIAMAIN i. idan ('faithful') i. main diada ('godly wealth').

dimáin i. idhan i. máin diádha, H. 3. 18. p. 68. col. 3.—Ed.

DEACH i. de fuach i. comrue da sillab conristar conad deach ainm gach sillaiibe iarsin ('the union of two syllables that are reached (c), so that deach is the name of every syllable after that').

I suspect that something has been dropt after 'da sillab'. See citation from H. 3, 18 p. 634, supra s. v. Déach. O'D reads conristar and, and translates "the union of two syllables is reckoned in it" (and).

DUIS i. dusma graece mirabilis latine.

O'D supposes that 'dusma' is meant for θαυμαστός. The Irish word is explained uasal 'noble' by O'Davoren p. 76, who quotes barc co n-duisib ingantaib i. co seduib uaislib 'a barque with noble treasures'; but this seems a blunder, for uaislib here obviously translates ingantaib the dat. pl. of inganta 'admirable', and moreover, O'Clery has duis i. sed ('a treasure'), or-dhuiise i. seoid ordha 'golden treasures'.—Ed.

(a) feirnech H. 3. 18, p. 635, col. i.—Ed.

(b) Sernech soimlech, ibid.—Ed.

(c) 'turned', O'D.

QUINTA LITTERA.

EMAIN 'Emania' i.e. eo-muin i.e. eo 'pin' and muin 'neck': eo-muin, then, i.e. a pin behind or across a neck i.e. a brooch (a). Thus was the outline of the fort described by the woman (Queen Macha), when she was sitting (b) she took her pin from her garment to measure around her with her pin. Further, then, the pin extended from her eastwards before her than when returning behind her. Therefore the fort is uneven.

B adds: No em ab ema [ἀλμα] id est sanguine quia ema sanguis est (c). Uin i.e. unus quia sanguis unius hominis [effusus est] in tempore conditionis e[j]us. The superstition here referred to, as to the need of immolating a human being to insure the stability of a building, is still current in India. See further Three Irish Glossaries pref. xli, note: see too Irish Nennius, Additional Notes, p. xxiv, for Johannes Malalas' legend of the foundation of Antioch by Seleucus Nicator.—Ed. The ruin of the fort of Emhain, now called the Navan fort, is about two miles W. of Armagh.—O'D.

EMUIN [Emon B] 'twins', i.e. é a negative. Emuin, then, is é-oen i.e. not one but two [lelab 'children' B] are born there; and the poets afterwards inserted muin (the letter m) in the middle of it to avoid error [?], for to them emoen or emon was finer than e-oen. Aliter Emon i.e. é- a negative and mon: the mon, then, is μόρος in the Greek, the μόρος is unus [isin latin 'in the Latin' B]. Emon, then, non unus sed duo [.i. ni hoen ni acht da ní B].

These latter etymologies possibly produced the legend of Macha, daughter of Sainred mac Imbaith, bearing twins at Emain Machae. See H. 2. 18, p. 80 l. c. 1. With emuin (= O'Clery's eamhain, i. dá ní 'two things') are connected emnatar (gl. geminantur) Z. 671 and eamhnadh i. dubladh, O'Clery: eamain is also 'jugum' O'D. Supp. I would connect Skr. yama 'twin', yama-m 'a pair'.—Ed.

ECMACHT ['impotent'] i.e. é-cumachta, for he is not in power.

écmacht (gl. nequam) Z. 34, 195, seems to mean 'slight' infra s. v. Eces.—Ed.

ELIUGUD [Eligud B] i.e. é-lugud 'non-lessening' i.e. it is not less at all.

'No remission, so that there is no remission of it at all'. Still used [spelt eiliughadh] to mean claiming debt or right of any kind.—O'D.

EISIRT [Esert B] i.e. eis a negative, idem quod non, and fert a grave. Eis-fert, then, he is not entitled to a tomb.

See Coairt supra: Eissirt is probably a pauper.—O'D.

(a) 'Eo-muin then is the pin of the neck.'—O'D.

(b) The passage interlined in A means 'examining her garment, she measured around her.'—Ed.

(c) MS. sanguiness.

ERBALL 'a tail' i.e. iar-ball, the member of the end of the animal.

Erball [Manx arbyl] is still the word for a tail, but it is incorrectly pronounced riubal, or rubar or eribal. It enters largely into the topographical names, under the anglicized forms of warble, rubble, etc.—O'D. ball = φαλλός (Siegfried).—Ed.

ELGON i.e. eol-quin, who was wounded (gontæ) is known (eol) to him.

Cognizance or knowledge of crime: committing crime with malice prepense.—O'D. who translates 'it is known to him whom he wounds'. Elquin occurs infra p. 68 and also in Senchas Mór p. 262, where it is rendered 'cognizance'.—Ed.

EDEN [edenn B] 'ivy' quasi heder, ab eo quod est hedera [i.e. edind B.]

Still the common word for 'ivy' in most parts of Ireland. Cluain eidnech, the name of a famous monastery in Queen's Co., is translated latibulum hederosum in the life of S. Fintan.—O'D. W. eiddew, Br. iliō or eliō, M. Bret. ilyeauenn, where note the change of d to l and cf. salur i. siur 'a sister', Duail Laithne.—Ed.

ELG i.e. Ireland.

B adds no ordriice 'or noble'. So O'Clery: Ealg i.e. oirdheirc.—Ed. Elg or Inis ealga, signifying the noble island, was the third name given to Ireland according to Keating.—O'D.

ESSÍNE [Essen B] 'an unfledged bird' i.e. ess- and én 'bird': ess- is a negative, quod non én-cadach i.e. it has not got feathers. Essíne then, (is) not a feathered bird but callow.

EMDHE i.e. discovered, or to see or look.

Einde no Eimdae i.e. findta no deicci, B. See infra p. 69.—Ed.

EDEL 'a prayer or supplication'; ut dixit Cumine the Tall

My three Brans, [my three Brans]
To God send up a prayer (edel):
Bran of the Three Plains, Bran of Leinster, Bran the Fair, near Femen.

So O'Clery.—O'D. Has the W. adolwg 'to beseech', from at-aul-uc, adolwyn ib. any thing to do with this, or is edel cognate with Lat. peto, root PAT?—Ed.

ESSEM ('a rope or strap') i.e. ess 'an ox' and semh a brace (corait); so the essem is a brace uniting one yoke (cuing) to the other, or to the ox or to the oxen.

The word (corait) which I have rendered 'brace', O'D translates 'a yoke or strap that bound one ox to another in ploughing'. Ess is = the W. ych pl. ychain, = Eng. ox pl. oxen: Skr. ukshan. The semh (saim B) is perhaps cognate with ōμός, Skr. samam, Goth. samana 'zusammen'.—O'Clery has Eisimh i.e. gach ni bhios a g-coraid no a bh-focair a cheile.—Ed.

ESRECHT (Esricht B) i.e. not bound by law.

ni thaircella (taircella B) recht is inaccurately rendered, but I cannot correct the rendering. The word seems only accidentally similar to esrechtaid (gl. exlex) Z. 766. O'Clery has Eisreacht i.e. dilleachda.—In O'D's Suppt. eisrecht gen. eisrechta is explained by 'a toy', 'a little cat, dog or pet of any kind', and so in Senchas Mór pp. 124, 138, 156.—Ed. O'D explained it as 'any thing or persons not recognised by law'.

ETARCE [Etarche B] i.e. γῆ græce terra interpretatur latine. Etarce, then, is lower land (γῆ) between (etar) two higher lands (a) i.e. between two ridges. Etarce i.e. etrigē hollows [?] in the earth.

Etarce is now written eitre, and used in Kilkenny, Waterford, etc. to signify a furrow.—O'D. The ce (cē) in etarce seems identical with the cē in bith-chē, Manx kee 'the earth'. and is perhaps = the Old Celtic cēva 'a cow': cf. Skr. go 'cow' and 'the earth'.—Ed.

ESPAE [Esbae B] 'idleness' i.e. eis-beo, there is no life in it, or there was not (nī ba) anything at all, quasi es-ba. Esba, again i.e. es- a bá, its goodness is es-(the negative particle).

esbae Milan 58. espach 'idle' Preface to Fiacc's hymn. Easba i. díomhaoineas, O'Clery.—Ed.

EDAM 'eating' i.e. edo I eat, i.e. I use victuals. Edam then (is applied) to the use of victuals (b) and to the communion of every food that man consumes. Not egham ut imperiti dicunt.

The confusion between dh and gh must have set in when this gloss was written.—Ed.

ESCONN i.e. Escann i. e. esc 'water', and cann the name of the vessel. Escann, then, a name of a vessel (c) that is (used) in distributing (d) water, with its handle through its middle.

Esconn is probably borrowed from spondeum. The esc here cited seems cognate with the O.W. uisc now wysg 'a stream'.—Ed.

ESCANN also, i. e. sescann with the Britons, and canna nominatur.

The Old Welsh sescann 'a reed' here cited, now hesgen 'a sedge', 'a rush', is an interesting example of the preservation in Welsh, to a comparatively recent period, of the s in anlaut. So in Juvencus segeticior now hygedigion, sermain Lib. Land. p. 273, now hirfaen, 'a long stone', Su (gl. deus) gloss on Fiacc's hymn, now Hu.—Ed.

EIRGE [Erge B] i.e. to rise, a verbo erigo.

So O'Clery: Eirghe i. comhghabhail i. comhthoghail. Hence es-ēirge 'resurrection'. Here in B follows the article Esched i. nepscith 'non-slackness', which in H. 2. 16, col. 105 is Esched i. escith i. niscith ar aurlataid 'not slackness in obedience'. This seems escaid (gl. impiger) Lib. Hymn. ed. Todd, p. 15.—Ed.

ESSAD 'disease' i.e. es-sid i. nī-sid 'not peace': for this is peace there, the health everlasting (e).

So O'Clery: Easad i. galar. Essad may perhaps be from the neg. part. es and sad* = Skr. sādhu 'perfect'. O'Clery has also Essāoth i. slainte ('health').—Ed.

ENBRET (Enbroth B) i.e. en 'water' and bret (broth B) 'corn' i.e. corn (is) braudh ut Nortmannica lingua est.

O'D conjectures that enbroth is 'gruel'.—Ed.

ENGLAS i.e. green water.

Still used to denote 'milk-and-water', but generally pronounced eanglais. Nī bh-fuair me le n-ōl acht eanglais liath is well understood in most parts of Ireland.—O'D.

(a) B has eter da talmain, a good example of the acc. dual of an n-stem.—Ed.

(b) airbert bith 'mastication'.—O'D. (c) 'filling'.—O'D.

(d) This is from B, which reads Esconn i. escand i. esc uiscē 7 and nomen ind lestair. Esceand din [aium lestair etc.—Ed. (e) 'for peace is health everlasting'.—O'D.

ENBRUITHE i.e. en 'water', i.e. water of bruithe, i.e. of flesh (feola B).

Still the living word for 'broth': bainfidh mise eanbhruithe asta, arsa Tadhg 6 Coinnialain leisna h-easbogoibh.—O'D.

EOGAN [Eogen B] i.e. eugen i.e. graece: ει bonus or bonum latine dicitur, gen, however, is from γένεσις: γένεσις autem generatio est. Eo-gen then is bonageneratio.

EOGANACHT i.e. offspring (icht) race or progeny which sprung from Eogan.

ETHUR [Ethor B] 'a ferryboat' i.e. eth-ur i.e. it goes (ethaid) from brink (ur) to brink (of the river — na haba B).

ethar (gl. stlata) Z. 743. im ethur bis oc imorcor a purt i port 'for a ferryboat that is passing from bank to bank'.—Senchas Mór, p. 126. Eathar i. ártrach iomchair, O'Clery.—Ed.

ETARPORT quasi eter-bert, i.e. between two burdens. Etarbort (a) a name for fortune among the druids.

ba ingnad lium etarport 'a marvel to me was (the) luck'—in one of the poems prefixed to the Milan codex, is an old example of this word.—Ed.

ENBARR ('froth') i.e. én 'water' [and barr cacumen, spuma]. Enbarr, then, i.e. froth (ían) that is on the water: inde dicitur gelither énbarr 'whiter than foam'.

B adds: enbarr din uan tuinde 'froth of a wave'. (uan = W. ewyn, Bret. éon 'écume').—Ed.

ENECLANN [B, Enechlann A] ('compensation (b) for one's honour') i.e. because it is fixed (clantar) for a person's honour (enech), whatsoever is due of live property or dead property, which his hand (retaliating) does not contest with him (i.e. take from him). The full price of every one's honour according to (his) rank is what he is entitled to.

O'D's version of the first sentence is "i.e. what is ordained (by law) for a man's honour, of living property or dead property, less by what his own hand (by retaliation) disputes with (deducts from) him": eneclann dligidh 'lawful honourprice', Senchas Mór, p. 232: is fo deithberes a n-enecluinne 'it is according to the difference of their honourprice', ibid. p. 60. Eneclann i. eraic, O'Clery.—Ed.

ENECH-RUICE i.e. enech-rú-cian i.e. far (cian) from the face (inchair dat. pl. of enech) is seen its rú i.e. its blushing. enech [-ruice], then, is a face-blood-reddening, as is "Son of thy mother, son of thy sister, dependent fellow, itinerant fellow"! Where this (satire) does not apply (c), a seventh of the price of honour is the compensation for it.

each gres cach enechruice is for cintaib treisi atá 'every attack, every (verbal) insult is among (the) offences of three days', Senchas Mor, 162.—Ed.

ENECH-GRISS, it is at the beginning of the tongue-trespass, it has a right to be: in some cases it is at the end. It is the beginning of the eric of the tongue-trespass, as thus:

Any property stolen out of thy land
Assure thou not thy sanctuary or protection.

(a) This is the reading of B.—Ed. (b) 'damages' O'D.

(c) ni na bita diles (A) = ni nad bitai diles B. O'D's version is clearly not literal, but I do not venture to alter it.—Ed.

Enechgris occurs in Senchas Mór, 232, translated 'a bodyfine for causing a person to blush'. O'D's translation is not accurate. The expression ainech gres occurs in one of the Milan poems (Goidilica, p. 19). Ainech, enech means 'face' (Skr. anīka) or 'honour' and gris seems from the following gloss to mean a 'judgment' or 'decision': Gris a crisi spīris graece judicium latine, H. 2. 16. col. 114.—Ed.

ERC i.e. heaven.

So O'Davoren p. 81, and see infra s. v. Ebron. Pictet (Kuhn's Zeitschrift, iv. 355) has compared with this word the Skr. arka 'ray', 'sun'.—Ed.

ERCNE i.e. bá a uad [bai uadh B] i.e. cows which are given one for his uad ('poetical composition').

EBRON i.e. iron, ut est in the Bretha nemed: ebron im a muinither meirg 'iron about which rust corrodes' i.e. about which rust comes and eats.

So O'Davoren, who writes Ebrón, and gives the mutilated quotation gle fo earc n-ebron, which O'Donovan informed me was 'swear by heaven (that thou wilt not receive as a pledge) iron (about which rust corrodes)'.—Ed.

ETAN, daughter of Diancécht, a poetess [?] de cuius nomine dicitur etan i.e. a poetical composition.

See Tbre infra. As to Diancécht v. supra, p. 56.—Ed.

ÉCES ('a poet') i.e. écmacht-ces i.e. écmacht a ches 'slight his trouble' (a) i.e. to compose in four divisions of (the) science of poetry.

EPSCOP FÍNA in the Sea-Laws, i.e. a vessel for measuring wine among (apud) the merchants of the Norsemen (b) and Franks. Aliter Epseop i. eipi ['a grain'] for ['upon'], cai ['a road'] abba 'pater', cai cum grano (c). [Aliter], Epseop, i.e. from episcopus.

Escop fína is probably the true reading: cf. Corn. escop gl. lefiste i.e. lelista, and the Crimean Gothic schkop 'calicem', σκύφος, scyphus: cf. also esbicum infra p. 69.—Ed.

ESNAD i. ni nath ('not nath') acht [?] is duchand ar ba hesnad aim in chuil dignitis na fianæ umanbfulacht fiansæ ('but it is duchand, for esnad was the name of the music which the Fians [champions] used to make around their fulacht fiansæ').

So O'Davoren, p. 81: Easna i. abhran ('song') ut est cach aon diambí esna ('every one who will have song') i. canfas cobinn ('who will sing sweetly'), and O'Clery: Easnadh i. ceol i. amhran no binneas. O'D renders duchand by 'warnoise'.—Ed.

ERRACH ('spring') i. urughad ['freshening'] ondi is ver ['from ver'] quia dicitur vernatur i. uraighid.

ESBICUL i. ol bie as ('a drink of little from it').

A small drinking-vessel.—O'D. for espiciul (see infra, s. v. Escræ), and this for * escipul, borrowed from the Lat. scyphulus as escop, supra p. 67, from scyphus.—Ed.

ESCRÆ core mbis ag dail uisci ('a caldron which is for distributing water').

So O'Clery, who adds: easc i. uisge.—Ed.

ESC i. uisce ('water').

v. supra p. 65, s.v. Esconn and infra p. 92, s.v. Iasc.—Ed.

ENDE i. fomnae nobidh domenmæ ('anxiety which is on the mind').

seems a mistake for ende or énde, supra p. 64. Thus in H. 3. 18. p. 70. col. 1. éndhe i. fomnae nobith do menma ut dictum est A maic ni maith in dogni, Indredh tire muscraig (a), Éndhe na tairsit occa Dub-tíre dá glas fota ('O son, not good what thou dost, to plunder the land of Muskerry: beware that warriors do not come to the black lands of long Tír-dá-glas').—O'Clery, however, has Enne i. fech no fionn.—Ed.

ESCAND din i. lestar bis ag dal usge isescand la brethnae unde canda nominatur ('a vessel which is for distributing water is escand with the Britons, unde canna nominatur').

v. Esconn supra p. 65.—Ed.

ESCRÆ i. ab aes 7 ærea [leg. es 'water' 7 aere?] i. uma ('copper') dailem no un. dailem.

Escræ is a vessel of some kind (escra fina, Senchas Mór 202). In H. 2. 16, col. 105, ess is said to be aqua 'quia estuat i. fervet', and espicul and esconn are referred to ess.—Ed.

Esse ab esoce i. piscis.

O'Clery explains ess by long 'ship', and quotes the following: ni dheachaidh áon ess tresan muir ruaidh acht an ess umhaidhe 'no vessel passed through the Red Sea but the copper vessel'.—O'D. But esse is not ess.—Ed.

EDON ('to wit') quasi idon i. scyendum ut dicitur imchaisin inedon. idon nomen scyens no edon unde andum (sic) contrarium videns.

imchaisin (leg. imchaisiu) in-edon seems to mean 'to consider knowingly or heedfully'. edon, which is always contracted thus 'i.' in Zeuss, occurs written at full in Lib. Armach. 18a. 2.—Ed. Edhon is still in common use for 'viz.' 'to wit' or 'i.e.'.—O'D.

ESCA ('moon') i. aosca ar atat aosa ili and o aon co trichait ('for there are many ages (aesa) therein from one to thirty').

Escae (gen. escai) is neuter in O. Ir. see Z. 247. Hence neph-escaide (gl. σκοτομήνη) Z. 830. The Manx eayst shews the usual change of sc to st.—Ed.

Es i. ecc ('death') unde eslene ('a shroud') 7 eleg estechtae ('bell of death', 'passing-bell').

eslene is still the common word for a shroud.—O'D. The glossographer evidently regarded it as a compound of es 'death' (ess i. bás, O'Clery) and léine or léine (gl. camisa). Estechtae is the O. Ir. étschta, gen. sg. of étschta.—Ed.

EMON ab ema [aiμa] 7 uno. Emon din unius sanguinis no emon græce (a) nostris interpretatur non unus no emon ema [qy. aiμa] græce juga manum [qy. ζυγόν, ζεῦγος, μόνον] ar is dis doib a cuingg ('for they are two in one yoke').

Emuin airchidail ('poetical compositions' b) ar it cosmaili andilethcomarc unde anemuin dicitur i. ni hemuin acht is cethairreach ('for their two semidistichs are alike, unde anemuin i.e. not twins (emuin) but it is quadruple').

So in H. 12. 76, col. 103: Emon airchitel ar it cosmaili adalethcomarc unde anamain dicitur i. ni emon acht is ceatarreig.—Ed.

(a) The glossographer supposes a Greek αιμονος.—Ed. (b) a 'poetical composition'.—O'D.

FLAITH i.e. fo-laith 'a good lord': i.e. flaith a champion [? fochla]. Flaith also means two things [more] i.e. beer and milk, ut est in the Senchas Mór: [p. 64] 'flaith [laith B] find for tellraig' 'white milk on (the) ground' i.e. the cows' milk on the earth.

see Fochla infra, p. 80. O'Clery has Flaith i. tighearna 'lord' and Flaith i. cuirm no lionn: cf. flaith (gl. dominium, dominus) Z. 6, 261. Slav. vladiti regere.—Ed.

FÍNE ('a vine') ab eo quod est vinea, [on finemuin B] for the u consonant with the Latiner is fern ('f') in the Gaelic, ut est vir i.e. fer, visio i.e. fiss, vita i.e. fit, virtus i.e. firt, quamvis hoc non per singula currat.

Fit and firt are loans. Fer (W. gwr) and fiss are cognates.—Ed.

FÍN also ab eo quod est vinum.

FERIUS [Feirius B] i.e. fiar-shes i.e. of the feri (?) of the tree.

'verjuice', perhaps: Mid. Bret. verius.—Ed.

FIM (a) i.e. drink.

So O'Clery: Fim i. deoch. Fim i. fion. dodáileadh fim a creithir i. do daileadh fin a cuach no as corn. And see infra p. 80.—Ed.

FELL i.e. a steed, unde capell ('cart-horse') nominatur.

So in H. 2. 16, col. 109, fell i. equus unde fellæ dicitur du i rabatar eich ('a place wherein were steeds'): n. pl. fill: cf. farii 'equi', Ducange cited by Diez s. v. Haras.—Ed.

FELC i.e. 'butts of stakes'; unde dicitur forólltar findoirbed [forrollatar finnairbed B] felc fill 'horses leaped over butts of white stakes' (b).

FLESC i.e. wet.

W. gwlych 'moisture' m., an O. Celtic vlisco-s*.—Ed.

FITHAL i.e. nomen judicis. Fithal also, a cow's calf.

Fithal was a judge to king Cormac mac Airt.—O'D. cf. W. gwedyd 'to say'. Fithal 'a calf' is perhaps borrowed from vitulus.—Ed.

FERB, three things it means i.e. ferb 'a cow' in the first place: ut est in Senchas Mór [p. 64] teora ferba fir'a i.e. three white cows. Ferb, also, a blotch which is put on the face of a man after a satire or after a false judgment, ut est gel fir nat ferba forbertatar for a inchaib iarom ("the gel (?) of a man (a)

(a) So B. A has Fin.—Ed. (b) 'Over the firm white stakes' O'D.

(c) 'Fair is the man'.—O'D. The Irish passage is thus given in B: gel fir ferba nad forbrethar for iarnincaib.—Ed.

on whose face blotches have not grown afterwards"). Ferb also i.e. a word, ut est rofess it [is' B] fás in senechas i condelg [coinnilg B] ferb ndé 'It is known that the Fenechas is void in comparison with the words of God'.

So in a note on the Amra Choluimchille: FAIG FERB FITHIR bid dana ferb ic sluind trí rét i. ferb briathar, ut dicitur 'mad iar ferbaib firamraib berlai bías bain' no 'is fás fenechas ic ferbaib d' . Bid dana ferb bolc ut dicitur 'turbait ferba fora gruadaib iar cíbrethaib' i. iar cloenbret(h)aib. Bid dana ferb [b6] ut dicitur 'teora ferba fira dosnacht' i. rosimmaig Assal ar Mog Nuadhat'. O'Davoren also, s. v. Cliath p. 64, glosses cliath ferba by immad briathar in filed 'the poet's abundance of words'.—Ed.

FIR i.e. 'white', ut Fachtna son of Sencha dixit: fordomdiur tri dirnu di argut airiu ar teora fira ferba son aenerc nécoscc iter lathi Lúgb li sula sochar (a) 'I have a right to three dirnas of silver in addition for three white (fira) cows, for each shapely cow (b) between the scales of Lugba (c), beautiful to the eye, profitable'. This, then, was the appearance of the iuchna [?] cows of Echaid Echbél from Scotland, which Cúrui captured (from the Ulstermen) i.e. white (fira) cows, with red ears.

B adds: Dotiedis din na bai-sin echdi echbeil for ingeilt a haird-echdai echbeil a halbai a crich dairriattoi co mbitis i seimniu ulad torxal iarom curi ar ultaib. 7 rl. 'these cows, then, of Echaid Echbél used to come to graze from Ard Echdai Echbeil from Scotland, into (the) province of Dalriada, and they used to be in Seimne Ulad. Cúroi, however, carried them off by force from the Ulstermen'.—O'D. Fachtna mac Senchath is mentioned in the Senchas Mór pp. 18, 22, as an author of judgments.—Ed.

FERENN [Firend B] i.e. a garter which is around a man's [niad 'a hero's', B] calf, in cuius vicem crechtair id crechta im cholpa fer (d). Now, whatever was the fitting property [?] of any one, it is thereof they used to make the garters, verbi gratia, a garter of gold around a king's leg. Ferenn also is a name for the girdle that is round the man, unde dicitur tachmaic snechta ferna fer i.e. the snow reached to men's girdles.

Ferenn or firenn seems radically connected with M. H. G. wieren 'umflechten', Ohg. viara 'corona', perhaps Fr. guirlande. The word indle, which I have doubtfully rendered 'property', O'D translates 'girdle'. In B the passage is: amail nobit indili comadais caich is di din dognitis na feirniu. In O'D's supplement to O'R., indile is glossed by tormach 'augmentum', and is also said to mean 'cattle of any kind'. In Senchas Mór, p. 184 indle is 'cattle'. The phrase adopart teora leth-indli 'he gave three half-indles' occurs in Lib. Armach. 17 b 1.—Ed.

FOCILOCON [Fochlac B] nomen of a grade of poets, so called from his likeness to a fochlocan ('brooklime'): two leaves on it the first year, two (on attendance) on him, the fochloc, in the territory.

B has ara cosmailius fricois fochlacain. See Clí and Doss supra: tricha la fochluc 'thirty (stories) with a fochloc', Senchas Mór p. 46.—Ed.

(a) B has Fortomidiur tri dirna do argat arræ ar teoræ ferbai firæ fonoen nerc necuscc iter laithi lugha li sulai sochar.—Ed.

(b) ere: Pictet (Kuhu's Zeitschrift iv. 355) compares the Welsh adjective erch 'darkbrown'.—Ed.

(c) Lugh mac Echlienn.—O'D.

FRECRÆ ('an answer') i.e. fri-cach-re to every re (i.e.) that which gives information to every thing (rét).

frecre, frecrea n. Z. 269, Z. 1028. dat. sg. frecreu Z. 1054. nom. pl. frecrea Z. 1053, from frith and gaire.—Ed.

FOGAL ('trespass') i.e. fo hol i.e. under covert, not openly the foghal is committed.

foghail gen. foghla 'spoliation' O'Don. Suppt.—Ed.

FOLA BRITH i.e. the worn wool (foloe) of the good (báí) cloak (bruit).

Qy. Not in B.—As to Fola (i. brat, O'Clery) see Aithle supra, p. 7.—Ed.

FOLOMAN or folman [Foilmen B] a name for a bare worn cloak (a) quasi folom shind i.e. without fur (wool) upon it.

B has 'quasi follumman'.—Foilmen i. drochbhrat, O'Clery. The word may, like Skr. varman 'armour', come from the root vri.—Ed.

FOCHONNAD [Fochnod B] 'firewood' i.e. fo-chon(n)ad: blazing wood which is put in (or under) a fire. Geltine also is a name of this firewood. Inde dicitur geltine gile (giliu B) fochonnad 'geltine is brighter than fochonnad': it is not its flame: et de eo dictum est grian in gaim geltine 'the sun of the winter is firewood'.

With fo-chonnad cf. condud, supra, p. 44: with geltine M. Bret. guelteff 'trabes'.—Ed.

FÉDILMID [Feldimith B] i. fedil-maith i.e. enduring or everlasting good.

a man's name, now rendered 'Felix'.—O'D. Fedelmid Lib. Arm. 16 b. 1, gen. sg. Feidilmedo ib. 16 a. 2, Feidelmedo ib. 16 C. 1. Fedelmheo ib. 16 c. 2: feidhil i. ionraic O'Clery.—Ed.

FESCOR [Fescer B] 'evening' quasi fescer i.e. vescer hoc est vesper i.e.

FEISS AIDCHE 'a night's supper' (i.e.) of food, ab eo quod est vescor.

FÍS ('a vision') i.e. a visione.

So O'Clery: fís i. taidhbhsí: n. pl. físi, Z. 1041, gl. 29.—Ed.

FUAL i.e. bual 'water', inde dicitur dochotar ar n-asai [dochuatar ar nasa B] hi fual i.e. imbal 'our sandals went into the water'.

Fual now means 'urine'. So in one of the St. Gall incantations, Z. 926, argalar fuail 'contra morbum urinae', thúal (= do fhuail) 'urinam tuam'.—O'D. O'Davoren p. 92 glosses fual by salchur 'filth'.—Ed.

FOTHrucud [fothrucad B] 'bathing' quasi othrucud (othrucad B), i.e. for sick persons (othrachaib) i.e. for lepers it is oftenest. Sed melius fo-thraicit [fotruicit B]: i.e. when a person laves his feet and his hands this is indlot (i.e. lotum 'washing', i.e. washing the extremities): fothrucud, then, is fo-throicit i.e. trochit i.e. body, i.e. the whole body under (fo) it (scil. the water).

gen. pl. fothaircthe 'balnearum' Z. 893 dat. pl. fothaircthib Z. 594: fothrugud Broccán's hymn, 38, should be fothrucud, M. Bret. gouzroncquet, now korronka. The second element of fo-thrucud is cognate with the W. trochi 'to immerse', troch-fa 'a bathing-place'.—Ed.

(a) ailli (aithli B) bruit: cf. aithle thened s. v. Aithinne and qy. translate "the leavings of a garment".—Ed.

For i.e. Cnámchaill, ut [inde B] dixit Gráibne the poet to Corc son of Lugaid in a fess (a) fo Foi, i.e. he was [was he?] acquainted with Cnamchoill. Item Mogh Ruith peribit quod Roth Fail perveniet dicens "to the king of fair Thurles after Foi", i.e. after Cnamchóill.

Cnamhchoill, now Clegile, is 2 miles E. of the town of Tipperary. Its exact situation is laid down in the Bk. of Lismore. Mogh Ruith was the most distinguished druid in Ireland in the 3rd century. He lived at Oilean Dairebre in Kerry, in the reign of Cormac mac Airt. See Forbas Droma Damhghaire in the Book of Lismore.—O'D.

FELMAC ['a learned person'] i.e. mac a hiad no a huad 'son of his science'?

fealmhao (i.) duine foghlumtha [leg. mac. foglama?] O'Clery.—O'D. So O'Davoren p. 86 fealmac i. mac séasa 7 mac uadh i. aircetal.—Ed.

FÉLE i.e. poetry or a poet: inde dicitur filidech i.e. poetry.

FILI 'a poet' i.e. poison (b) in satire and splendour (c) in praise fili also fial-shui i.e. a sage of poetry.

In B this and the two preceding articles stand thus: Felmac i. mac uad. fel. i. ái. fele i. ecess, unde dicitur filidech i. ecsi. Fili i. fi anaoras 7 li ammolad 7 brecht a fuacras in file. O'Clery has fel i. éigsi.—Ed.

FOGAMUR [Fogamar B] it is a name for the last month in the autumn, i.e. fo, ga i.e. wind (gaelh), and mur 'abundance' (d) ut est in the Bretha nemed Imbera fogamur i.e. foghemur i.e. fo-gemur dag-gemur 'wheat-crop'. Dagh i.e. wheat. Inde dicitur triar dag three (consecrated) wafers, (or) sacarbaic i.e. sacer and pit i.e. of food. ut dicitur:

A bit of food I ate (e) yesterday

Certainly is cause of repentance :

Impure my body, much my transgression [?]

Pure (is) He whom I have received.

The latter part is omitted in B, which has only Fogamar i. don mis dedenaig rohainmniged i. quasi fogaimur i. fota mis ngaim.—Ed.

FOT i.e. vigilant, an-bhfót 'not vigilant': ut dicitur

Every one is watchful, vigilant,

Though far the warriors march.

From that comes fót faitech 'vigilant' and anfót anfaitech 'not vigilant'.

FAATH [Fath B] i.e. learning, unde dicitur faitsine 'prophecy'.

fath i.e. foghlaím filaidhechta, O'Davoren p. 85. Fáth i. foglaím, O'Clery: cf. Zend vat (the t assimilated) 'to know', 'to understand', Justi, and perhaps Lat. vates.—Ed.

FEMEN i.e. Fe and Men, the two king-oxen of the oxen of Ireland. It is at this place they were. Hence it is (so) called. Cirbe (is the) nomen of the place in which they used to be chewing their cud (cír).

Femen the ancient name of the plain comprising the barony of Iffa and Offa East in the S.E. of the Co. of Tipperary.—O'D. See Edel supra: cír gen. círe 'cud' is the Manx keeil, W. cil: and cf. the Bret. das-kiria 'ruminer'.—Ed.

(a) B has Nífes.—Ed. (b) 'bitter'.—O'D. (c) li 'sweet', 'smooth'.—O'D.

(d) 'fogam' 'little winter', i.e. the wind and the sea swelling'.—O'D. (e) "The fullm eal I took".—O'D.

FLIUCHUD [Flechud B] i.e. fluch-shuth 'wet weather' for its softness: suth i.e. weather (sín).

FÁIR i.e. the rising of the sun in (the) morning, ab eo quod est jubar [i. dellrad B] unde Columb cille dixit Dia lim fri fuin dia lim fri fáir 'God be with me at sunset, God be with me at sunrise (fri fáir).

Fáir (i. turghail gréine no éirghe greine, O'Clery) = W. gwawr 'dawn', Bret. gour-leuen, guere louen 'morning-star'. As to fuin, which is glossed in B by folach, v. supra s.v. Arco fuin and cf. the verb fuinim i. criochnaighim no sguirim 'I end or cease', O'Clery.—Ed.

FÉ ab eo quod est ve i.e. vae, for with the Gaels it is usual for f to answer to the v (or to be in place of the v) consonant ut praediximus [scil. sub v. Fine]. Fé, then, is a wand of aspen [? fidáite] and gloomy [? fidad] the thing which served with the Gaels for measuring bodies and graves; and this wand was always in the cemeteries of the heathen, and it was a horror to every one to take it in his hand, and every thing that was odious [?] to them they marked on it in Ogham. Inde dicitur:

Sorrowful to me to be in life
After the king of the Gaels and Galls:
Sad is my eye, withered my clay (a)
Since the fé was measured on Flann.

Aliter, a rod of aspen was used by the Gaels for the measuring of the bodies, and the graves in which they were interred, and this wand was always in the cemeteries of the heathen, and it was a horror to every one taking it in his hand, and every thing that was odious [?] with the men was struck with it, unde [in] proverbium venit fé fris "a fé to it"! for as the wand was odious cui nomen est fé, sic et alia res cui comparatur. For it was the aspen which the wand used to be, and it is odious. Therefore says Morann in the Briathar Ogham aercaid fid edath, i.e. the re-proach which attached to the rod cui nomen est fé.

This is a reference to the vestal [sic. qy. virgular?] Ogham of Morann, at the end of the Ogham tract, in H. 3, 18. If the Flann mentioned in the quatrain was Flann Sinna [airdrí of Ireland] it could not have been written [or quoted by] Cormac mac Cuillennáin.—O'D. for king Flann died A. D. 914, and Cormac was slain eleven years before. O'Davoren p. 84, explains Fee by mors, but O'Clery, following Cormac, by slat tomhais úaighe 'a rod for measuring a grave'.—Ed.

FIDCHELL [Fitcheill B]. i. féith-ciall, fáith-ciall i.e. it requires sense (ciall) and fáith ('learning') in playing it. Or fuath-cell, i. fuath cille 'likeness of a church', in the first place, the fidchell is four-cornered, its squares are right-angled, and black and white are on it, and, moreover, it is different people that in turn (b) win the game. Sic et ecclesia per singula per iiii. terrae partes iiii. evangelii pasta (c). It is straight in the morals and points of the Scripture (a) et nigri [.i. dub B] et albi [.i. gel B] i.e. boni et mali, habitant in ecclesia.

(a) B has: ere gan deg-ollam de and gives the quatrain at the end of the article.—Ed.

(b) cach la fecht, cf. cach la cén (gl. modo) Z. 1017, 1018.—Ed.

(c) B glosses this by: is marsin a neclais is sasoud cethri rann sundradach in beta o soscelaib "So is it in the Church, satisfying the four different parts of the world with gospels", which is not accurate.—Ed.

FRAIG ('a roof') i.e. against (fri) ice (aig) i.e. against cold.

So O'Clery. dat. sg. isin fraighidh Book of Lismore, 156 cited by O'Don. Supt. aig (gl. cristallus) Z. 60, W. ia, O.N. jökull, Eng. icle in ic-icle.—Ed.

FOLASAI [folassa B] 'shoe', i.e. because it supports (foling) a person's foot.

Aliter fol i.e. quasi sol i.e. bonnbach i.e. bonnbruach, i.e. it is between the sole and the earth. Fol then quasi sol, ab eo quod est solum latine.

Fol i.e. a cenn-fo-chrus ('change of initial') i.e. f pro s.

folasa i.e. broga 'shoes' O'Clery.—O'D.

FUITHIR i.e. fo-thír, he who gives land (tír) to a stranger.

B reads: Fuidir i.e. fo thir i.e. inti dobeir tir fo na deoraig anechtair is do is ainm fuidir. The word occurs in the Senchas Mór, pp. 52, 84, 104, 124, 138, daer-fuidir ib. pp. 90, 106; but the meaning does not appear.—Ed. O'Clery has Fuidhir i.e. fadhaor ('slave') i.e. fear tuarastail ('a hireling').—O'D.

FASACH i.e. fo-so-sech, i.e. the brehon produces a precedent for every case on which he adjudicates i.e. a case similar to another; and he afterwards repeats the sentence which wise brehons had passed upon it. Fassach then is fo thechaid [?] for it is the old case (made) present. Or he follows (b) a good old judgment for the present case.

B adds: no fasach i.e. fes fuach i.e. foach focal i.e. fis-focal insin 'Or fasach i.e. fes-fhuach fuach i.e. a word i.e. knowledge-word. Fassach is explained by O'D as a 'precedent', and it is so rendered in the Senchas Mór p. 18, where it is said that the Breton delivered judgment in public a roscadaib ocsus fasraigib 'from commentaries and precedents'. In the same book, however, p. 228, fasraigib is rendered by 'maxims' and the context supports this version.—Ed.

FERN i.e. everything good, an iarn belre or iarm-béltre (obsolete or primitive word) this

A, corruptly, Fiern, O'Clery has Fearn i.e. maith. cognate either with ferr 'better', Skr. variyas comparative of uru-s = εὐρύς or with fern i.e. fei 'vir', Duil Laithne.—Ed.

FELL ('treachery') i. a verbo fello i. brego nec(h) ('I deceive some one') fallo eodem (e).

Fell ousc ingal 'treachery and fratricide' Senchas Mór, p. 56. The glossographer's fello seems a blunder for φηλόω. If so, the Irish brego (O. Ir. brécu) is another example of the 1st sg. pres. indic. act. ending vocally of which I have spoken under Arco, Doch and Duile. But perhaps fello is the low Latin substantive meaning 'perfidus' 'rebellis'. The acc. sg. bréec mendacious, now bréag, is in Z. 23.—Ed.

FIADNISE ('witness') i. fiad nass i. fiada ronas ('God has bound').

Cognate with Eng. witness.—O'D. In H. 2. 16, col. 108 this gloss runs thus: Fiadnaisi i. fiadæ ronass incor. In Old-Irish fiadnisse is a neuter io-stem, Z. 53, 823, Manx fearnish.—Ed.

FIADMUIN ('hares') i. fiadmila bid i muine ('wild animals that are in a brake').

(c) 'flow'.—O'D. (d) MS. cosmailius. (e) MS. dath.

FIRSTI .i. nert ('strength') ut dicitur ferr firafirsti ('better is truth than strength').

So O'Clery.—O'D. O'Davoren p. 87: Firrsi .i. nert.—Ed.

FERG .i. laech ('a hero'). unde dicitur comaid ferg foobar ['a hero keeps (?) an edge'].

So in O'Davoren p. 84: cf. perhaps vargus 'latrunculus', Sidon. ⁴ Apoll. Epist. VI. 4, cited Dief. Origg. p. 434.

FELL .i. ech ('a horse') unde dicitur cap fell ('a car-horse').

v. supra p. 71.—Ed.

FAL .i. ri ('a king').

Fal .i. ri no muir ('king or sea') O'Davoren, p. 85: cf. Lat. valeo, validus.—O'Clery writes Fál, with a long a, and explains it by ri 'king' and iomad 'abundance'—Ed.

FIM .i. deog ('a drink').

FIM .i. fin ('wine') unde dicitur dodaile[d] fim i crethir ('wine was distributed in a cup').

FETHAL .i. corn cumdaig (a) argoid ('a goblet with a silver mounting').

So O'Clery: Feathal .i. corn cumhdaigh airgid.—O'D.

FOCHLA an tuaiscert ('the north').

Cf. W. gogledd.—Ed.

FAITSI an dessert ('the south').

Perhaps from fa-desi, where desi = W. deheu.—Ed.

FOCHLA nomen do suide na flatha ('name for the champion's seat').

So O'Clery: Fochla fo .i. suidhe flatha no tighearna. And Faitsi was the name for the charioteer's seat—obviously because the charioteer sat on the right, or south, side, while the champion sat on the left or north (fochla).—Ed.

FIANNACHTACH (a man's name) .i. fian-gnimach ('hero-deedful') gnim fian lais ('the Fians' deed with him').

Anciently a man's name; still preserved in the surname O'Fiannachtaigh, anglisé Finaghy or Finnerty.—O'D.

FORBASACH (a man's name) .i. sudiges bes foruib no eacht.

O'D's version ('sitting around them or a siege') is clearly wrong. I would translate 'he who places a tribute (bés .i. cíos, O'Clery) on them, or a tax'.—Ed. From forbais 'a siege'.—O'D.

FOTHATH .i. fothagud ('founding') unde dicitur rofothath flaith for raigni ruad ('a chieftainship was founded on mighty Raigni').

So O'Clery: Fotha .i. fundameint. Fothaghadh .i. cumhdach no tionnsgnamh 'founding or commencing'.—O'D. fotha m. Z. 999, rob-fothiged 'fundati estis' ib.—Ed.

FICHT .i. feig ('sharp').

I would fain read ferg 'anger' instead of feig, Z. 994, and then identify ficht with the Welsh gwyth 'wrath'.—Ed.

For i. flaith ('a chief') unde dicit (a) Cuchuimne

Manibad airmitiu níe

“ Unless there is honour of evil
Not unsafe is a seated chieftain :
For me to be on a yearling calf’s skin
In Garván’s house is delightful (b).

fói is written so by O'Clery, who explains it flaith, tighearna no rí 'a chief, lord or king'.—O'D. Fo is a different word. Foi seems cognate with oīq̄iōr 'rudder', which Becker spells with the digamma (IL 19, 43: Od. 12, 218, and Benfey refers to the root vi. cf. W. rhwyf 'king', Cornish ruifanes 'queen' which are connected with rēmus: cf. also the secondary with the primary meanings of guberno and κυβερνάω.—Ed.

FEICI ['ridgepole'] quasi feighe ['illumination'] iarsindi imfuilnges soillsi dond tegh ('because it sustains light for the house').

O'Reilly guesses feici to be 'a chandelier'. But O'Clery has feige i.e. mullach tighe no dunaidh. In H. 2. 16 we have feice tige quasi fege quia praestat lucem domui: feighe (leg. feighe) is a derivative from the adjective feig (clarus, illuminatus). Z. 994 — Ed.

FUIRIM ['a gift?'] i. ellach aisti ['a present for a poem?'].

fuirim i.e. tabair(t). ut est fuirsin samaisce ar dian co ndroncaire 'he gave a heifer for a dian with a strong caldron'. O'Davoren, p. 85.—Ed.

FENELACH i. ellach ercái ['gift of an eric'?]

FERDOMAN i. domna fir ('the materies of a man').

.i. mac becc 'a little boy' Mac Firbis—O'D. fear domain .i. mac bithbhenach 'a boy who is an habitual trespasser', O'D's Sunpt.—Ed.

FAINDELACH is a name ('an oaf').

faoinnealach i. oimid, O'Clery.—O'D. cf. W. gwaened 'headlong'. Faenelach is wrongly feanelach in O'Davoren p. 86. The phrases fuenlcadaigh fine and athgabail foenledaig are cited in O'Don. Suppt.—Ed.

FEUTHAL i. eugasg ('form').

O'Clery feathal i. éccosg no cuma 'face or form'.—O'D. O'Davoren has feathal i. comartha no minn: feathla i. egusc no comartha. Perhaps we should read fedhail and compare the W. gwedd f. 'aspect', 'form'.—Ed.

(a) M S. dicitur.

(b) 'Were it not in thy heroic respect, I would not be in Emhain, seat of chiefs. I being on the skin of a yearling calf at Garbhan's house; it would be mockery.'—O'D., gnoe = gnoot i. aobhinn, O'Clery.—Ed.

(c) 'agility in it, i.e. noble'.—O'D. But utmall Z. 252, 562 is inquietus, mobilis, and the glossographer alludes to the instability of riches.—Ed.

SEPTIMA LITTERA.

GLOIR ('glory') i. a gloria i. gluair ['speech'? 'voice?'] from the greatness of the talk.

O'D has "i. gluair from the greatness of the glory", which does not make sense. Cf. the Gaelic glóir 'lingua', 'sermo'. Ir. glórach 'noisy' (a)—Ed.

GALAR ('disease') quasi calor.

A neuter o-stem, Z. 249-800. Connected by Pictet (Kuhn's Zeitschrift v. 338) with the Skr. root jvā. Welsh galar is 'mourning', 'grief'.—Ed.

GAM ['November'] ab eo quod est γάμος ['a wedding'] graece inde etiam graece mulier nominatur i. a woman, unde bigamus vel trigamus dicitur.

B here varies: Gam quasi gamos isin greic nouimber un. veti. mulieres dnt. i. mi gam on. The glossographer seems to mean that the month gam (November), like the Attic month γαμηλίων (latter half of Jan. and beginning of Feb.), took its name from γάμος, because that was the fashionable time for the ancients (veteres) to marry (mulieres ducere). See quotation under next article for an example of gam. O'Clery explains gamh by geimhreadh 'winter'.—Ed.

GAIMRED ['winter (b)'] quasi gaim rith ['course of gam'], et inde Colmán mac hui Clúasaig dixit in the elegy of Cumine the Tall, son of Fiachna:—

Descendant of Coirpre, descendant of Core,

He is a sage, is noble, is illustrious.

Alas (he is) a corse in the month Gam!

Not lamentable (c), however—not to death (has he gone).

i.e. in heaven he has arrived.

Mí gam here certainly means the month of November, for S. Cumine Fota died on the 12th November, A. D. 661.—O'D.

GELISTAR (gelestair B) i.e. name for a ford (d) of water in which are cattle in heat (e), and they bite a mouthful from every division of land (ferann) which is about it, and a circle of stakes is made around it, if the ford (f) is between neighbours, so that cattle may not eat the cornfields. The

(a) The noun occurs in O'Davoren: Blor i. glor 'a voice,' ut est blor cumi ('voice of grief'), and it says in another place blor con domhinn 'the howl of hounds (is) unsweetness'.—Ed.

(b) 'The month of November'.—O'D.

(c) liach i. doili H. 3. 18. 527. cf. Z. 579, ba uisse hirnaigde erru ba liach anepeltu 'It is right to pray for them, lamentable is their destruction'. O'D translates liach by 'cause of grief'.—Ed.

'pool'.—O'D. (e) obell (B ubell) = W. ufel 'a spark'. (f) 'pool'.—O'D.

grazing which is made in the ford (a) is what is called gelistar. And every neighbour is entitled to a common road to it, if it is without a road, [varia lectio] or to it, if it be without a passage (bēl).

O'D translates the last sentence thus: "And every neighbour is entitled to make a common road if it be surrounded by land without passages".—Ed.

GABUR ('a goat') with ailm (b) [the letter a] quasi caper, for it is that was corrupted therein. Gobur with ond (b) [the letter o] is a nomen for a horse, and it is a Welsh (word) that was corrupted therein. Gour then [in Welsh, goor B; leg. guaur?] is every thing bright. Inde dicitur gobur [goar B] to the white horse, etc. Gobur [goor B] also (became) a name for any horse, whatsoever his colour might be, so as that a small part of him were white, from the most remarkable colour nominatur. [var. lee.] Gobur [goor B] is his nomen, for it is the most remarkable nominatur.

B adds: rotuill in fli gaidhelach .b. fris ar tucait mbindessa ar rop aille leo gobar quam goor. unde gobar nominatur 'the Gaelic poet added a b to it, for sake of euphony, for they thought gobur finer quam goor. Unde' &c. Gabur is said to be ainm do gréin ('a name for the sun') in H. 4. 22, p. 61a, and graig ngabor nglas 'a herd of grey horses' occurs in Seirglige Conculainn. O'Clery has gabhar no gobhar i. each 'a steed'.—Ed.

GILLDAE ('a pupil') like to a leech (gil): it is its custom to suck: it is also the custom of the gilldae (gillae B) to suck instruction from his tutor's tongue, ut dicitur in the Bretha nemed: toglen [doglen B] gil tengaid 'gil stuck to tongue'.

A here erroneously explains gel or gil by the adj. glan 'clean'. This explanation does not occur in B. Gel or gil 'leech' is now obsolete in Ireland; but in the Highlands, geal-tholl (c) means 'a leech', and cf. W. gel, Corn. ghel (gl. sanguissuga).—Ed.

GAILENG then was (first) said to Cormac, son of Tadhg, son of Cian, i.e. he made a feast for his father, i.e. for Tadhg, grandson of Oilill, and he had a hundred of every kind of animal (at the feast), except badgers only. Cormac went to the badger-warren. It was tedious to him to wait to destroy it, so he invited (them) out on the truth of his father Tadhg's honour (d). Then the badgers came out, and Cormac killed a hundred of them, and displayed (them) at the feast (e). Then Tadhg's heart loathed them, and he said what he (Cormac) had done, and he named his son hoc nomine, i.e. Cormac Gaelang [Gaileng B] i.e. Dung-Honour, unde Galenga nominantur. Gaileng, i. gæi lang, falsehood and treachery, i.e. without purchase. Gaileng, i.e. gail-sheng, valour-paltry, i.e., one of the two is paltrily valourous.

See the foregoing story told at greater length from ms. H. 3. 18, p. 42, in Three Irish Glossaries, pp. XLII-XLV: 'gae or gai 'dung' seems cognate with Skr. gu, gavati, Zend gu cacare.—Ed.

GEM 'a gem' i.e. a gemma [i. ond lic logmair 'from the precious stone' B].

(d) cotaccart amach for fir a einich a othar i. taidg B. The reading in A: cotachartsat is wrong.—Ed.

GRAD ('a grade') i.e. a gradu.

niurt grád hirnphin 'to the virtue of the ranks of Chernbim,' Patrick's hymn: grádh eclaise, gradh sechta, O'D. Suppt. æclis uii. grádich, Lib. Arm. 170, b. 2. As the a is long, grád is probably not borrowed from grádus.—Ed.

GLANG i.e. shoulder: inde asglang [asclang B].

B adds: os gualuinn mbis 'what is over a shoulder', v. supra p. 1, s. v. Asglang.—Ed.

GNÍD i.e. a voice, inde dicitur gnídgat.

GEL ('white') ab eo quod est gelu [i. ón reod 'from the frost', B].

GIABUR [giabair B] i.e. a harlot.

O'Clery has giabhair i.e. meirdreach.—Ed.

GOL i.e. a tear, unde golgaire 'loud weeping'.

So O'Davoren, p. 94, and v. supra s. v. Digal.—Ed.

GALL i.e. a pillar-stone, i.e. nis comatig combatar sélba co cobrandaib gall 'they are not neighbours till (their) properties are (provided) with boundaries [?] of pillar-stones' (a). Gall, then, means four things, i.e. first, gall, a pillar-stone, ut praediximus: it is so called because it was the Gaill that first fixed them in Ireland. Gall next, a name for nobles of France, i.e. tribus Galliae, and they were so called from candor corporis, γάλα [enim] Graece lac Latine dicitur, unde Galli, i.e. milky ones (b). Sic, then, gall is nomen for a swan: inde Fer Muman dixit:

cocholl chös ngall gemin brain

'the covering of swan's legs is a raven's skin'.

gall, then, a name for a cock, i.e. gallus, i.e. from galea capitis he is named. [B adds: a cathbarr a cind 'from the crest of his head']

1°. gall 'a pillar-stone' seems at first sight cognate with O.Fr. gal, which Diez, E.W. II, 304, connects with W. calen 'whetstone.' The double l, however, = rr, points to an Indo-European ry or rs: so cf. perhaps Zend zarsh-tva, 'a stone'. O'Clery s. v. makes the dat. pl. gaillechaib. 2°. The etymology of Gall from γάλα is taken from Isidore, par. 104. "Galli a corporis candore nuncupati sunt: γάλα enim graece lac dicitur." 3° gall 'swan' and 4° gall 'cock' (if the latter word is not a loan from gallus) are for garlus*, and both from the root GAR 'to call' 'praise'; cf. swan from the root SVAN 'sonare', and cf. hano with the Latin cano and perhaps κύ-κν-ος.—Ed.

GRASTICUM [Grazagum B] i.e. graziacum, i.e. Patrick's (mode of) thanksgiving, quod Scotti corrupte dicunt (c): sic autem diei debet (d) i. grasagum [grassairigim B] do duiu i.e. gratias deo agimus (e)

The word is found seven times in Lib. Armach. 7 a. 1, once spelt gratzacham and six times grazacham: Et venit Daire post hæc ut honoraret sanctum Patricium, portans secum eneum mirabilem transmarinum métritas ternas ('three firkins') capientem;

(a) O'D reads: nis cintaig comatig coméda sélbh co mbatar coiccrice co comrandaib gall, and translates 'neighbouring herds of cattle are not amenable until boundaries are divided by pillar-stones'.—Ed.

(b) industas 'of the milk'.—O'D.

(c) B translates: is ris aderait scotici truainned.—Ed.

(d) B translates: is marsin is coir sin do rad.—Ed.

(e) B translates: bermait buide n-allaitighi do dia. But H. 2.16, col. 113, has 'Grat(s) icum gratias ago' in the singular.—Ed.

dixitque Daire ad sanctum "Ecce, hic eneus sit tecum"; et ait sanctus Patricius "grazacham". Reversusque Daire ad domum suam dixif "Stultus homo est qui nihil boni praeter grazacham tantum pro æneo mirabili metritarum trium"; additque Daire, dicens servis suis "ite, reportate nobis eneum nostrum". Exierunt et dixerunt Patricio "portabimus æneum". Nihilominus et illa vice sanctus Patricius dixit "gratzacham, portate", et portaverunt. The form is an Old Welsh loan from the Latin gratias-ago 1st person singular (like datolaham 'lego', mergidham 'evanesco' Z. 498) and not, as Cormac supposes, a plural, which would have been grazagun. The present Welsh would be gresaaf 'I welcome', from gresaau: duiu 'God' (now duu) is a fine Old Welsh form = Skr. déva, Lat. deus, dívis, Ir. dia. Hence duriutit, Juvencus.—Ed.

GÉD ('a goose') nomen de sono factum, gág, gag.

W. gwydd, Corn. guidh, Br. gwéz, Ir. Glosses, No. 388: Manx guiy. An Old-Irish goss = (h)anser, Gr. χήν, Ohg. gans, occurs supra, p. 37 s. v. Cernnas.—Ed.

GAMUIN ['a year-old calf'] i.e. in the month of Gam (November), after samuin (Hallowtide, Nov. 1), unde dicitur gamnach ['a milking-cow, with a year-old calf'] i. e. gam-shinech ['gam-dugged'], because there is milk in the month of Gam, i.e. in winter.

Gamain B. Gaelic gamhainn, Manx gawin. In Senchas Mór, p. 185, bó cona gamaind is rendered 'a cow with its hide'.—Ed.

GRONN or GORN ('firebrand') i. gai-orn i. e. a dart of destruction, i. e. a firebrand, ut Gruibne dixit, welcoming Core or Cormac, immicuiretar gruinn (or guirn) gair &c. "let firebrands (and) shouts be put round him"! (a) gronn reminds one of the Gaulish Grannos, which Siegfried connected with Skr. ghrini 'sun': gor-n (gorn i. aithinne teineadh, O'Clery) seems (like gorain 'I warm') a derivative from gor 'fire', which is cognate with Skr. ghar-ma ' calor'.—The Gr. γρυνός, γρούνος and Ovid's Gryneus should be remembered.—Ed.

GLUSS i. e. light, as in the Bretha nemed: dofet óc iarnglus ('a youth excels by his light') i. e. the youth with his bright eye is more excellent than the old man with feebleness of his eye.

Cognate with Eng. gloss?—O'D. The above version of dofet óc iar nglus is clearly wrong: cf. iar nglus i. dered dia soillsi, O'D's Suppt. I would render 'A youth precedes (an old man) after (his) light (is gone)'.—Ed.

GRETH [Grith·B] nomen for a servant of Aitherne, to whom Amargein, son of Eculsach [amorgine mac ecetsalach B], a smith from Búas, said Inith greth gruth grímuine glascrema cue uinn ubla grethi gruth.

O'D has left this unattempted. In B the story is told more fully thus: Luid gilla athairne do chuinidh iasachto do tigh ecetsalach goband conaca in lealab ocon ténidh is mar [leg. nár] ba mo indas doorn 7 robtar lana imorro a uii. mbliadna seom. bui iarom oc creim (creime) 7 grotha et reliqua. asbeart iarom fri greth Innith grith gruth (i. fonaithre) grianmaine grannmune glaiscrema cue (i. cnú) huindi ubla grethi [leg. grechi?] grith [gruth A] Innith greth gruth 7rl. don cip bói isin étach. Eges in ingen iarom 7 luid-sium for teicedh. IS í éraic iarom doradad ind i. mac do forcedal do echedsalach góband connabá messa am dan oldas athairne, is iarom bretha amorgein chuci. 'Athairne's gillie came to ask a loan to the house of Echetsal, the smith, and he saw the child at the fire, and it was not bigger than a fist, and yet its seven years were complete. Now it was gnawing garlic and curds and so forth, and it said to Greth "Does Greth eat curds (i.e. cooked), blackberries, sloes, green leeks, nuts, onions, sour apples (a), curds? Does Greth eat curds etc."? (b). Then the gillie told Athairne this. Athairne went with a billhook (c) in his hand to kill it.—The boy's father came while the iron was in the fire (etarlam), and asked of the girl "who came to the house"? Said the girl, "Athairne's gillie came", and she said what had happened. "Hearken to me", said its father, "Athairne will come and kill the child; hide the child", says he, "and put its dress where it (now) is". Thus was it done. Athairne came and gave a blow to the post (cip, cippus) that was in the dress. Then the girl shouted and he went his way. This, then, is the eric (mullet) that was given for it, to wit, to instruct the boy for Echetsal the smith (d), so that he should not be inferior in skill to Athairne. Afterwards Amorgein was brought to him. I suppose this Athairne was the implacable bard mentioned by Dr. Ferguson in his Lays of the Western Gael, pp. 67, 245.—Ed.

GART, two things it means: gart i.e. 'head' in the Dul Feda Mair ('Book of the great wood'); gart also 'hospitality', (for) it is the head of every illustrious dail (?) which one performs.

gart 'head' is = W. garth f. 'cape', 'headland'.—Ed. gart i. fial no ceann, O'Clery.—O'D.

GRUITEN i. groit-shen, for what is old (sen) is grot i.e. 'bitter' (guirt) for grot is every thing bitter [?] unde dicitur groitmess, i.e. 'bitter [?] fruit.

O'D (Supp. to O'R.) explains gruiten by stale butter. I should have rendered grot by 'rotten' (cf. the Gaelic grod) and guirt by 'sour', cf., however, Grus grot gruiten. a grosco cibo i. daghiad i. scaiblin no braisech, H. 2. 16, col. 114.—Ed.

GNÓ i.e. derision, ut dicitur ní recht nach gnó ('not right is any mockery'), i.e. no mockery is straight, i.e. law is not straight unless it is good, and not right for gnó, i. e. not right for derision or for laughter, (to be) therein. Gnoe, however, is every thing beautiful, ut dicitur in the Senchas Mór, eno gnoe i. e. a beautiful nut (f).

So gnó i. focuidbeadh no magadh (g) O'Clery. 'jibing or joking'—O'D. cf. gno car cnáim marbda O'Davoren, pp. 64, 94 (where car 'brittle' = $\xi\eta\rho\acute{\alpha}\varsigma$): gnoe, spelt gnaoi, is glossed aoibhinn 'delightful' by O'Clery.—Ed.

GROMA [gromma B] 'satire': unde dicitur gromfa i.e. 'he will satirize', et unde dicitur gruaim each sluaig min aidetchide do deilb as auraissi do æir 7 d'ecnach 'to satirize all persons (h) small (and) unsightly (?) of form who are easiest to jeer and lampoon'. gruaim-duine 'a surly person' is thence said.

(a) I guess our ubla grethi to be O'Clery's ubhla graiche, which (s. v. Grech) he explains by ubhla goirte.—Ed.

(b) Insinuating that Athairne did not feed his servant Greth so sumptuously.—Ed.

(c) fádhae in Senchas Mór, 124.—Ed.

(d) I am not sure that this is right, for the dat. sg. of goba 'smith' is gobainn, not gobann.—Ed.

(e) "bitter".—O'D. (f) See H. 2. 18, story about eno gnoe, certain nuts that grow in Asia.—O'D.

(g) W. mocio.—Ed. (h) literally 'every host'.—Ed.

O'D here deviates from the mss. (A and B), and translates "Gruaim ('surliness') All parties that are unsightly of countenance are they who are easiest satirized or lampooned. Gruim and duine Cassilerno it is called". The mysterious cassilerno [?] is in A, not in B. Gruaim 'surly' is Manx grou.—Ed.

GLÁM quasi clám, ab eo quod est clamor.

B adds: i. escaine 'a curse' and A (incorrectly) 'facit': cf. glám dicenn 'an extempore lampoon' and glám ger, O'Davoren, p. 115.—Ed. glam is still in use [?] in the sense of clamor, outcry.—O'D. It probably comes from the root GAR as the Latin cl-amo from CAL.

GLADEMAIN [glaidemain B] i.e. wolves, which cry (gláidite (a)) i.e. which uplift great howls.

As O'Clery writes glaoideamhain, the spelling of B is correct. The nom. sg. is doubtless gláidem, though O'Clery explains glaoideamhain as sg.—Ed.

GUIDEMAIN [gudemain B] i. spectres and fairy queens.

Guidemain seems to mean 'false demons', from gō, gúa (= W. gau) 'false' and demain for demuin, n. pl. of demon, a demon, daemonion, (Corn. gevan or jevan), gen. s. demuin, Z. 494.—Ed.

GAIRE i.e. short life, i.e. gair-ré, 'short space', ut dicitur in the satire which Nédi, son of Adnae, son of Othar, made for the king of Connaught, i.e. for his own father's brother, for Caier, son of Othar. This is the satire:—

Evil (maile), death (baire), short life (gaire) to Caier (caieur)!

May spears of battle (celtra catha) wound Caier!

Destruction to Caier, dira (?) to Caier: Caier under earth (foro).

Under ramparts (fo mara), under stones (fo chora) be Caier (b)!

maile then i.e. 'evil' from malum: baire i.e. death, gaire i.e. 'short life': Caieur i.e. 'to Caier': celtra catha i.e. 'spears', unde dicitur diceltair i.e. a shaft of a spear without iron thereon or without a weapon, foro i.e. imord feda [?] i.e. 'under earth: fo mara i.e. under ramparts of earth very high: fo chora (c) i.e. under stones be Caier etc.

Additional Articles from B.

GRUC i. a cruciatu i. on cumgach.

O'Clery gives five meanings to grug; 1st srang chclair an édain, 'a wrinkle in the forehead, 2nd gruamdhá 'sulky'.—O'D. He also gives 3rd, lag 'weak', 4th garg 'fierce', and 5th breg (leg, brég) 'a lie'. The first of these probably is our gruc. Gruc (gen. gruice) re-occurs infra, p. 90, explained as 'hero' and 'rough'.—Ed.

GALGAT ('a champion') i. tria gail gaet(h)as i. gonas i. marbas ('who wounds (gaethas) through valour (gal) i.e. who wounds, i.e. who kills).

galgad i. gaisceadhach 'a champion', O'Clery.—O'D. galgat re-occurs infra p. 90, explained as a bereavement which causes weeping.—Ed.

GILLA ('a gillie') a cillus [κυλλή?] graece, manus unius ar is lam do each aon a gilla ('for his gillie is a hand to every one').

So in H. 2, 16, col. 103.—Ed.

GRAIG graece mulus (i. asan) latine.

It is hard to say what Greek word the glossographer thought of: graig seems = the Middle-Irish groigh (gl. equitum) a stud of horses, Manx grīh, W. gre = Lat. grex. In Senchas Mór, p. 162, hi fuba do grega is rendered by 'for scaring thy horses', and at p. 164 do grega (nom. pl.) by 'thy horses'.—Ed.

GILCACH ('reed') quia locis in gelidis nascitur.

giolcach 'reed' in the N. and W. of Ireland: in the E. the common broom, and so in some medical mss. : giolcach sléibhe 'genista'.—O'D.

GAOTH ('wind') quasi caoth caterno [καθαῖρω] graece purgo latine i. glanad ('to cleanse').

O. Ir. gáith, Manx geay, root GHI, Skr. hi, pf. jighāya, Zend zi.—Ed.

GNATH ('usual') a [cognosco vel] gnato i. eolchaigim ('I know') no aichtigim (a).

Gnath i. a cognosco vél gnato, H. 2, 16, col. 113, gnáth (gl. solutus) Z. 102 = Gaulish gnátos in Catu-gnátos, W. gnawd, is cognate with γνωτός, Lat. (g)nótus, and comes from the root GNÁ, Skr. jñá.—Ed.

GARG ('fierce') i. gargon [Γοργών, γοργός] graece ferox interpretatur.

Still living, and apparently cognate with Γοργών.—O'D.

GRAIBRE i. gaire trom ('heavy laughter') in graiph fil and is onni is gravis an re is risus i. gaire ('the graibh that is there is from gravis, the re is risus i.c. laughter').

Otherwise in H. 2, 16, col. 113: Graibre tromre. rissis [ρῆστις] graece locutio interpretatur.—Ed.

GIGRAND ('a barnacle goose' anser bernicula) a gyrando on cuairt fell bis fuirre ('from the circular flight that she makes').

This reduplicated form, giugrann (gl. anser) Z. 26 (= * gi-gur-ann), gioghrann i. cadhan, O'Clerly (the W. pl. aggr. gwyrain 'barnacles' has regularly lost g between vowels) is possibly connected with gyro, gyrus, γύρος, which last Aufrecht (Kuhn's Zeitschrift, IX, 231) puts with the Vedic adjective jiv-ri 'schwankend', 'wackelig', 'gebrechlich', 'altersschwach'.—Ed.

GIN ('a mouth') i.e. a gingis i. ona hoslaicib bid ann ar medhion ('from the openings that are therein in the middle').

gin (W. genau.—O'D.) is connected by Glück (K. N. 106) with Skr. hanu, Gr. χέρνε, Lat. gena, Goth. kinnus, Eng. chin. But is it not rather to be put with O.N. gin 'gähne', Lat. hi-sco, hi-o, hi-atus, Gr. χήμη, χειά, χαίνω? The mysterious Latin gingis, which MacFirbis rightly supposed to be for gingivis, occurs in Gildas' Lorica, l. 44. In H. 2, 16, col. 113, we have Giun a ging(i)vis i. o menannaib: dat. sg. giun, Z. 986.—Ed.

GRIAN ('sun') a gyrando [o, timchull H. 2, 16, col. 113] terram i. a circuitu i. on cuartugud ['from the circling'].

(a) 'I haunt or frequent'.—O'D. But should we not read ichtigim, 'I make children' (icht)? for gnatare, according to DuCange, means gnatos seu filios procreare.—Ed.

See Siegfried's remarks on grian, Irish Glosses, No. 952.—Ed.

GRUAD ('cheek') quasi cruad a cruore i. on ful ('from the blood') no go ruad bis i. co ruade no derge inte ('or it is go ruadh i.e. with ruddiness or redness therein').

See Grend infra. Manx gruaie, W. grudd 'cheek', Corn. grud (gl. maxilla).—Ed.

GOBA ('a smith') i. gobio [$\gamma\eta\mu\phi\omega$?] fabricans latine.

Goba (gen. gobann: cf. Gaulish Gobannicnos), O. W. gob now gof, Corn. and Bret. gof, has been compared with Lat. faber; but erroneously, as fāber = Skr. dhātri (Kuhn).—Ed.

GOIDELG ('Gaelic') i. guth-elg ('voice, elg') i. guth erendach ['Irish voice'] ar ata intainmsin for eirind ('for that name—scil. Elg—is on Ireland').

Now written Gaoidheal, a deriv. from góidel (o goidiul, H. 2, 16, col. 114), Gaoidheal 'Irishman'. Siegfried connected this with Lat. hoedus (foedus), hoedulus, Goth. gaitei, gaits 'goat', root GHID, which Benfey sees in χίδ-μαρος for χίδ-μαρος*, sed qu. as the ' is short.—Ed.

GUTH ('voice') a guttura.

guth (gen. gotho Z. 916, now gotha) an u-stem, root GHU or GU.—Ed.

GARB ('rough') hebraice [gareb i.] scabies [i. claime] latine.

In garb (now written garbh) the b is a v: M. garroe, W. garw, Skr. garva, γαῦρος.—Ed.

GUIN (a 'wound') gone hebraice hostis latine.

Now 'a dangerous wound': used in the Annals to denote a mortal wound.—O'D. H. 2, 13, col. adds 'nama, inti gonas 'an enemy', 'he who wounds'. An old example is in St. Patrick's hymn: ar neim ar loscud ar hádud ar guin 'against poison, burning, drowning, wound': guin doróntha 'a wound that was inflicted' Senchas Mór, 2, an guin 'the wound' Milan, a neuter i-stem, gonaim 'vulnero', root GHAN, Skr. han.—Ed.

GUBA suspiria i. osnad ('a sigh', 'a groan').

gubha i. caoineadh ('lamentation') gné gubha i. gné chaointe, O'Clery.—O'D. The gloss is given more fully in H. 2, 13: guhae guha enim graece suspiria interpretatur.—Ed.

GE(i)R ('tallow') quasi cer a carne.

Still living.—O'D. Manx gierr, W. gwer. See infra s.v. Usqa.—Ed.

GALLCOBAR (a man's name, 'Gallagher') i. gal acobar ('valour-desiré'?).

O'D translates "desirous of valour". O'Clery has Gallchobar i. gal acobhar i. saint gaile no gaisgidh ('desire of valour or warlike achievement').—O'D.

GOLLTRAIGI i. adhband trirech imefuilinge gol ('a melodious [?] strain which causes weeping').

'triple-noted music by which you suffer weeping'.—O'D., but adhband seems the same as adbann which occurs in a gloss síreachtach i. adbann no binn (O'D. Supp.): as síreachtach here seems = W. hiraethog 'having longing', I would render adbann hy 'yearning': trirech occurs, Z. 929: fo-m-chain trirech inna n-én 'the birds' trirech sang to me', with which trirech (acc. sg. trilic in the preface to the Féilire of Oengus) seems identical (consider Ital. trillare, Germ. trillern, Eng. to trill). O'D renders trirech by 'melody' in the supp. to O'Reilly.—Ed.

GENTRAIGI .i. treidi imefuinnge gen.

O'D translates "a strain by which you suffer love". The words as they stand mean "three things (tréide) which cause cheerfulness". But perhaps treidhi is written for treighi, traighi.—Ed.

GARMAN(N) MNA IN DAGHDA ("the names of the Daghdha's wife") .i. breg 7 meng 7 meabal ['Lie, and Guile and Disgrace'] Feg aor ('see a satire') unde dictum est

Findach ní fir deimne

O'D leaves this quatrain untranslated.—Something seems wanting in each of the first two lines. The last two mean "Long since the names of the Daghdha's wife grew to Murchadh's son", i.e. it is long since he was called 'Lie' etc.—Ed.

GRAIBRE .i. magar .i. briathar grata ('an honourable word') :—

(b) 'A dignified expression; ut est You students of learning, read ye: happy may be the mentioning of him sweeter your appropriate words than all that is beautiful of music.' O'D.—I read sidhe and na sine.—Ed. grata is glossed oirtheirc by O'Clergy.—Ed.

GUAIRE i. uasal ('noble') no gairci ('fierceness').

So O'Clery: the proper name of a man: still preserved in the family name of O'Guaire, anglicized Gorey.—O'D.

GIRITAN i. faochain mara ('periwinkles of the sea').

O'Clery has Gioradain i. faochain no faochoga bhios isin muir ina mbi sort maoraigh 'periwinkles which are in the sea, wherein is a sort of shellfish'.—O'D.

GRACE i. corne i. fiach comradh ('raven-conversation') i. guth fiaich leo 7 is anadarcaib dognidis i. amail esene fiach ('they had the voice of a raven and it is in horns they produced them, i.e. like the young of ravens').

Trumpeters who imitated the croaking of ravens. O'Don. Supp.—Ed.

GIBNE i. adarc lege ('a leech's horn') vel canis ut dictum est gibne gortach ('a hungry hound'), et reliqua.

The 'leech's horn' is a cupping-horn, hörnchen des schrōpfers. In Zeuss 70, 737, gibne glosses cirrus.—Ed.

O C T A V A L I T T E R A.

IHC [Issa B, Ιησοῦς, ἰσοῦ] in hoc nomine est nomen nostri salvatoris.

B adds: i. ar slanaigtheoir.—Ed.

IBAR [iubar B] ('a yew-tree') i.e. εὐ-barr i.e. a good top (barr), because its top (a) never parts from it.

iubar seems the right spelling: cf. the Gaulish plant-name iubaron, ἰονυμᾶπούμ, 'veratrum nigrum' Diosc. IV. c. 16, cited by Diefenbach, Orig. Eur.—Ed.

ITHARNA ('a rushlight') [itharnnae B] i.e. ith ('fat') (and feorna a rush) (?) for its cleanliness (b) and the fat of the cattle they used to melt in the rushes (var. lec. or used to come into the candles) apud veteres.

B adds: Aliter ith ('fat') 7 ornnae i.e. orn orgain ('destruction') oreuin itha ('destruction of fat').—O'D. I have little confidence in the reading and version of this article, If itharna be really a rushlight (it must have been something of the kind, see Adand supra) cf., perhaps, Corn. itheu for iteu (gl. ticio), Bret. etéo, πίτυνε, pitu-dáru. In H. 2.16 Itharna is glossed thus: i. ith 7 feornae i. orotuimter no ithid feornae.—Ed.

IASC ('a fish') i.e. in-ésc 'in water' i.e. esc 'water' in the water, then, it attains its livelihood (c). Or iasc quasi esc i.e. ab esca: es then 'food', unde esser: ca i.e. from caput i.e. head and ridge (d) of every food (is) the fish, for Jesus ate it.

iasc gen. éisc infra s. v. Leithech. Manx eeast, with the usual change of sc to st.—Ed.

INDMAISS [innmus B] ('wealth') i.e. inamus ('growth of prosperity [?]).

Now ionmhus gen. ionmhuis, Gael. ionmhas 'a treasure', inamus is perhaps 'in temptation' cf. the Lebar Brecc paternoster, O'D. Gram. p. 443.—Ed.

ISEL ('low') i.e. is-aill ('below-cliff') for isel 'low' would not be said if there was not ard 'high' by it.

The version is from B: Isel i.e. is aill ar ni erbarad anisil muna be ard ocae. all din ab altitudine. A is corrupt. W. O.Corn. isel, Br. izel. O. Ir. is 'under': is nellaib i.e. fo nellaib, O'Clergy.—Ed.

IARN ('iron') [iarnn B] i.e. iart [iarth B] in nortmannica lingua.

Járn or isarn (Bugge, Kuhn's Zeits. iv. 250) is the Old Norse for iron, A.S. iren, Gaulish isarno, Manx yaarn, W. haiaarn.—Ed.

(a) abarr B. fobarr A. (b) B has ar it glaine 'for they are cleanliness'.—Ed.
(c) 'it is in the water [only] it can support life'.—O'D. (d) 'choicest'.—O'D.

IMESORCAIN [imesorguin B] ('mutual destruction') destruction to each of the two sides it is (a)

See Zeuss, 847, as to the particle im, W. ym 'mutuus'.—Ed. imeasorgain i. orgain no bualadh ar gach leath dhe, O'Clery.—O'D.

IMRIMM ('riding') i.e. im-réimm ['mutual course'] i.e. the course (b) of the horse and the course (b) of the man. Sic et dírim i. e. di-réim, course (b) of two things.

imrim i. marcaigheachd 'riding', O'Clery.—O'D. each imrime 'a riding horse', O'Don. Suppt.—Ed.

IMBLIU ('navel') quasi uimbliu ab umbilico [i. on imlecan B, Manx imleig].

gen. imlenn: imlind, the Middle Ir. acc. sg. occurs as a gloss on Gildas' Lorica, No. 205. The group umbilicus, ὄμφαλός and imbliu, when compared with Skr. ndbhi-s, Lett. nabba, OHG. naba, nabulo, Eng. navel, seems an interesting relic of the Italo-Graeco-Celtic unity.—Ed.

IMBLIUCH [imliuch B] quasi imb-loch i.e. a lough about (imb) it all around.

Imliuch enters into the names of countless places in Ireland, and from the examination of many of them, I am convinced that it signifies 'land verging on a lake'. See description of the church of Emly, anciently Imliuch Ibhair, in Harris' Ware.—O'D. Imlioch i. ime-loch i. loch uime fa geuairt, O'Clery.—Ed.

INIS ('island') i.e. ad insula. Inis, again, that which is difficult (inse), scil. of access, i.e. an-usa, not easy.

Inis is still understood; but oilean is more general in the language spoken.—O'D. Manx insh, innis, W. yngs.—Ed.

INSAMAIN [insamuin B] i. e. anessamain i. e. not welcome [?].

O'Clery has easomain i. failte 'welcome'.—O'D. The meaning of insamain has still to be ascertained:—essamin (confident?) occurs in Z. 592 (hore am essamin-se praecepte) and 739, and the compar. essamnu Z. 737, and the derivative essame in the gloss tre essamni cumacti (gl. per eam confidentiam qua existimor audere, 2 Corinth. 10, 2).—Ed.

IB ('drink thou') quasi bib i. e. bibe.

now obsolete, though used by writers of the last century.—O'D. ib 2d. sg. imper. of ibiu, ibimm 'I drink', has, like many other neo-Celtic words, lost a p at the beginning, and is cognate with the Skr. reduplicated form pibāmi, the Gr. πι-νω, the Old Slav. pi-ti 'to drink'. The p of the root is kept in Lat. pō-tus, po-culum, etc., though in the reduplicated bi-bo it has sunk into b. Cognate is ibas i. lestar condigh ann 'a vessel with drink therein', H. 2, 16. The adj. bibsach i. olach is probably a loan from bibosus.—Ed.

INROSC ('a proverb') [indrosc B] i. e. ind-arosc i. e. an end-word, i. e. arosc (is) a name of 'word' [ainm breithe B].

Ionrosc is explained seanfhocal i. e. 'an old saying, adage or proverb' by O'Clery.—O'D.—Not in my copy, which has only Ionrosog i. inn-arasg i. arasg ainm breithre. (The reading in A is corrupt, do ind or da ind being written for ainm). Arasc occurs in the Tripartite life of S. Patrick (Egerton 93, Mus. Brit.) 6 a, 2: conid disein is arasc 'cosmail Mael do Kaplait' so that hence is (the) word: 'M. is like K'.—Ed.

IMORTAN i. e. Importan i. e. rowing from bank to bank.

(a) orguin cechtor na da leth B.—Ed.

(b) 'motion'.—O'D.

O'D conjectures 'ferrying'.—Ed.

IA a kind of testimony (a), for this is the twelfth name (b) which means Christ (or by which he is called) among the Hebrews.

Apparently an affirmative responsive particle = W. ie 'yea', Bret. ia, Z. 719,720.—Ed.

IDOL i.e. ab idolo, εἴδος in the Greek, forma in the Latin. unde dicitur idolum i.e. the forms and representations of the idols or the creatures which the heathen used to make formerly.

W. eiddawl, M. Bret. idol.—Ed.

INDELBA i.e. the names of the altars of those idols, because they were wont to carve on them the forms (delba) of the elements they adored there, verbi gratia, figura solis [i.e. figura na greine B].

IMBATH [immbath B] i.e. an ocean: bath is a sea, ut est the sea between Ireland and Scotland, vel aliud quodcunque mare which does not encircle, ut mare Tyrrenum. Imbath, then, is imb-muir, an um-sea (c), i.e. a sea which encircles around. To this is the name 'ocean'.

Imbath (for imb-bath) is simply 'big sea' the imb being here an intensive particle, Z. 847: cf. O. Norse um. So O'Clery: Iomhath i.e. muir thimcill i.e. muir thimchilleas oilén no tir ima ceuairt. From bath comes baithis 'baptism' = W. bedydd.—Ed.

IDAN quasi idon ab eo quod est idoneus (i.e. dingbala B. 'fit, worthy').

Idan, which O'D translates 'pure', is rather 'faithful'. cf. the nom. pl. idain (gl. bonam fidem ostendentes) Z. 787.—idan i.e. comlan, O'Davoren, p. 97: iodhan i.e. glan O'Clery: cf. Anidan supra p. 5.—Ed.

IARNBÉLRA ['iron-word'], so called from the word's obscurity and for its darkness and compactness, so that it is not easy to disclose (d) through it.

apparently means an obscure or obsolete word, see supra s. vv. Cloch and Fern.—Ed.

IMBAS FOROSNAI ['knowledge that enlightens'] i.e. it discovers everything which the poet likes and which he desires to manifest. Thus is it done. The poet chews a piece of (the) flesh of a red pig, or of a dog or cat, and puts it afterwards on the flag behind the door, and pronounces an incantation on it, and offers it to idol-gods, and afterwards calls his idols to him and then finds them not on the morrow (e), and pronounces incantations on his two palms, and calls again unto him his idol-gods that his sleep may not be disturbed; and he lays his two palms on his two cheeks and (in this manner) he falls asleep; and he is watched in order that no one may interrupt [?] nor disturb him till everything about which he is engaged is revealed to him, (which may be) a minute or two or three, or as long as he was supposed to be

(a) forcell 'oath'—O'D., but see forcell (gl. testimonium) Z. 468.—Ed.

(b) 'One of the two names'.—O'D. But A has indala n-ainm déic and B has indara hainm déic.—Ed.

(c) Fuller, I think, has umstroke=circumference.—Ed.

(d) taiscelad [taiscelad, B.] 'to see' O'D. 'to rob' (!) Senchas Mór 202. The word means to disclose, reveal, (cf. Gaelic luach taisgeil), to betray (Gael. taisgealach, proditor) and the root (cel Lat. ccllo) is also in the W. diȝelū.—Ed.

(e) 'and he then invokes his idols, and if he obtains not (his desires) on the day following he pronounces' etc.—O'D.

at (the) offering; et ideo imbas dicitur i.e. (his) two palms (boiss) upon (im) him, that is (one) palm over [?] and another hither on his cheeks. Patrick abolished [banished?] this and the teinn lagda, and he adjudged [testified?] that whoever should practise them should have neither heaven nor earth, because it was renouncing baptism. Dicetal do-chennaib ('extempore recital'), then, was left, to be composed in right of (their) art; for this is the cause: it is not necessary in it to make an offering to demons, but there is a revelation at once from (the) ends of (the poet's) fingers.

See O'Donovan's Battle of Magh Rath, pp. 46, 47, and Senchas Mór, pp. 24, 44. B writes Imbas forosne. O'D translates the last sentence thus: 'he left dicedul do chenduibh (an extempore recital) to be composed in the corus cerda (the law of poetry) and the reason this was done is, because it requires no offering to demons, but merely an extempore recital at once'.—Ed.

INNILL i.i. inello i.i. indtus i.i. inursæ ('secure') Inill inell ello græce intro. inill din intra.

I cannot make this out. O'Clery explains innill by urasa and also by daingean. Zeuss, 731, has inill gl. tutor (leg. innill gl. tutus?), and supra, s.v. Fid, we have innill glossing fidus.—Ed.

O'D has marbh-dile 'dead goods or chattels distinguished from beo-dile or live stock'.—Ed.

ICC ('cure') ecesia [ἀκεσία] græce salus latine.

Cognate with ἀκέομαι, ἀκεσία.—O'D. If so the Greek words must have lost y in anlaut, for icc is an Old Celtic iacea*: cf. W. iach 'sound', iachau 'to heal': dá luibh icc i. da luibh leighis, O'Clery.—Ed.

INDITHIM ('meditation') i. entimema (ἐνθιμημα) mentis (a) intentio interpretatur.

Indithim (from inn and feithiumh) is used in the best mss. in the sense of meditation.—O'D. see Innitheamh O'D's Supp. to O'R.—Ed.

IDU ab idor (ἰδωρ) græce hoc est a liquore. i. on fliuchaidecht doni an galar sin ('from the moisture which that disease causes').

O'D plausibly conjectures 'dropsy' (W. dyfrglwyf, waszersucht). It might as well be hydrocele. If idu be either of these diseases, I should compare olðoc 'a swelling', root ID?.—Ed.

ID quasi fid vel equus inemtid vel it.

This gloss is corrupt. In H. 2. 16 it stands thus: Id ercomail quia equus in eo it i. imthet.—Ed. See 4 Masters A.D. 1464 and the article Morann infra: id is a collar or chain.—O'D. idh urchumail (gl. trica) a spanceling chain: cf. perhaps πέδη a fetter.—Ed.

IMB ('butter') ab imbre quasi [leg. quia] imber super flore(s) praestat mel et butirum.

with imb (O.W. emmeni, Corn. amanen, Bret. amann) Siegfried compared Skr. añji 'ointment', ājya 'butter', root añi unguere: imb has come from ANGVI-s as Wallachian lemba from lingua.—Ed.

ITHE ['I eat'] a verbo edo i. domeilim ('I eat').

ithe, better ithiu, which O'D regarded as a substantive meaning 'eating', is = ithim (gl. mando) Z. 430, and another example of the vocalic ending of the 1 sg. pres. indic. act. Vide supra s. v. Duile.—Ed.

ISIL ('a low person') .i. tis fil ('below he is') et uassal ('a noble') .i. tuas fail ('above he is').

IATHLU ('a bat') .i. etti lu .i. bee a eti ('small his wing').

Now ursa.—O'D. gen. ursan, dat. ursain, infra s. v. Nescoit. Manx essyn (for ersyn) y dorrys 'jambs of the door'. The W. gorsin 'doorpost' is perhaps cognate, as gordd 'malleus' is = Ir. ord. The root is probably STA sthā, the suffix an: cf. παραστάδες, στραμάδες.—Ed.

INNURAID ('last year') .i. innuu robaith [the nú (b) that perished] no in anno rofaidh ('that passed') .i. in bliadain tairnic and ('the year that finished then').

still in common use.—O'D. spelt anuraidh. In Zeuss, 565, we have onnurid (gl. ab anno priore) = ó + inn-urid. The u is short, so I suspect that a p has been dropped, and would connect πέρυτις πέρυσι.—Ed.

INLES .i. in fo diultad conach les e acht la nech aile ('in- for negation, so that he does not belong to him but to another').

O'D conjectures 'stepson' sed qu. Innlis, indlis is 'unlawful' O'D. suppt. In H. 2, 16 the gloss runs thus: Innles .i. nidilea fri nech aile.—Ed.

ICHT i. cinn no cland ('a tribe or progeny') ut est Condachta ('Connaught') i. cond-ichta i. clanna quinn ('descendants of Conn').

i.e. Conn of the 100 battles. The more ancient name of the province was Olnegmacht, which is probably [?] the Nagnatae of Ptolemy.—O'D. icht occurs supra s. v. Eoganacht, and infra s. v. Meracht p. 114.—Ed.

INBLEOGAN i. toxal ('taking away') i. athgabail ind fir fine do gabáil a cinaid in cintaig co ro toxla side ar in cintach ('to make reprisal on the tribesman for the crime of the guilty one until he [the tribesman] takes from the guilty one').

O'D translates this: "taking the distress of the tribeman to detain it for the crime of the culprit until he recovers it from cintach". inbleogan i. éscaire 'proclamation', O'Davoren p. 100.—Ed.

IARUS i. iarthor ('west') ut est iarus fis. tuaidsius cath.

was held at Tailtin in Meath.—O'D. Lug is explained laoch 'hero' by O'Davoren
p. 103.—Ed.

LIGUR i.e. a tongue.

LELAP [lelup B] ('a child') i.e. lú-lep: lú everything small, or len-ab, i.e. lenis abbati, i.e. patri. Or because he follows (lenas) abbatem et matrem.

Now leanab.—O'D. B adds: aliter lelup i.e. lupell i.e. lú gach mbeg pell ondi is pellis i.e. maoth ('pell from pellis, ἀπαλός? i.e. 'soft').—Ed.

LESMAC ('a stepson') i.e. lis-mac because he is a lis ('contention') to the husband or to the wife, he who is stepson to either of them. Sic lessmáthair ('stepmother') or lessathair ('stepfather'). Lcs, then, quasi lis i.e. debate or contention.

lesmac (gl. privignus) Leyden Priscian, = W. llysfab 'son-in-law', Bret. lesvab.
O'Clery explains les (spelt leas) by cuis no caingeann ('a cause or contention'), and he cites gleodh gacha leasa i.e. criochnughadh no glanadh gach cúise.—Ed.

LEGAM a moth [?] i.e. ligem (a), from the licking that licks the cloth (b). Or ligh-aith i.e. sharp against colours (liga (c)): it is not, indeed, that he does not rest save on varicoloured cloths; but it is oftenest that he eats coloured

(a) Inserted from B.

(b) 'from the licking of colours in cloth.—O'D.

(c) B and G. ligda A.

cloths. [varia lectio] it is not that he does not rest on every cloth though there be not colours on it, but it is oftener that the coloured cloth is carried off (a) and is (?) quam aliud vestimentum.

O'D identifies legam with the modern leomhann or leamhann 'a moth', sed qu.—Ed.
LECONN [Leconn B] ('cheek') i.e. lecenn i.e. leth-cenn ('one side of the head').
 Manx lieckan.—Ed.

LASAMAIN ab eo quod est laissim i.e. every thing sparkling.

Cognate with lasair 'flame', lasaim 'flammo', and W. llachar 'gleaming', the Irish s and Welsh ch having here each descended from x.—Ed.

LEMLACHT ('new milk') i.e. warm milk (lacht): lem is everything warm.

Now leamhnacht—O'D. W. llefrith 'sweet milk' Br. lēaz līvrīz, Corn. leverid (gl. lac dulce).—Ed.

LOCH i.e. two things it means: loch i.e. black, ut dicitur a(s) soilge laith lochrúna ('prosperous is a king of dark secrets'), i.e. though dark the council of every one before and after, their secrets are the worse [?] through (their) king discovering (them). Loch i.e. 'all', unde dicitur lochdub i.e. all black.

Loch 'black' seems = W. llwg 'livid', 'scurvy'.—Ed. What is luach in luachtetib i.e. lanteib Félice Prol. 41? O'Clergy has loch i.e. uile, lóch i.e. dubh: looh i.e. imad, O'Davoren p. 102.—Ed.

LAARG [la-arg B] i.e. lo-arg or leo-arg: leo 'a member' and arg 'a hero'.
Leo here is a member or a joint or portion for a good hero.

O'D conjectures 'saddle': la-arg is glossed by gabul 'a fork' in Egerton 1782, and in Lib. Armacach. 12 b, 1, we have "vadum duarum furcarum i.e. dá-loarc juxta cenondas" where rc (as often) stands for rg. Possibly κρε-άγρα for κρερ-άγρα may be connected with la-arg, lo-arg from (c)lav-arg, as ribar from cribrum.—Ed.

LORG i.e. lo-airg i.e. the hero's joint: loric unde dicitur.

B has Lorg i.e. lúi arg i.e. laich i no lar rice, G omits the word lúi may be = Skr. kravisi. What joint is referred to I cannot say: cf. na lorg-dromma (gl. spinas) Gildas' Lorica.—Ed.

LÁM ('a hand') i.e. luam ('pilot'), because it pilots [qy. moves quickly (luas) = round] the entire body.

Manx laue, W. llaw, O.Corn. lof.—Ed.

LÁMOS ('a sleeve' i.e. lám-fhoss, i.e. foss the case of the arm.

Hence lámōstæ (gl. manuleatus) Z. 20. W. llawes 'sleeve' pl. llewys Z.800.—Ed.

LÁMIND [B and G lamand] 'a glove', i.e. láim-ind ['arm-end'], i.e. the end of the arm (b) is clothed by it.

LÚDA [B lauda, G lautu] i.e. the little finger i.e. lú everything small, for it is the smallest finger of the hand.

(a) 'he oftener fixes himself (ara chiallathar) and rests upon coloured cloth quam' &c.—O'D. But cf. ar-id-ro-chell 'is rapuit' Z. 338, and arcelim (gl. anfero) Z. 1020.

(b) 'hand'.—O'D. In Manx laueyn is 'glove'.—Ed.

From lú for lug (= ἔλαχίς) and da from dagh cognate with δοχμή, Lat. dig-itus, and perhaps δάκτυλος from δάχτυλος as λέκτρον for λέχτρον. The diminutive ludugán (O. Ir. *lúdudcán) is one of the class of diminutives to which belong crídecán 'little heart' and Isucán 'little Jesus'.—Ed.

LIAE ('a stone') [Lie B and G] ab eo quod est λιθος Graece lapis latine dicitur.

Rather cf. λᾶας for λᾶας. The oldest example is on the Inchaguile stone: Lie luguædon macci menueh. Lie 'a millstone' also in Senchas Mór, p. 140, and see Cadut and Cloch supra.—Ed.

LAITH two things it means i.e. laith 'a valiant hero' and laith 'a balance,' ut praediximus: eter laithe Lugba ['between the scales of Lugba?'], i.e. in the balance of Lugba the goldsmith, when (a) Fachtna adjusted the money for the cows. It is when the mark of length (forshail) is there or upon it that it means this.

O'Clery has laithe i.e. meadh tomhais óir no airgid. See Fir supra, p. 27.—Ed.

LANGFITER i.e. an English (word) this: lang 'long' and feitir i.e. a fetter of the foreigners. Langfiter i.e. a long fetter which is between the fore-legs and the hind-legs. Non sic urchomul i.e. ur a chomul ['east its junction?'] which is between the two fore-legs of the horse.

cf. langfhitil iter a cenn ocus a cosa, Senchas Mór p. 174. where the fitil is either a corruption of our fiter, feiter (= A.S. feter, feter compes), or borrowed from A.S. fetel (O. N. fetill) cingulum, balteus. Langphetir i.e. ainm do għlas bhios idir chois tosaigh 7 chois deiridhech ('name for a fetter which is between a forefoot and a hindfoot') O'Clery. B has Langpeitir, Langphetir. Gaelic langaid, Manx langeid.—Ed.

LECHT i.e. a dead man's bed, ab eo quod est lectus.

Now written leacht: still in use in the spoken Irish, and applied to an honorary monument of any description, generally a heap of stones.—O'D. Cognate with lec-tus, lec-tica, λέκτρον, λέχ-ος Goth. liga, Eng. lie, lay. Oc a lecht eo nglaine iethar enet cech cridi 'at his (Moelruain's) grave with purity is healed the sigh of every heart', Féilire Prologue, 227, 228. Ia uas lecht, Book of Leinster 28b. Manx lliaght.—Ed.

LONG ('a ship'), i.e. ab eo quod est longa i.e. long, which is on (the) sea.

Hence [loinges 'a fleet', = W. llynges, whence] loingeach 'mariner', applied to Labhra, an Irish monarch, who led a Gaulish colony into Ireland before the Christian era.—O'D. Long, f. gen. luinge = Manx lhang, W. llong, Bret. long f. (b).—Ed.

LEBOR ('book') quasi libor a libro.

Manx lioar, W. llyfr, Corn. liver, Mid. Bret. leffr, now léor.—Ed.

LOTT ('a harlot') quasi lot ('destruction'), unde dicitur lotrad for the whoredom is destruction (rott) to woman.

löt i.e. meirdreach, O'Clery—O'D. cf. perhaps, W. llwth 'greedy'.—Ed.

LÁTH 'a hero' quasi láth ['motion'] because he moves supinely (with suppleness).

Hence lathus 'heroism' O'D's Suppt. cf. láth i.e. laoch, O'Clery.—O'D. W. llorwd 'a lad'.—Ed.

LOMMAND i.e. lomm-fhann, because it is bare (lomm) and weak (fann).

(a) I read with B, orūmidir.—Ed.

(b) Here in B follows: Luacuir i.e. taitnem ('delightful') ab eo quod est luceo vel lux i.e. soillse.—Ed.

O'D guesses 'a threadbare cloak': but cf. W. llumman 'a banner'. O'Clery has lomain i. brat 'mantle'.—Ed.

LATHIRT ['drunkenness'] i.e. laith 'ale' and irt 'death' to him who drank it: [var. lectio] i.e. the drinking of beer or ale killed him.

laithirt (gl. c(r)apula) Ir. Glosses, No. 266. laith = Corn. lad (gl. liquor), Lat. latex.—Ed.

LUGBORT ('a herb-garden') melius est (a) i.e. lub-gort i.e. gort luibe 'a garden of vegetables'.

lubgort Lib. Arm. 17 b. 1: lubgartóir (gl. olitor) Z. 45. Corn. luvorth, lowarth, Br. liorx.—lub = AS. ledf, Ohg. laub, and gort = χόρτος, hortus. This gloss can hardly have been written in the tenth century.—Ed.

LÍN ('flax') a lino. Léine ('a shirt') a linea one from another.

Now lion, Manx lieen, W. and Bret. llín.—Ed.

LÁNOMAIN ('a married couple') i.e. línshomain full property of each other, for each is half property without the other

B adds: Aliter lanamain quasi lenamain ('clinging') ar ni fil etarscarad doib acht ar dia ('for there is no sundering of them save for God's sake'): lánamnas 'matrimonium' Z. 988,989.—Ed. Maux lannoona 'a couple'.—Ed.

LETHECH: two things it means. It is, in the first place, a name for a kind of fish [a flounder], which is so called from its breadth and thinness, for the kind of it in oceano is very broad. Lethech is also a name for a kneading-trough, because the cake is spread on it, as Crutíne said on a time that he went to another poet's house, and his gillie with him, i.e., a student with a master's pride (b). Crutíne himself remained (c) outside and sent his gillie for hospitality (d) to the poet's house. A hog's belly (tarr) was given him in a caldron, and presently (e) the poet began conversing with the student and casting an eye on his diligence (in preparing the meat). The poet observed the great pride of the student and the smallness of his diligence. So when the belly was boiled the poet said in the presence of the student 'Dofotha tairr tein', i.e. it is time to take it off the fire, and it was (in the poetical dialect he said this) in order that he might know what answer the student would give him; because he had heard the poet (Crutíne) boasting of the other's wonderful inventions (f) as if it were himself of whom he spoke (g), and he did not believe that poet, and it was therefore that the poet said to test the student 'Dofotha tairr tein'; et tribus vicibus dixit 'Dofotha tairr tein', et non respondit ei vel ullum verbum. Thereafter arose the student and came to the place where Crutíne was and related the news to him i.e. the words which

(a) B translates: ni is ferr.—Ed.

(b) B: co menmain fithidire lais: G: co menmain fithidrea. A: co menmain a fithire. Fither i. ollamh O'D. Supp.—Ed.

(c) B and G: farrolaig A: farolaid. Qy. meaning.—Ed.

(d) 'as a quest'—O'D.

(e) calleic B and G. colcig A. See Z. 364, 565, 678.—Ed.

(f) 'he had heard the poet (Crutíne) boast of his (pupil's) many wonderful perfections'.—O'D.

(g) ar a tisced, lit. 'on whom he should come'.—Ed.

the poet spake i.e. 'Dofotha tairr tein'. "Good", quoth Crutíne, "when he says (them) again, say thou to him 'Tóe lethraig foen friss ocus fris adaind indlis' i.e. put a kneading-trough under it, i.e. the belly, and light a candle to see if the belly be boiled. When the student then had sat (a) within (on his return) the poet dixit the same, et dixit the student Tóe lethraig etc., "Good", quoth the poet, "It is not a student's mouth (b) that has returned (this answer.) He is near who returned (it). Crutíne is near. Call him from outside" (c). Crutíne is then summoned, great welcome is made to him, and other food is put into the caldron. And little is the pride of the student because the poet jeered at him (d) until he addressed Crutíne, etc.

Leitheach i.e. leitheog i.e. iasg leathan ('a broad fish', W. lleeden). Leitheach i.e. losad do bhrígh go leathnaithear bairghean uirre, O'Clery: fris 'light thou' seems cognate with W. gureichion 'sparks': adann 'a rushlight' occurs supra p. 10.—Ed.

LEOS i.e. a blush wherewith a person is reddened after a satire or reproach of him. Leos [lōes G] also i.e. 'light' as in the Duil Roscadach 'grinniud leos' [lois G] i.e. extinction of light' i.e. of a candle: Item 'the face of a man round which leos luinether i.e. which light surrounds.

DECIMA LITTERA.

'Mo DEBROTH' said Patrick, quod Scotici corrupte dicunt. Sic hoc dici debet i.e. muin duiu braut, i.e. muin is 'meus', the duiu is 'deus', the braut is 'judex'. i.e. meus deus judex.

An asseveration constantly used by S. Patrick as we learn from his lives. Thus explained in the life preserved in Leabhar Breacc 14 a. 1: Dixit magus ní chumcaim cusin trath céadna imbárach. Dar mo debroth i. dar mo dia mbratha ol patraic is inulce attá do cumachta ocus ní fil itir a maith ['I cannot, till the same hour tomorrow.' 'By my de broth, i.e. by my God of judgment,' says Patrick, 'it is in evil that thy power is, and not at all in good']. See also Colg. Trias Thaum. pp. 4, 57. and Jocelin, cap. 185.—O'D. B translates the first part of this article thus: luide [leg. luige = W. llw] Mo de brot i. mo dia brat(h)a ol patraic i. is truallned aderaid na scotica hé i. marso is dligedh a radha i. muin(n) duiu braut. The pronoun muin, preserving the n in auslaut, seems = Goth. meina, and is to be separated from the Old-Welsh mi, (Juvencus pp. 48,50) Middle-Welsh vy (Z. 137.388) now fy, nasalising (a), which seem datives = émuív, (where, however, the t is long). The duiu (wrongly spelt doin in A) = deva, has been noticed under Grazacham. The braut, Z. 103, wrongly explained by Cormac as judex (i. bret(h)em. B) is now braud 'judicium' = Ir. bráth supra p. 18.—Ed.

MARC i.e. a horse: marcach, then, many horses with him, ut dicitur buasach 'the man with whom are many cows,' airmnech, also, 'the man who owns much corn'. Sic airgdech ('one having chests'), colgedach ('one having bed-clothes').

MÁTHAIR ('mother') quasi mater, for it is this that was there corrupted, i.e. mater.

cf. μήτηρ, Lat. máter, Ohg. muotar, Eng. mother.—O'D. Skr. mátri. In the British languages we find only the derivatives W. modryb pl. modreped Z. 1095, 'aunt'=Corn. modereb, Bret. mozreb now moérélb.—In Gaulish the dat. pl. mátrebo was recognised by Siegfried on the inscription of Nimes supra p. 18.—Ed.

MID ('mead'): Welsh was corrupted there, i.e. med.

MEITHEL ('a party of reapers') quasi methel ab eo quod est meto [i. boingim, H. 3.18. p. 636, col. 3.]

MUCAIRBE i.e. a mac fuirmid (a) i.e. a youth for repeating [?] his poetry.

A mac fuirmid seems to have been a poet or storyteller of the sixth order, and to have been bound to repeat 40 tales. Senchas Mór p. 44. O'D says a mucairbe was a poet of the second order.—Ed.

MÁS ('a mass') a massa.

B reads: Máis quasi a mása i. on cáir.—D. mac Firbis seems to bring mas from μάζα 'barley bread'.—Ed. He writes in the margin of H. 2.15. Maza i. cinel aráin doníther do bhainne 7 do blath gnathuighid aos tuaithe ('a kind of bread that is made of milk and of flour, which common people use').—O'D. O'Clery has máis i. caor. máis óir i. caor óir.—Ed. Más now signifies the thigh, buttock, &c. and when applied topographically, a thick or rich hill.—O'D.

MISCAITH ('a curse') i.e. mí-scath 'an evil word': scath i.e. a word, as is Duil Ro-scadach ['the great-worded Book'].

Duil Roscadach was evidently the name of a glossary or explanation of hard words.—O'D. See Roscad infra p. 144. Miscaid i. mallacht ('a curse') ut est miscaidh fri ceird cainte ('a curse on a satirist's art'), O'Davoren p. 104.—Ed.

MILGITAN i.e. Mol-cuítén i.e. the share of Mol i.e. the door-keeper of Tara. Mol then, was his name, because of the talk (mol) which he addressed (c) to the people, i.e. 'go thou out, go thou in' (d): unde dicitur molach ('talkative').

Milgitan [explained by maol 'forehead' in B] is frequently mentioned in the poems describing the arrangement of the different ranks in the banqueting hall of Tara, as a particular joint of meat allotted to several classes of persons. See Petrie's Tara, Trans. R. I. A. xviii., pp. 206, 307.—O'D. So in H. 3. 18, p. 636, col. 3. Milgedan i. mol-chuidan cuit mol ('Mol's share') ar is é aighe dohertha dó ('for this a joint that was given to him'). O'Clery explains mol by glór 'noise', whence molmar i. glórach 'noisy': cf. W. moloch 'up roar'. The Gaelic molach is 'hoarse'.—Ed.

MELG [melgg B]. i.e. 'milk' arindí mblegar ('because it is milked').

melg i. as, mealg i. sugh, O'Davoren pp. 105, 107. So in Egerton 1782, p. 26: Melg i. as 7 melg i. súgl fobith asperat melg fri cuirm i. melg netha: cf. ἀμέλγω, mulgeo, milk.—O'D. Skr. mr̥ij, máryjmi, máryjámi. The O. Ir. preterite do-o-malgg (gl. mulxi) occurs in Z. 71. See bo-mlacht supra p. 20.—Ed.

(a) He was sixth in order and had 40 stories. Senchas Mór, p. 44.—Ed.

(b) 'The evil eye' 'the injury done by the evil eye'.—O'D.

(c) noferad lit. 'which he made': feraim = O. W. guru, Corn. guraff, Br. groaff, graf.—Ed.

(d) i.e. those going out and coming in.—O'D.

MELG also i.e. death, inde dicitur melyg theme ['death-darkness'] i.e. the darkness of death: or melyg-thene (a), i.e. the fire of death.

O'Davoren, p. 105, differs here: he explains melyg by as 'juice' and teme by bas 'death' i.e. as mbá(is) ('juice of death') i.e. fuil ('blood').—Ed.

MORANN i.e. mór-shinn i.e. 'great-fairhaired.' This was his name which his mother gave him, and she said that whoever would not say (this name) to him should be subject to death (d). Mac Máin 'son of wealth' his father said to him, i.e. because this son was a good treasure (b), and whosoever would not say this name to him should be liable to death (c). So that these two names clung to him instead of one name. He (was) a son of Coirpre Cennchait.

Morann, son of Cairbre Cennchait, who was king of the Aithch-tuatha at the beginning of the first century, was chief Brehon to Feradach Finnfechtnach. It is fabled of Morann that he had a sín, or chain, called Idh Morainn [and that he "never pronounced a judgment without having this chain around his neck. When he pronounced a false judgment the chain tightened round his neck. If he passed a true one, it expanded down upon him"].—Senchas Mór, p. 25]. The legend alluded to in the text is given in the Book of Ballymote, fol. 143.—O'D.

MENADH ('an awl') i.e. mín 'small' (d) and áith 'sharp' it pierces. Menadh, again, small (mín) its iadh 'its hole.'

Still the common word for awl throughout Ireland. In the Highlands, minidh.—O'D. B has: i. min aith i. aith gonas 7 min fuaiges ('what pierces sharp and stitches small'). Menad i. min a inad et coel a toll ('small its place and slender its hole'). Hence it seems that the iadh of A is a blunder for inadh 'place'. The W. minawayd 'awl' is hardly the same word.—Ed.

MOTH i.e. everything masculine i.e. every masculine word, et nomen est virili membro [i. ball ferrda B]

So O'Clery. Moth 'male' possibly cognate with Skr. mati 'mind' and μῆτις = Skr. máti in abhimáti, Lat. mas etc. These forms are referred to the root MAN, and as to the occasional loss of n before t in Irish roots, cf. imdirb' the, foirc' the, Ebel, Beitraise, III, 37. I would put moth 'penis' with Skr. matháni 'agito', Lat. me-n-tula etc.—Ed.

MAN ('hand') a manu.

So O'Clery, see infra p. 120. W. man, mun.—Ed. mana má i. lámhagán ('glove') O'Clery.—O'D.

MANACH ('mouk') a monacho.

So O'Davoren, who adds 'he is making cashels and clocháns or toothchars' (?).—Ed. : W. mynach, Corn. manach.—O'D. In his supplement to O'Reilly O'D explains manach by servitor.—Ed.

MONACH i.e. 'tricky' ab eo quod est mon i.e. 'a trick'.

see Caill Crínmon supra p. 35, and perhaps Bri-mon smetrach supra, p. 22. O'Clery has mon i. cleas.—Ed.

(a) Sic B. melgtheinte A.—Ed. 'that he would be an enemy unto death to any one who would not call him that name'.—O'D.

(b) main, better moin is the Lat. moenus, munus.—Ed.

(c) Here, and in the preceding sentence, O'D renders bidba (leg. biddu as in G.) bais by 'an enemy unto death', 'a mortal enemy'.—But biddu is reus, obnoxius, Z. 250, n. pl. masc. bidbid (gl. obnoxi, Milan).—Ed.

(d) min 'close'.—O'D.

METHOS a meta i. from the goal.

G has simply methos i. a meta. B. has metass a meta i. ón crích. A, confounding metus with meta, adds on crith ('from the trembling') no on crích ('from the goal').—Ed. Mac Firbis writes in the margin of H. 2,15: meta i. comurda doníter forcenul láimhaig no sgríbe each 7 sé buinnremur barrchaol. Meta i. crioch no ceann deirennach gach neithe ('a mark made for shooting or horse-racing, with a thick base, and a slender top. Meta 'the limit or extreme end of any thing').—O'D. The dat. sg. of methos (im-methus tuathai) occurs in O'Davoren, p. 106, who explains it by crích no coiged 'boundary or province.'—Ed.

MOLAD (molod B) praise i.e. mol-soad i.e. mol ['millshaft'] from its frequency, soad ['turning'] from its usualness.

Manx moyley, W. molad, Br. meûleûdi.—Ed.

MENMCHOSACH [-chasach, B. -chossach, G.] i.e. he has a mind not to be satiated. Or he has a disputative mind (menme).

This is obscure.—Ed.

MUIRTCHENN ('carrion') ab eo quod est morticinium [i. marbadh B] i.e. mar-tarcenn i.e. head (turning) back suddenly, i.e. because it is dead suddenly.

Morticinæ ovis carne vesci, Varro: formuichthib i. moirtchenn (gl. subfucatis) Lib. Armach. 181, a.1: applied to an animal that [died or] was suffocated, or killed without being regularly slaughtered. D. mac Firbis writes, Morticinium i. ní do gheibh báis gan marbadh 7 ar a mbí drochghnúis mairbh 'a thing that dies without being slaughtered, and which has the evil aspect of death'.—O'D. See above s. v. Baten.—Ed.

MUILENN 'a mill' i. e. shaft (mol) and stone (onn), i.e. for these are the two things that are most together (a) in a mill. Onn i.e. a stone: greater its óil i.e. its stones, than the stones of a quern. Muilinn then, i.e. meil 'grind' and linn ('water') for it is on a linn it grinds. Mola muilenn, mola bró ('quern') or muiliern [?]

B has Muilend. Manx mwyllin, W. Corn. and Bret. melin. Corn. also belin.—Ed.

MERDRECH ('a harlot') i.e. mer, drech i.e. mer and drech united, a woman of wanton countenance. Or mer i.e. lustful and drech i.e. imprudent. Merdrech then, an imprudent harlot. Inde poeta: mer cach drúth mianach cach baeth 'wanton every harlot, sensual every foolish (woman)'. Or Mertrech ab eo quod est meretrix i.e. a merendo stupri pretium.

B adds by way of translation: digid si fiach a saothair 'she deserves (the) reward of her labour'. As the O. Ir. form is mertrech, the first part of this article is clearly not by Cormac, and is not found in G.—Ed. Merdreach is still used, but the more usual word is striopach.—O'D. Manx streepagh.—Ed.

MÁT i.e. a hand: inde indmat (handwashing) i.e. the end (ind) of the arms, but is washed there. Indlat ('footwashing') also, for its foot is the end (ind) of the leg, et a lotione (latitudine ?) dicitur.

O'Clery agrees as to mát and indmat. He also gives lat as meaning troigh 'foot', but explains innlat as glanadh 'washing' 'cleansing' [ionnlat a bheathadh 'purifying his life']. Ionnlat denotes in Ireland and the Highlands 'washing' in general.—O'D. mádt probably comes from the root MA to measure.—Ed.

MÁT 'a pig'. Inde dicitur in the Bretha Nemed: Forruachtatar máta mo thuinde targaboil ('pigs have torn my skin by attack' [?]).

Spelt mait by O'Davoren s. v. Main.—cuich in mait romainighis?—Ed.

MANN i.e. an ounce, ut Sencha dixit

Móu alib imdergad Emna! domidiur (a) de secht eachtu cíchsidi (b) crissu secht mogu mograigthi fri mórgnímu mugsaine secht manna óir aithleghtha fri fíal-gnúis mo charat móir. Móu.

"Greater than can be told (is the) reproach of Emain. I adjudge for it seven bondmaids deepbreasted, slender: seven bondmen enslaved for the great labours of slavery: seven ounces of refined gold for my great friend's noble face (c). Greater etc." Mann then is 'bright' i.e. a refined ounce.

The reading of the quotation in G varies: Mó ailib imdergad emnæ admiudur de secht cactu (d) cíchsíte crisu secht mugu moigfe mórgnímu mugsaine secht manna óir forloiscthi fri fialgnúis cona chaurathaib conchobuir. B has merely Secht manda oir forloiscthi fri fialgnúse cona curadaib conchobair. O'D translates "Great the wounding to reproach Emain: there is adjudged for it seven bondmaids to walk in girdles, seven, &c. But móu is 'major' not 'magnus': alib or ailib is the dat. pl. of ál (ailib i. briathraib) O'Davoren, s. v. Digluinn etc. domidiur or admididiur is 1st sg. pres. indic. of a deponent ia-stem: cf. midiar 'puto' Z. 444: cíchsidi, acc. pl. of an adj. formed from cích 'mamma': crissu, acc. pl. m. of cres i. caol, O'Davoren p. 67, who, at p. 62, has part of this passage in his gloss on cacht i. cumal no innilt ('sheslave or handmaid') ut est secht eachta cíchsísa crisa. Siegfried connected mann 'ounce', from *márnva, with muñvoc, muñoc, as Latin un-cia with unus. Hence it would seem that the old Celts had an unit of weight.—Ed.

MUNNU i.e. mo Fhinnu a pet name. Finntain nomen dictus est; unde Maedóc Ferna dixit in his satire on Munnu son of Tulchán:

O little vassal of mighty God!
O son of Tulchán, O shepherd!
She bore a troublesome child (i.e. a demon) to a family,
The mother that bore thee, O Finntan!

Finntan or Munna, son of Tulchán, was founder and patron of the monastery of Teach Munna (Taghmon) in the now county of Wexford. He died 25th Oct. 634.

(a) MS. domider. (b) MS. cumala oichside: cumala is obviously a gloss on cachtu which the scribe inserted in the text without making the necessary change in the termination of the adjective cressu.—Ed.

(c) i.e. a plate or crescent of gold of the weight or value commensurate with his face.—O'D. See Toghaill Caithrach Máine Miscoithe and Welsh Laws pp. 3. 168.—O'D. See also Mesca Ulad in Leb. na huidre, fo. 10 b. 2.—E. Curry, Tiagait úad iartain 7 fíachait hennachtain leiss. Tánic dana aillil anes fri hultu combúi for cíelidi oeo. They come from him then and leave a blessing with him. Then Aillil came southwards to (the) Ulstermen, and he was on a visit with them. There was given the breadth of his face, of gold and silver, to Aillil, and seven sheslaves to each son of his sons. Then went Aillil to his country in peace and unity with the Ulstermen".—Ed.

(d) better cachtu, acc. pl. of cacht=W. caeth m., Corn. caid, Bret. quacz=Lat. captus.—Ed.

Maedóc of Ferns was the first bishop of Ferns and died 31st Jan. 624. This saint is otherwise called Aedán, his first name was Aidh, of which Aedán, Aedóc are diminutives. The name Maedóc, now Mogue, is formed by prefixing mo 'my' to Aedóc. In the gloss on the Féliche of Oengus, at 21st October, the quatrain is attributed to S. Columcille: it begins A cléirchin chaid chumachtaig ['O little cleric, chaste, mighty!'].—O'D. It appears from the gloss here referred to that Munnu, son of Taulchán the druid, made a union (oéntu) with Fiuntan of Cluain Eidnech, and that, in token thereof, each of them gave his own name to the other.—Ed.

MÁL i.e. a king or a poet: inde dicitur "Bind not silver nor gold, save on a mál, i.e. on a king."

O'Davoren, p. 106, explains mal by uasal 'noble', and gives the quotation thus: ni nais uma ('copper') na or na airget acht for mal.—The W. mawl is 'praise'. In Skr. mála is a name for Vishnu.—Ed. O'Clery has mál i. rí ('king'), an mhál i. an rioghan ('the queen'): mal i. uasal, mál i. fili ('poet') and i. miliadh no gaisgeadhach ('a soldier or champion').—O'D.

MUIREND means two things, first, it is a [proper] name for a woman: muirend i. mor-flhind ('great fair'). Muirend also is a name for a spear i.e. mi-rind, i.e. droch-rind 'evil point', a point which causes death.

So in H. 3.18, p. 636, col. 3: [Muirenn i.] mirind i. gae, ut dixit finn dergaider muirrne m(b)lith. O'Davoren, p. 105, explains muirenn by sleagh, and quotes tuile mar muirne 'a great flood of spears'. O'Clery, too, has muireann i. ga no sleagh.—Ed.

MUG-ÉIME, that is the name of the first lapdog that was in Ireland. Cairbre Musc, son of Conaire (1) brought it from the east from Britain; for when great was the power of the Gael on Britain, they divided Alba between them into districts, and each knew the residence of his friend, and not less did the Gael dwell on the east side of the sea quam in Scotica, and their habitations and royal forts were built there. Inde dicitur Dinn Tradui, i.e. Triple-fosset Fort, of Crimthann the Great, son of Fidach (2), king of Ireland and Alba to the Ictian sea, et inde est Glas-tonbury of the Gael, i.e. a church on the border (bru) of the Ictian sea (3). It is there was Glass son of Cass, swineherd of the king of Hiruaith (4), with his swine feeding, and it was he that Patrick resuscitated at the end of six score (a) years after he was slain by the soldiers of Mac Con. And it is in that part is Dinn map Lethain in the lands of the Cornish Britons, i.e., the Fort of MacLiathain, for mac is the same as map in the British. Thus every tribe divided on that side (b), for its property to the east was equal [to that on the west] (c) and they continued in this power till long after the coming of Patrick. Hence Cairbre Musc was visiting in the East his family and his friends. At this time no lapdog had come into the land of Ériu, and the Britons commanded that no lapdog should be given to the Gael on solicitation or by free will, for gratitude or friendship. Now at this time the law among the Britons was, "Every criminal for his crime such as breaks

(a) A has XX VI, but B has VI fchit, G has se fchit.—O'D.

(b) di suidiu = desin in B, disin G.—Ed.

(c) "Such were the divisions of all the families, for each had a proportion in the east (eastern Island").—O'D.

the law" (a). There was a beautiful lapdog in the possession of a friend of Cairbre Musc in Britain, and Cairbre got it from him [thus]. Once as Cairbre (went) to his house, he was made welcome to everything save the lapdog. Cairbre Musc had a wonderful skene, around the haft whereof was adornment of silver and gold. It was a precious jewel. Cairbre put much grease about it and rubbed fat meat to its haft, and afterwards left it before the lapdog. The lapdog began and continued to gnaw the haft till morning, and hurt the knife, so that it was not beautiful. On the morrow Cairbre made great complaint of this, and was sorry for it, and demanded justice for it of his friend. 'That is fair, indeed: I will pay for the trespass,' said he. 'I will not take aught', says Cairbre, 'save what is in the law of Britain, namely, 'every animal (b) for his crime'.' The lapdog was therefore given to Cairbre, and the name, i.e. Mug éime ['slave of a haft'] clung to it, from mug 'a slave' [and éim 'a haft'], because it was given on account of the skene. The lapdog (being a bitch) was then with young. Ailill Flann the Little (5) was then king over Munster, and Cormac, grandson of Conn (6) at Tara; and the three took to wrangling, and to demand and contend for the lapdog; and the way in which the matter was settled between the three of them was this, that the dog should abide for a certain time in the house of each. The dog afterwards littered, and each of them took a pup of her litter, and in this wise descends (c) every lapdog in Ireland still. Now after a long time the lapdog died, and Connla (7) son of Tadhg, son of Cian, son of Oilill Olum, found the lapdog's bare skull, and took it as a puzzle to a poet who had come with an ái or an airchetul to his father. Maen mac Edaine was the poet's name. The poet Maen afterwards solved it through the teinn laeghda, and he said:

"Cain tonna tige hui Eoguin
Ith i tig hui Chuind cachtádath tobara(i)nd
basa caem i tig Coirpri Muisc (d)

O Mug-éime! This is the head of Mug-éime, to wit the first lapdog that was brought into Ireland", etc.

(1) Conaire Mór monarch of Ireland circ. A.D. 212.—O'D.

(2) Crimthan Mór son of Fidach, succeeded to monarchy of Ireland A.D. 366: reigned 13 years.—O'D.

(a) I would read: cach bidbu innachinait do neuch nofhuasnabat a chdin, and translate—"Every criminal for his crime (shall be given) to him whose law he shall have outraged." With the 3rd sg. 2dy fut. nofhuasnabat cf. the adj. fuasna Z. 9. B reads: in bidbla innachinait doneoch forsesed a chain no foruasnafad ichain G has, cech bidbu innachinait doneoch foroesad.—Ed.

(b) rob 'criminal'.—O'D. This blunder (in which the Editor followed O'D) has already been corrected by Dr. Ferguson, who also compares with the passage in the text the law 'si quadrupes panperiem faxit dominus noxie aetimam offerto: si nollet quod noxit dato.

(c) atathar literally 'is': a passive form of the verb subst. B has: is on choin sin orci eirend "it is from that dog (are) the lapdogs of Ireland".—Ed.

(d) O'D's attempt at the quatrain is mere guesswork: Sleek thy skin in the house of Eogan, There was food in the house of Conn's grandson, Still you showed the skin of starvation and abuse. Thou wert comely in Coirpre Musc's house.—Ed.

(3) Ictian sea (muir n-Icht) now the English Channel.—O'D. Glastonbury is in the heart of Somerset; but the fact that it stands on the river Brue (which, however, flows into St. George's Channel) may perhaps have caused this geographical mistake.—Ed.

(4) Hiruatha (Hirotae, Lib. Arm. 14 a ?) the gen. sg. of Hirúraith which is supposed to be Norway: cf. Harothas, as Ettmüller proposes to read the Hælethas of the Scop's Tale, 163, the people of Hörthaland in Norway, according to Thorpe. Haeretha land is mentioned in the A.S. Chronicle, I think, at A.D. 787.—Ed.

(5) King of Munster and son of Fiacha Muillethan, A. D. 260.—O'D.

(6) He became king of Ireland A. D. 254.—O'D.

(7) This Connla was the ancestor of the O'Carrolls of Ely, of the O'Meaghers of Ilkerrin in Co. Tipperary and of the O'Conors of Gleann Geimhin in the barony or Cianachta (Keenaght) in Co. Londonderry.—O'D.

MUNA ('Munster') de nomine alicujus regis, i.e. Eochaid the Rough. Mu-mo i.e. Eochaid mu-mó i.e. greater (mó) his hold and his valour and his power than any king. From his name Mumain was called and Muimníg ('Munstermen') dicuntur. Mumu, then, de nomine regis dicitur.

He was of the line of Eibher and the 32nd monarch of Ireland, A. M. 3150, according to O'Flaherty.—O'D.

MUGH ('slave') quasi mách ('mist') for it is under mist and punishment of servitude he is continually.

mug (gen. moga) = Z. 254, 987, an u-stem, is = Goth. magu-s, Corn. maw. The article must have been written when there was some resemblance in sound between final gh and ch.—Ed.

MUGSAINE ('slavery') i.e. mugsíne quasi mug-sníme, i.e. the sadness that is on the mind of the bondsman.

mughsaine (gl. famulacio) H. 2. 13.—Ed.

MÚCH i.e. a name proper for smoke: unde dicitur muchad ('to smother').

So O'Clery. W. mwg 'smoke', M. Bret. moguet.—Ed.

MILIS ('sweet') quasi melis: mil 'honey', i.e. mel was corrupted there. milis i.e. is the same as mel.

acc. pl. léic úait inna biada milsi, Z. 253 'put from thee the sweet foods'. Manx millish, W. melys.—Ed. cf. Gr. μέλιτι, Lat. mel, mellis.—O'D. Goth. milith. Possibly in the Celtic forms the s may have arisen from t + ti.—Ed.

MIDACH quasi medic ab eo quod est medicus [i. liagh B].

A Tuatha dé Danann physician, son of Dian-cecht.—O'D. O'Davoren has Midhach i.e. calma 'brave'.—Ed.

MER ['a madman'] because he is alone in the alt in which he is, i.e. in meracht (a) and alone he goes: quasi merulus, i.e. a blackbird, et inde merulus [leg. μέρωψ?] græce quod volat solus (b), and there is not another bird even of its own kind in its company.

O'D reads mér [sic in B and G; mear in A] and explains it by 'finger', which is undoubtedly its usual meaning, but gives no sense here. So alt (= artus) he renders by 'a joint'. But it is also 'a wooded valley' and 'a height'. I conjecture that mer 'mad' is cognate with μωρός and that mer 'blackbird' is cognate with μέροψ (the Welsh mwyalch f. for mésalca*, Corn. moelh, Br. moualc'h, has lost s which, in the Latin mérula, for misula* = Ohg. amisala, has regularly become r): see mer i. mo a ír, infra: in ben-mer, 'the madwoman', Senchas Mór, p. 52; and mearaidh i. amadán, O'Clery. In H. 3. 18, p. 82, col. 2, we have Mer i. merulus i. lon no baot(h) ('a blackbird or foolish') unde dicitur meroc a merula i. glasluin.—Ed.

(a) meracht 'solitude'.—O'D. sed qu. if it is not 'frenzy'.—Ed.

(b) B translates this: etellagia [a] aonar. O'D cites Varro's 'a mera, i.e. sola, quod mera i.e. sola volitat ut graculi gregatim'.—Ed.

MERACHT quasi mer-icht i.e. a mad (mer) issue (icht), a mad act: [acht] ab eo quod est actus [i. gnim B].

O'D follows O'Reilly in translating meracht as if it were méracht 'fingering, or the action of the fingers, in playing on the harp or other musical instrument'. On this some marginal annotator (Curry?) remarks in disgust: uch! In his supplement to O'Reilly, O'D explains the word by 'excitement, irritability'. It is derived from mer 'mad'. In the Highlands, mearach is 'error'.—Ed.

MAIRT ('Tuesday') i.e. márait, már uait 'far from thee', i.e. to Sunday from Tuesday. Máirt i.e. Marte, from the god of battle of among the gentiles. Mars was his name. It was to him they also used to consecrate the month of March, ut Januarius, Februarius, Martius. Máirt then is called from him, ut dies solis, dies lunae, dies Martis.

Manx je-mayrt.—Ed. W. dydd Mawrth.—O'D. Bret. Meurs is from Fr. Mars.—Ed.

MART ('beef') quasi mort a morte [i. on báss B].

Mart is still used to denote 'a beef' (boeuf) and 'beef'.—O'D. cos mairt 'a cow's leg' Tighernach cited O'Don. Gr. 443.—Ed.

MORTLAITH [sic B] a mortalitate.

ním-thair mortlaid na galar, Sanctáin's Hymn, line 12.—Ed.

MANANNAN MAC LIR, a celebrated merchant who was in the Isle of Mann. He was the best pilot that was in the west of Europe. He used to know by studying the heavens (a) [i.e. using the sky], the period which would be the fine weather and the bad weather, and when each of these two times would change. Inde Scoti et Brittones eum deum vocaverunt maris. et inde filium maris esse dixerunt (b) i.e. mac lir 'son of sea'. Et de nomine Manannan the Isle of Mann dictus est (c).

He was son of Allot, one of the Tuatha Dé Danann chieftains. He was otherwise called Orhsen, whence Loch Orhsen now Lough Corrib. He is still vividly remembered in the mountainous district of Derry and Donegal, and is said to have an enchanted castle in Lough Foyle. According to the traditions in the Isle of Man and the Eastern counties of Leinster this first man of Man rolled on three legs like a wheel through the mist, and hence the three-legged figure on the Manx halfpenny, and the motto quocunq; jeceris stabit.—O'D. I know nothing of this tradition, but if it be authentic, we may possibly trace a connection between this three-legged Manannan mac Lir (=the Welsh Manawydan ab Llyr), the TARVOS TRIGARANUS of the Notre Dame Inscription and the Vedic Vishnu with the three strides, i.e. the rising, the culmination and the setting of the sun. See Siegfried, Beitr. zur vergl. spr. i. 473.—Ed.

(a) nemgnacht. In B this is explained i. tria deicisin gne in nime i. in œoir 'through seeing the face of the heaven i.e. of the lower atmosphere'. O'D. obviously regarded gnacht as a deriv. from the root gná Skr. jñā.—Ed.

(b) B translates: is aire sin dogairis seoitice 7 brothnaig dee in mara de 7 adeirdis corbo mac don muir he.—Ed.

(c) B translates: 7 is uaidé adarair inis manand.—Ed.

MINDECH ['tenuis'] quasi mendic ab eo quod est mendicus i. bregach.
inna mindechu (gl. tenuiores) Z. 284. The glossographer's bregach seems due to his confounding mendicus with mendax. O'Clery, however, has minneach i. breg. This and the articles mesan, milchú are omitted by O'D.—Ed.

MANT ('the gum') i. mo a saint bíd ('greater its desire of food').

So O'Clery.—Ed. Mant with its derivative mantach 'a toothless person' is still in use.—O'D. So W. mantach 'a toothless jaw', mantachwyr 'a toothless person' from mant, which Pughe explains as 'jaw', 'jawbone', 'mouth'.—Bret. munzun 'a toothless gum'.—Ed.

MAGH ('a plain') i. mo is aghusta e oldas in fid ('more passable is it than the wood') no mó a aighe i. a graifne ech ('or greater its race i.e. its horse-racing').

magh (see Magh Sainb, Magh Tuiredh) W. ma, Gaul. magus.—Ed. Anglicized moy.—O'D aighe, which O'D here leaves untranslated, occurs, meaning 'race' (cursus) in Senchas Mór, p. 122. It is probably cognate with ἄγων, ἄγνα. —Ed.

MUINEL ('neck') i. mo in fheoil fair quam in chind ('more the flesh on it quam on the head') no mo in neolach ata hé i. fon chind ('or greater the neolach [?] it is i.e. under the head').

muinél = W. mwnwgl.—O'D. See Ir. Glosses, No. 744. Manx mwannal.—Ed.

MIND ['an oath'] quasi mund a munditia i. on gloine ('from the cleanliness').

mind sometimes means a holy relic and sometimes a diadem.—O'D. mind (gl. diadema) Turin: mind n-apstalacte, Z. 229: inna mind (gl. insignia) Z. 256, minna (gl. stigmata Christi) Lib. Hymn. 14: minna (gl. arm) Broccan's Hymn, 65.—But mionn now means an oath; and I think this must be its signification here. The glossographer refers to its compurgating effect.—Ed.

MINARBA quasi minuitur.

mionairbhe ceard i. uisdeadha beaga bhios isin ealadhain ('small scientific rules [?] which are in poetry') O'Clery.—O'D.

MEDG ('whey') quasi mo idg i. mo deogh de ('greater is a drink of it') quam cunctis.

medhg, Manx meaig = W. maidd. Pictet refers to this the French mégue.—Ed.

MUC ('a pig') i. muena a haigned ar ni geib a munad o neoch sibi cainis (leg. nisi canis?) 'truculent her nature, for she takes no teaching from any one nisi canis'.

mucna, which O'D reads much and translates by 'smoke', but which O'Clery explains by gruaim, seems the adj. whence mucnatu gen. mucnata (gl. truculentiae) Z. 273.—Ed.
 META ('a dastard') i. mo a fhate i. a fhatecess uime féin ('greater his caution, i.e. his cautiousness about himself').

meata is still the common Irish for 'cowardly'.—O'D. cf. Lat. metuo.—Ed.

MÉR ('finger') quasi mur i. imat ('much') quia fit mur i. imat ar it imda na mera ('for numerous are the fingers') no mo a úir chaich dib oldass arale ('or the flesh of each of them is more than of the others').

MALL i. mollis i. maoth ('soft') amail na beth cnaim and ('as if there were no bone there').

mall adj. 'slow', 'tardy', 'late', but it is evidently a noun in the text.—O'D.

MER i. mo a ír i. a ferg ('greater his ír, i.e. his anger').

O'D conjectures 'a fierce warrior', sed qu. is it not a lunatic? see Mer and Meracht supra, pp. 113, 114.—Ed.

MENIC ['often'] i. moo tic i. metic bad cert and ('metic were right there') i. cend fo cras uil and immedhon ('a mutation is there in the middle').

W. mynych 'frequent' 'often'.—O'D. Corn. menough.—Ed.

MOR ('great') i. mo a uir i. a feoil ('greater its uir, i.e. its flesh').

mor 'great', W. mawr, also means maith 'good', according to O'Davoren, p. 105. Might we not then identify the Ir. olc 'bad', with Skr. alpa 'small'?—Ed.

MUR ('a rampart') i. mo a úr i. a talam 'greater its úr i.e. its earth'.

borrowed from Lat. murus for moerus. múrdai (gl. muratas) Milan, W. mur, Juvencus.—Ed.

MÍ quasi mé a indsci.

O'D conjectures that mí is here a form of the pers. pron. 1st sg. But the gloss is obscure. Mí gen. mís is a month. Perhaps 'méa' may be meant for the Latin meo 'I go'.—Ed.

MUNCHILLE ('a sleeve') i. man chail i. man lámh (a) 7 cail comet ('man hand' and cail 'a keeping').

MUIR ('sea') i.e. a nomine mare (b).

Gaulish mori, W. Corn. and Bret. mor.—Ed.

MELLTIUCH i. tech mellis ('house of honey').

This is obscure; cf. melltach 'gratus', 'placens', Z. 51, 671, melltóir ban.—Ed.

MESCAN ('a lump of butter') i. do mescad ind loma assas ('what grows from the agitation of the milk').

miosgán is still a living word for a lump of butter varying in shape in different parts of Ireland.—O'D. See O'D.'s suppl. s. v. Miosgan.—Ed.

MESCI ('drunkenness') i. mó do aise hí quam in ciall ('more of reproach is it quam the sense').

meisge is still the common word for drunkenness.—O'D. From med (Skr. mad 'ebrius esse') plus the suffix cia. Manx meshtey.—Ed.

MESS ('fruit') quasi mos quia sitt [leg. fit] in ussu lignorum fructus.

Now meas fruit of a tree.—O'D. mes, Senchas Mór, p. 124. In Welsh mes is 'acorns'.—Ed.

MULLACH i. mul-oach ['round-eared'] i. cluasach ('eared').

Mul O'Clery explains by cruinniughadh (W. crynau) and mul-dorn by dorn cruinn a round (clenched?) fist. An owl, perhaps.—Ed.

MALA ('eyebrow') i. moo allo oldas intedan ('greater its hair (a) than [that of] the forehead').

a fem. c. stem: also means 'brow of a hill'. Manx mollee. The Bret. mal-ven 'eyelash', Mid. Br. maluenn, seems cognate.—Ed.

MALLAND i. na malach 7 fainne (b) oldas in mala fein ('of the eyebrow, and weaker (is it) than the brow itself').

See supra p. 107, where malland is explained as a feith or vein.—Ed.

MUAD MULLAIGH i. medon in mullaigh ('the middle of the summit').

So O'Clery: Muadh i. meadhón.—Ed.

MELL i. milliu de [leg. milliud é?] no millti.

MUINE i. munio i. daingnighim ('I fortify').

O'D explains muine as 'a brake', its present meaning. Here, however, it seems a verb with the vocalic termination above spoken of, and borrowed from the Latin munio.—Ed.

MOLT ('a wether') i. mo a ailt no a folt no a sult i. a feith ('greater its joints, or its wool, or its sult i.e. its fat').

acc. pl. multu, Broccán's hymn, l. 36: Manx mohlt, W. mollt, Corn. mols, Bret. maout 'mouton'. O'Clery explains sult by dath 'colour'.—Ed.

METH ('fat') i. mo a feith ('greater its fat').

MAOTH ('soft') mo is [leg. a] meth ('greater its fat').

So O'Davoren, p. 102: maoth i. bocc no thlaith no binn. O.Ir. moith = Lat. mītis from meitis, as vīnum from veinum, olīvōc.—Ed.

MAOTHAL ('a cheese?') i. maoth ('soft') 7 fuil ('and blood').

Occurs in lives of St. Kevin and St. Moling.—O'D. cf. mar letk-maethail infra s.v. Prull: maothla matha i. meas 7 toradh, O'Clery.—Ed.

MÁSS ('buttock') i. mo a fháss (c) ('greater its growth') i. mo tic ass ('more comes from it').

Enters largely into Irish topography: anglicized maus, moss, maze.—O'D.

MENDAT ('a residence', 'place') i. mían áit i. ait is mian la cach ('a place which is desirable with every one').

O. Ir. mennat, dat. sg. mennut, Lib. Arm. 18 a. 1.—Ed. meannad i. ionad 'a place', O'Clery.—O'D.

(a) to, Pictet compares Skr. luva 'hair', 'wool'.—Ed. (b) compar. of fann = W. gwan.—Ed. (c) Ms. ass.—Ed.

MIDACH .i. mo dechaib e no maith ech ('greatest of steeds he or a good steed').

Perhaps a stallion. O'D translates 'he observes (dechaid) or observes well'.—Ed.

MUINTER ('a family') .i. muin toir .i. main toirthnech do neoch ('a relieving wealth to one').

muinter, montar gen. muintire 'familia', muinter (gen. muintir?) 'famulus'; muinter gen. muintire (in cét-muinter, Senchas móra, pp. 40, 232) 'famula' are all from a verb = Bret. monet 'to go', Corn. mones, W. myned, Lat. mineare in eminere, prominere. So ἀμφίπολος and parichára are from a root signifying 'to go'. So, too, Ir. tim-thir-echt 'ministratio' the root TAR, Skr. trī.—Ed.

MIAS ('dish') .i. mo is fos í.

O'Clery explains mias by altóir 'altar', and quotes the old prophecy Tiefa tailcenn, etc., a mias in iarthair a thige: v. supra s. v. Cernine. Latin mensa, Goth. més. W. mwys is 'a basket'.—Corn. muis, moys 'a table'.—Ed.

MECON ('root') .i. mo ciness as ('more that springs from it').

in mecum (gl. radicem) Milan. mecon .i. buna(dh) O'Davoren p. 106: co as-mecnugur-sa (gl. ut eradicem) Z. 756.—Ed.

MENG ('guile') .i. mi-eng .i. droch-eng nuim .i. drochenech ('evil honour').

MANG ('a fawn') .i. mo is seng .i. luaithi mang ina mathair ('swifter is a mang than its dam') .i. derb.

mang .i. gamhain fiadha ('the deer's calf') O'Clery.—O'D.

| ferach (b) | A hero youthful, férach (?) |
| amail carr a tabair lamhach | As a car wherein lamhach (?) is |
| tria condall fand ferach. | borne (c) |

Through stubble weak, slanting (d).

In H. 3. 18, p. 636 col. 3, this article stands thus: Maullach i. seis i. seiscenn, ut dixit úa siagail ag tothlugud cairr ('asking for a car') Slicht a daghae tre cach mualach Cullach (i. loech 'hero' Egerton 1782, p. 26) flescach ferach Amail charr amberar lamhach Tre condull fann ferach.—And so, nearly, in H. 3. 18, p. 72. col. 2, where the leading word is written Muldach.—Ed.

MUADH i. uasal no airmidnech ('noble or venerable').

So in H. 3. 18, p. 636. col. 3: muad i. uasal no airmidin.—Ed. So O'Clery: Muadh i. uasal. Muadh i. maith ('good').—O'D.

MIDLACH i. medonlax ('middle-lax') i. lethlax ('half-lax').

So in H. 3. 18, p. 636, col. 3. 'An effeminate person not fit for war,' 'coward'.—O'D. midlach occurs apparently as an explanation of druth, infra, s.v. Orc Tréith.—Ed.

MAIRBILL i. maris bellum i. cath no imecla ('a battle or terrible').

So in H. 3. 18, p. 636, col. 3. Mairbill is probably a derivative from marb 'mortuus'; see Zeuss. 304, 731, 788.—Ed.

MEN [leg. mén] i. bel ('mouth') ut dictum est

| | |

| mairg troich tar roi réna [ms. rem a] | Alas for a coward (f) on a field of spears (g)! |
| atchi mena mac snama | He sees the mouths of sons of crawling (h) |

mén = W. min 'lip or mouth in poetical language'.—Ed. O'Clery has mén i. bél ('mouth'), mén mara i. bél na mara ('mouth of the sea').—O'D.

MEISI i. urtroighe ('phantoms') ut est sliab mis [i. sliab meissi i.] dona hurtroighib rodolba banba [i. ben maic cermata] do macaib miled ('Sliabh Mis from the phantoms that Banba, [wife of the son of Cermait,] formed for Miled's sons').

(a) Ms. ressgal., (b) 'indented, watery, grassy,' O'D. cullach a boar in H. 3. 18, p. 636.—Ed.

(c) 'As a shaft which is brought to shoot' O'D. (d) 'Of grass'.—O'D. but ferach here seems for fiarach = W. gwyrwyn.—Ed.

(e) 'Is not the finding of great wealth'.—O'D. but cf. frith i. edail, O'Clery, Gaelic frith 'lucrum'.—Ed.

(f) 'Who is disabled'.—O'D. But cf. troich 'dwarf' 'coward'.—Ed.

(g) O'D reads rena which rhymes with mena: rena is the reading of H. 3. 18, p. 633. col. 3.—Ed.

(h) 'of crawling men'.—O'D. but if snama here means 'crawling' does not the poet refer to worms?—Ed.

meissi i. dealbha siabhairthe mar do hheidís cuirp do eireochadh as úir ('phantastical shapes, such as bodies that would rise from a grave') O'Clery.—O'D. Meisi is glossed infra by siabra.—Ed.

O'D translates 'the cup of D. for its lying poem of praise, a word of contention for which battles were broken'. But cf. coach supra p. 46 and barann i. béim, O'Clery.—Ed.

MEISI i. cuimgech ('able').

O'D renders this by 'narrowness', 'straitness', but in his suppt. to O'Reilly s. v. meise, he seems to regard cuimgech (=O. Ir. cuimcech) as 'able' (cf. cuimcither 'is able' Senchas Mór p. 40. cumace 'power') and cites from a ms. is meisse torad a dá lám do chor don eglais 'he is able to give the fruit of his two hands to the Church'.—O'Davoren p. 106 has also Meisi i. cuimgech and cites (from the Brehon laws?) ar ní meisí flaith doniupra feisti de, which I cannot translate. Aes nad meisí 'people not able' occurs in Senchas Mór, p. 242, and in H. 3. 18, p. 636, col. 4. meisi is glossed by tualuing.—Ed.

MEM i. poc ('a kiss').

Meam i. póg, O'Clery.—O'D. memm i. poc, H. 3. 18. p. 636, col. 4. So O'Davoren p. 104, who cites a mem a meblugud ('disgracing') i. veste elevata.—Ed.

MELI i. cop cailli ('a woman's hood', 'a coif').

Mele i. cop-chaille calladha no bréide bíde ar cheannaibh ban ('caps or coverings that are on women's heads'), O'Clery.—O'D. O'Clery also has Mele i. drochlaoch 'a bad hero', 'coward'? which is probably the same word in a secondary signification. W. moled.—Ed.

MEISI i. siabra ('an apparition').

v. supra p. 119.—Ed.

MAGAR i. miniasc ('a small fish').

Gen. sg. magair. The dat. sg. magur occurs infra, s.v. Orc tréith.—Maghar i. miuiasc, O'Clery. Maighre i. bradan ('salmon') ib.—Ed.

MAN i. lam ('hand') mane a remm ('its genitive (is) mane' (a)).

v. supra p. 108: man i. lamh, O'Clery.—Ed.

MUT i. gach ngerr ('everything short').

Mut i. cach ngearr, H. 3. 18. p. 636, col. 4. Manx mut 'any short thing'.—Ed.

MUAD i. egusc ('form or face').

So O'Clery: muadh i. égeosg i. dealbh no cuma, O'Clery. Moadh i. écosc, H. 3. 18. p. 636, col. 4.—Ed.

(a) O'D makes this a separate article, and translates "mane i.e. reckoning"; but the phrase is of common occurrence in glossaries. Thus buil is said to be the reim of bol, tellbach the reim of tellur, tréith and tréthan are said to be the reims of triath, etc.—Ed.

UNDICIMA LITTERA.

NIAE [Nia B] a sister's son, ut Cúchulainn dixit prophetans de Christi adventu

Nia i.e. mac seathair, O'Clery.—O'D. Probably=W. nai, Corn. noi (gl. nepos).—Ed.

NEMNUALL: this is a noun that is greatest of the nouns of the world, i.e., heaven—acclamation of celebrating the mass there. Nem-nuall the acclamation (nuall) of the men of heaven (nem) at it.

So O'Clery: Neamhnall i.e. nuall bfeair nimhe no cantaireachd denma an aifrinn.—O'D.

The name of a well said to have been formed by a wave on the Great Isle of Arran, in the Bay of Galway, which in the time of S. Endeus was inhabited by pagans of the Corca Modruadh, an ancient sept seated in the baronies of Corcomroe and Burren in the Co. of Clare. For an account of a moving cloud not unlike this, see life of Mochua, chapters 5 and 8 in Colgan's Acta Sanctorum, 30th March.—O'D.

NEMETH ['a chapel'] i.e. nem-iath ['heaven-land'] i.e. what is the right of the Church.

So O'Clery: talagh as dliughtheach d'eaglais 'land which is due to a church'.—O'D. nemed (gl. sacellum) Z. 11, Gaulish nemeton, vernemetis (gl. fanum ingens). Probably from the root NAM (whence νέμω, νέμος, Lat. nemus) as τέμενος from the root TAM, whence τέμνω.—Ed.

NEMAITH ('sharp poison') i.e. what is the right of soldiers.

NEMFHUATH ('poison-terror') i.e. what is the right of poets.

This and Nemaith seem mere fictitious words like nem-aod, nem-mod, nem-od and nem-shuth.—Ed.

(a) B translates: ag targaire geine cristi 'prophesying Christ's birth'.—Ed.

(b) nin rogab fos B. O'D translates fos by 'burst'.—Ed.

NER i. a wild boar, ut est in the Aisli : 'Fail neir net gribre gradaigthi' 'A wild boar's lair, a nest of a griffin'.

near i. torc allaid, O'Clery.—O'D. cf. Skr. narya 'manly', Sabine nero 'strong'. O'D renders aisti by 'epigrams' sed qu. Fail in the quotation (which is from B) = foil in mucc-shoil (gl. hara) root VAR, vri 'tegere', 'circum dare'; gribre (= griph A) gen. sg. of gribh 'a griffin', which occurs infra s. v. Prull, and is borrowed, (like W. gruff, Fr. griffon, Ital. griffo, grifone, Germ. greif) from Lat. gryphus. In a poem published by Sir W. Wilde in the Proceedings of the R. I. A., describing the ransom (two of every wild animal in Ireland) which Cailte mac Ronain brought to liberate his foster-brother Finn mac Cumhaill, occurs the line is in gribh ingneach imard 'and the griffin, taloned, tall'. And in O'Mulconry's Glossary (H. 2. 16) we find grif a grife i. quadrupess pennata. Gradaigthe O'D translates by 'fierce', sed qu.—Ed.

NOE i.e. a human being, inde dicitur dia ndamae noe for thír (a) 'if thou sufferest anyone on (the) land'.

Oengus foáiblib imais aricht

"Oengus by sparks of knowledge (?)
Half of him was burnt under skies of drops.

O'D renders imais aricht by 'of inspiration', mere guesswork : imais (for imbais ?) may be the gen. sg. of imbas; supra s. vv. Buas and Imbas forosnai. Nimb (i. nell 'cloud' no braen 'drop', O'Davoren) may possibly be cognate with Skr. nabhas 'aqua'

(a) This is the reading of B.—O'D translates 'if a man was permitted on the land'.—Ed.

(b) Noefhíss B.—Ed. (c) 'Chief poets'.—O'D. (d) The second line is from B.—Ed.

NAIRNE i.e. purity; or nairne as if it were naire. This is ancient language, and the naire is the same as if écin were said in the common language to-day in West Munster maxime. Inde dixit the poet: "Is there aught (a) that is pleasing to thee"? "There is, naire", says he who is interrogated, i.e. "There is, indeed", says he.

naire i. glan ('pure'), nairne i. deimhin ('indeed') O'Clery.—O'D.

NITH i.e. the mortal wounding of a man, ut est Nie he that inflicts it. Nethes, also i.e. a man's wounding, ut est ní hidnae nethes nemthigetar 'not a weapon that flies(?) that is dignified'.

B has ni hidna nethes nemtegar. O'D, taking nethes to be a verb, translates: 'It is not the arms that kill that are sanctified'. But O'Clery explains iodhna by sleaghna ('spears') no arm ('arms') and neathas by guin duine. Nith occurs supra p. 122. Nie (gen. niad, Broccán's hymn l. 71 and infra s. v. Nia p. 125) is written níá by O'Clery and explained treinfhear 'champion'.—Ed.

NESCOIT ('a boil') i.e. This is a story of the Gael. When (the) battle of Moytura was being fought Goibniu (the) Smith was in the forge making the weapons for the Tuatha Dé Danann, and Luchtine (the) Carpenter was making the shafts for the spears, and Creidne (the) Brazier was making rivets for the same spears. Dicunt autem Scotti that Goibniu the Smith faciebat hastas by three actions, and the last action was the finish(b). Then Luchtine made the shafts by three cuts and the last cut was the finish. Sic et Creidne faciebat the rivets. Goibniu used to fling the spearheads from the tongs, and they used to stick in the jamb. Luchtine used to cast the shafts after them, and (this) was enough to insert (c) [?] them. Creidne used to fling the rivets from the jaws (d) of the tongs, and (this) was enough to insert (b) [?] them. Now while Goibniu was at this thing, a crime is charged against his wife. It was seen (e) in him then that the story was grievous to him, and he grew jealous thereat. This is what he does. There was a pole in his hand when he heard the story: Ness was its name, and it is about it the furnace of clay (f) is made; and he sings spells over this pole, and to every man who came to him he gave a blow of this pole (g). Then if the man escaped (h) a lump full of gory liquid and matter was raised upon him, and the man was burned like fire, for the form of the pole called Ness was on the lump, and therefore was it named Nescoit from that name, Ness then i.e. a swelling and scoit 'liquid'. Ness also means four things: ness ['weasel'] the name of the animal: ness a name

(a) In fil ni.—E. (b) 'three offiers [gressa, greas] any artificial work in executing which trade or art is required'.—O'D. Supp. to O'R. and by the last it was completed'.—O'D. Feth is glossed by slémain 'smooth' in O'Davoren p. 93.—Ed.

(c) 'adjust'.—O'D. (d) 'top'.—O'R. (e) 'This was made known'.—O'D.

(f) criad: 'of ore'.—O'D. But crié, gen. criad, is the W. pry.—Ed.

(g) B has: dobeireath fuasnaid don crunn-sin.—Ed. (h) 'survived'.—O'D.

for a pole: ness nomen for a furnace [?] as said a certain smith's wife, who made an elegy for her husband, dicens—

It is grievous to me to look at him (a):

The red (flame) of his furnace (b) grows to the roof :

Sweet were the murmurs that his two bellows

Used to chant to the hole of his furnace.

Et alius dixit :—

A marriageable woman without a husband.

A fire with fervency (c).

Guaile's enemy was Naise's wife :

From her is the name Urnaise.

Nes is also a name for a blow and for a wound, ut est in the Senchas Már :

From grains (proceed) every measurement,

From (the) Feine every law,

From treasures every appraisement,

From the fines for a man's body,

Though many are his wounds,

The ness was elevated (d), i.e. according to the dignity of the spot in the person on whom the wound is inflicted. By it then is his eric: i.e. verbi gratia, if the outrage is inflicted on a face, or on a forehead, or on a chin, the eric is greater, as is in the Senchas Már: if the blemish is under raiment, it is less, etc.

Nes i. aurnisi criadh, lege sanais cormaic. 7 rl. Nes i. crécht. Ness i. animal, H. 3. 18. p. 637, col. 2. Neas i. creacht, O'Davoren, p. 108.—Ed. Neasoid [Manx askaid] is still the common word for a boil. The site of the battle of Magh Tuireadh marked by extensive sepulchral monuments is still pointed out in the parish of Cong, barony of Kilmaine and county of Mayo. An account of this battle (fought between the Fir-Bolg and the Tuatha Dé Danann A. D. 3303) is preserved in Harl. 432. Plut. xlvi E fol. 52 a. There is another Magh Tuireadh in the parish of Kilmacatranny, barony of Tirrill and county of Sligo, where also a battle was fought A. M. 3330 between the Tuatha Dé Danann and the Fomorians.—O'D.

A rare form of the cognate verb nascain—ar-ōb-roi-nasc ('for I have bound you' (b))—occurs in Z. 780. The root is NAK in Lat. nec-tere, which seems quite distinct from Skr. nah from NADH.—Ed.

NAMA ('enemy') nou ama non amat.

OLLAMH [Olldam B] i.e. oll a damh 'great his retinue', twenty-four. Ollamh i.e. oll a uaim 'great his cavern', as it is difficult to destroy a cavern that is in a cliff, sic it is difficult to attack the poetry and learning of the ollamh. Ollamh also i.e. oll eimh i.e. great to expound i.e. he expounds and solves questions (a)

For 'xx. iii'. B has cethrar ar fachit '24 persons'. B inserts a third etymology: oll di em i.e. oll inní ditness i.e. cethrar ar fachit 'great is that which protects (him) i.e. 24 persons'.—Ed.

Ollamh [gen. ollamhan] signifies a chief professor of any science [cf. ollamh breithe-man. O'Don. suppt.] but particularly a chief poet. It appears from a story about Mac Liag, chief poet to Brian Boroimhe, that the Ollamh had power of life and death over his 24 attendants.—O'D. He had seven times fifty stories, Senchas Mór, p. 44, and the ollamh file had to compose a quatrain extemporaneously after his appointment by a king of territories, ibid. p. 42.—Ed.

ÓI i.e. a sheep, inde dicitur óisc i.e. ói sheisc, a dry ewe, Óimelc ('beginning of spring') i.e. ói-melg 'ewe-milk', i.e. that is the time that sheep's milk comes: melg, i.e. milk, because it is milked (blegar).

ói (ui, O'Davoren p. 124) = Lat. Umbr. ovis, öic, Skr. and Lith. avi-s: A.S. eav, Eng. ewe.—Ed. Oisc or foisg is still the common word for a young ewe before she has a lamb.—O'D. In the Highlands óisg is a year-old ewe.—Ed. Seisc (now seasg) = W. hysp, Bret. hesk, hesp = Lat. siccus for siscus, Zend huska, Skr. çushka for sushka.—Ed.

ÓEN ('one') quasi un ab eo quod est unus.

W. Corn. Bret. un from oino, as the classical Lat. ūnus from O. Lat. oinos (cf. Gr. oivn 'unity'), Goth. ains (= ainas), O. Slav. inū — all (like Skr. ena 'this') from the pronominal root I.—Ed. Now aon, in compounds én, e. g. énni 'one thing'.—O'D.

ÓENACH ('an assembly'), i.e. úne each 'contention [?] of horses'.

B has aine ech, which may be rendered either by 'delightfulness of horses' (áine i.e. aibnius) or 'swiftness of horses' (aine i.e. luas no d'éine, O'Clery). Oinach, or Oenach gen. oenaig n. is probably, like oendán, oentaigim, a derivative from óen, 'one'. Its meaning in Old Irish appears from the glosses, óinach (gl. theatrum) Lib. Armach. 183b, aenach (gl. agon) Gildas No. 45, aenachdu (gl. agonithetas) ibid. to have been a solemn assembly (πανήγυρις) at which games were held.—Ed. Aonach i.e. aín each i.e. ait a mbí marcaigheacht go hán no go haoi�him ‘a circus of horses where there is pleasant or delightful horsemanship’, O’Clery. Now means a fair, [and so apparently infra s. v. Orc tréith] but in ancient times apparently a public meeting at which horse-races and other public sports were carried on: such was Oenach Tailten in Meath, and Oenach Colmáin in Magh Life in Leinster. The modern horse-races of the ‘Curragh of Kildare (Cuirreach Liphi) are a continuation of Oenach Colmáin.—O’D.

(a) 'and solve difficulties'.—O'D.

OETH i.e. an oath (luige) or perjury (a).

O. W. an-utonou (gl. perjuria) with the usual change of oi to u, Goth. áiths, Eng. oath. Luige is = W. llw, Bret. lē. Both words occur in O’Davoren s. v. Ardmes; ní fortreisi aeth óinuir (b) ardmes ilmille n-éirenn (‘not stronger than an oath of one man is a snrmine of (the) many thousands of Ireland’) i.e. ni treisi toimdin a sochaide oldass luighe n-aonfir (‘not stronger is a conjecture of her multitudes than an oath of one man’).—Ed. O’Clery has aoth i.e. mionn ‘oath’.—O’D.

OAR i.e. a voice or call.

Ὀαπος (from ὀφαπος ?) ‘discourse’, ‘chat’ is perhaps the same word. Oar also occurs in O’Clery’s Glossary, but I have never met it elsewhere. So blór ‘noise’ (O’Dav.) seems = φλύαπος ?—Ed.

OECH i.e. an enemy.

This occurs spelt Aech, supra s. v. Aithech. It has possibly lost the initial p, and, if so, may be equated with A.S. fāh ‘inimicus’, ‘infestus’.—Ed.

ORB nomen viri, a quo Orbraige.

Orbh was the ancestor of the people called Orbhraighe, who were descended from Fereidhech, son of Fergus mac Roigh, king of Ulster in the first century (c). They were seated in and gave their name to the barony of Orrery in the co. Cork.—O’D. Orbh, i.e. Orv, is perhaps from the same root as the Skr. arvan ‘horse’. The raige may be = A.S. rige in sudh-rige etc.—Ed.

OG (‘egg’) quasi ob id est ovum i.e. egg.

ογ (gl. ovum) Z. 1020, W. wy, Corn. uy, Bret. ui, u, vī are connected with A.S. āg, pl. āgru, Ohg. ei, pl. eigir and perhaps the modern Greek άνγος. The comparisons with óvum, ώον seem to me very doubtful. The modern obh, Gael. ubb are probably borrowed from ovum.—Ed.

ORD (‘order’) i.e. ab ordine.

Ord i.e. dliged, O’Dav. p. 109: int-órd so ‘hic ordo’, Z. 666. W. urdd, Bret. urz.—Ed.

OLCHUBAR [Olcobur B.] i.e. ‘ol-accobar’, i.e. drink is a desire with him. Or ól nomen liquoris normannica lingua est.

So O’Clery. Olchobhar was the proper name of a man.—O’D. cf. Conchobhar. The Norse word intended is ól.—Ed.

ORNN i.e. a plundering or slaughter (d).

orn i.e. orgain no marbhadh (‘plundering or killing’) O’Clery.—O’D. See above, s. v. Ceithern.—Ed.

OM ('raw') i.e. of the food, Greek was corrupted there: ωμόν in the Greek, cruor [leg. erudum] Latine dicitur.

Manx aw: Skr. āma-m, Lat. am-arum.—Ed.

OPAIR ('work') i.e. oper, i.e. ab operatione.

Rather from opera.—Ed.: now obair, [Manx obbyr], Corn. and Bret. ober.—O'D.

ONG i.e. tribulation and chastisement (a). Inde dicitur, 'chastise thy son, O Fithal, till his tribulations follow (b)'. Ong i.e. a groan, ut est:—

Not the groan of one house henceforward (c):

Far from the graveyard is my broken house:

I am not a hero, but I am a poor maniac:

God has brought into little (d) my mind (e):

In H. 3. 18, p. 540, the verses are ascribed to Comgall of Benchor. ong i.e. brón no foghail 'sorrow or plunder'.—O'Clerly: ong i.e. uch, ib. menicc m'ong i.e. menicc m'uch 'frequent my sigh', ib..—O'D.

OROIT ['orate'] i.e. orait i.e. oratio.

B adds i.e. airnaigthi 'a prayer'.—O.W. araut.—Ed. This word occurs frequently in inscriptions on very ancient tombstones at Clonmacnois and other churches.—See O'Donovan's Ir. Grammar, pp. 43, 228, 398.—O'D. Of the 142 Clonmacnois inscriptions, of which I have copies, oroit appears on seven; orit on one (ORT AR CLE[MENT]) and the abbreviation or. on sixty-six. The form orait occurs in an inscription at Tempul Breccáin, Ara Mór: ORAIT AR ANMAIN SEMBLAIN 'Pray for Semblan's soul.' That orait was borrowed from orate and not oratio is rendered probable by an inscription, of which I have a copy: OR.e AR ANMIN AEDA 'orate for Aed's soul'.—Ed.

OSLUCUD ('opening') i.e. uas-lecud ('up-raising') i.e. raising up the door; or oslucud, i.e. ais-lécud, i.e. letting it back.

had as his fool Lomna the Fool, i.e. an imbecile (a). Now Finn went forth one day ou a hunting excursion, and Lomna remained at home. There was a woman of the Luigne with Finn, for in every mountain and every forest that Finn with his Fiann used to frequent there was a particular woman awaiting him in every territory [that was nearest to him still (b)], and they were female brughaidhs, and they were good to support the Fiann, for their people spread over the territories, so that no one durst (do) evil to them. Finn once came into Tethbha with his Fiann, and went on a hunting excursion. Lomna staid at home, and as he was walking without, he saw Coirpre, a champion of the Luigne, lying secretly with Finn's woman. Then the woman besought Lomna to conceal it. It was grievous to him to be concerned in betraying Finn. Then Finn came (back), and Lomna cut an ogham on a foursquare rod, and this was on it: "An alder stake in a pale of silver. Deadly night-shade (c). A husband of a lewd woman (is) a fool (d) among the well-taught Fiann. There is heath on bare Ualann (e) of Luigne" (f). Finn then understood the story, and he became disgusted with the woman. The woman also knew that it was from Lomna he knew it, and she sent a messenger to Coirpre that he might come to kill the fool. So Coirpre came and cut off his head and carried it with him. Finn returned to the hunting-booth in the evening, and saw the body without a head. "Here is a body without a head"! says Finn. "Let us find out", said the Fiann, "whose it is". Finn then put his thumb into his mouth, and he spoke through teinm leaghda and said Ni conruba (g) etc. "This is Lomna's body", said Finn. "Enemies have taken his head from him". They slip the hounds and put them on the track (h). Finn goes upon the track of the soldiers, and found Coirpre in an empty house cooking fish upon a stone (i), and Lomna's head was on a spike by the fire. The first set that was cooked on the stone Coirpre divided among his thrice nine persons, and he did not put a morsel thereof into the mouth of the head (j). This was prohibited (k) to the Fiann, and then said [Lomna's head to them :] 'A speckled white-bellied orc, i.e. a salmon from a small fish; this is its origin etc'. The second set, then, Coirpre divided iterum priori modo, and the head said iterum: "Thou hast shared

It is not a secret to the Luigne what has happened him', and he said again, 'a boar has not killed him, he has not eaten him; he has not carried him to his lair.—Lomna'.

His name still lives in the legends and poems of the people of Ireland and the Highlands of Scotland; but he was a native of Ireland, and was killed in his old age at Ath-Brea on the Boyne, A.D. 284, by a fisherman who wished to render his name notorious by killing so great a warrior.—O'D. Orc i. muc 'a pig', O'Davoren, has probably lost an initial p and is = Lat. porcus.—Ed.

PUINGCNE i.e. that is a scruple (screpull) of the notched beam, i.e. the scruple of the Gael i. opuinge [oiffing B].

The screpull of the Irish was the denier of the Middle Ages. It contained three pinginns and weighed 24 grains [of wheat]. Another name for the screpull was faing no fang i. sgreaball: do bheireadh a fhaing ndearg-óir don easpug 'he used to give his screpull of red gold to the bishop'.—O'Clery.—O'D. Puing-cne is either derived from pone infra p. 140 'punctum' or is a diminutive (a) of punn or pung borrowed from pondus. As to the change of nd to ng cf. scing 'pellis' in sgingidóir (gl. pellicarius) from scind = O.N. skinn (W. cen) and the pronunciation in Ossory and E. Munster of nn slender [Middle Ir. nd] as ng (e. g. binn, tinn, bainne) O'Don. Gr. 34. So in Niederdeutsch ng is often for nd (Kuhn's Zeitschrift, VII. 64 (b), and I have long regarded the English participial ing as arising from A.S. ende, not ung, and as thus further illustrating this phenomena. The intermediate form, as Tobler has lately pointed out (Kuhn's Zeitschrift XVI. 258), is inde.—Ed.

PINGINN [Puingind 'penny' B] a sellann (attached) to it, i.e. a sellann cernae i.e. an offaing.

In O'D's suppt. s. v. Pinginn is quoted a passage which means 'eight grains of wheat are equal to the pinginn of silver' (comtröm na pinginne airgid).—Ed. Sellann the name of a measure, i.e. of honey, four times the full of an egg (4 inches round and 5 long) is one cerna: eight times the full of that cerna is a sellann.—O'D.

PAIN i.e. bread, a pane: inde est in the Gaire Echach maic Luchta, i.e. Mo tri findne fomgellsat im ailt echach ailchetail gaire de loilig find forseing scailter co dipil promthair pain ('bread is proved') la pugin puincern lasail cennach cermnas coimmilg coich bo bithbi cotammuic midligen goss cein os meised conach inna betha baa.

The Gaire Echach was evidently a law respecting the herding and valuation of cattle enacted by Eochaid, King of N. Munster in the first century.—O'D. O'D's version of this passage (here printed from B) is sad nonsense:—'My three whites (cows) which grazed around the house of Eochaid, the reproachful speaker, the price of a white milch cow in a shed, which has calved, is equal to two horses. Bread is proved by the pugin of a puincern by him who wishes not for falsehood. The full milk of five healthy cows is allowed for him who is pale from sores, groaning, though it may be believed that it is not living he shall be'. Quis Oedipus haec interpretetur? See some of the words in the passage glossed by MacFirbis supra p. 37. s. v. Cernmas.—Ed.

PUINCERN, then, a dish for measuring sellae [?] and a beam for weighing cattle, i.e. the notched beam.

PÍSSIRE i.e. piss-aire a broad-headed beam which is weighing one pinginn of weight, i.e. the weight of seven grains of pure wheat, and the [proper] fulness of the grain is to be observed that it is not swollen by water or shrunk by hardness (c). Piss, then, the name of the beam or the trunk. Piss also is a name for a pinginn, one pinginn then is the burden of that beam.

O'D conjectures pissire to be an uncoul or steel-yard.—Ed.

W. perc from perthc*, Eng. perch.—Ed. Forrach is explained by O'Clery 'slat tomhais tîre no fearainn' ('a rod for measuring a country or land').—O'D.

PRÚLL ['greatly'] i.e. great increase and augmentation, ut dixit a daughter of Ua Dulsaine, the poetess (a), to Senchan Torpest Imomloiscit mo dé n-ó prúll 'my two ears burn me greatly(b)'. A student of Senchan's people replied i.e. "In cerd mac hui Dulsaine O liaig do tharrsaige túll" "(It is for) the poet, son of Ua Dulsaine, from Liac of Tursaige túll". Now this happened to Senchan thus. He arranged to go to Mann, i.e. at a time of pleasure to make a visit there, and fifty poets were his retinue, besides students. There never was before upon any other poet such a dress as Senchan had upon him, besides his sage's gown; and what was best of the garments of the men of the princes (c) of the Gael this the other poets about him wore (d). When they had put to sea and set their stern (e) to land, an ill-visaged youth called after them from the land: "Let me (go) with you" says he. They all looked at him. They did not like his face nor to let him (go) with them, for he was not a bird fit for their flock because of his hideous aspect. For when he placed his finger on his forehead, streams of putrid matter would issue backwards through his ears [on] his back. Two crosses (cross-streams) over his crown. Like a dropping distillation of his brain of his head and his skull (f). But they ceased not flowing with stench. Rounder than a blackbird's egg were his two eyes: swifter than a millstone his glance: black as death his face: rounder than a lifting-crane his two cheeks: longer than a smith's anvilsnout [?]

(a) lit. 'the female half-artist' (lethcerd).—Ed.

(b) 'For whom burn my two great ears'?—O'D.

(c) B inserts faitha.

(d) 'And the dresses which the rest of the poets had upon them were the grandest among the Gaedhil men'.—O'D.

(e) B has: a lui no urland 'their rudders (W. llywiau) or ends'—O'Clery explains lui by gwg 'branch' but it may well have meant a rudder, as rwmh 'oar' (= W. rhwaw 'shovel') = Lat. ramus.—Ed.

(f) O'D. guesses: 'Like the flowing out of his brain was what passed through washing wholly his head and skull'. With this description in the text compare that of the 'Efrit in the story of Hasan of El-Basrah, Lane's Thousand and one Nights, (London, 1859) III. 465.—Ed.

If the mottled rag that was round him were taken off, it would not be hard for it to go on a journey alone, unless a stone were put upon it (b).

Then he shouted with a great shout, and said to Senchán "We should be more profitable to thee (c)", says he, "than the poets, or that proud, foolish (d), very mighty set (e) that is with you".

"Sit thou down (f"), says Senchán, "come thou behind the helm into the boat." "We shall try it" says he. He goes on the rudder into the boat (g) and quicker than a cat after a mouse (h), or a griffin to its nest, or a hawk from a cliff was the rush that he made till he was in the boat; and the boat was nearly sunk (i), because they pressed [?] before him on the one side: he had the other side to himself; and they said from one mouth: "A monster hath appeared [?] to thee, Senchán! and it will be thy only [living] company, provided we reach land". Theuce was he named Senchán Torpeist, i.e. Senchán to whom a monster appeared.

They afterwards reach Mann and leave their fleet on land. As they were on the strand, they saw the old woman (santuinne) grey-haired, feeble, on the rock. Santuinne i.e. an old woman, ut poeta dixit:

And do not give (m) their first fruits (n).

Thus was the old woman on the strand, cutting sea-weed (o) and other sea-produce. Signs of rank (were) her feet and hands, but there was not goodly raiment on her. She had the ghastliness [?] of famine. A pity was this, for she was the poetess, daughter of Ua Dulsaine of Muscraige Liac Thuill (a) in the country of Hy-Fidhgenti, who had gone on a circuit of Ireland and Scotland till all her people had died. Then the artist, her brother, son of Ua Dulsaine, was seeking her throughout Ireland, but found her not.

So when the old woman saw the poets, she asked them who they were. Said a certain one of them "Good are those thou askest (b). This is Senchán, Poet of Ireland". "Wilt thou be humble, O Senchán"? says she, "art thou willing to give me an answer?" "Thou shalt have (one) indeed", says Senchán (c). [Then said the woman :—]

"I am not acquainted with tribulation, Although the seaweed (is) blistered, soft" (d).

"What is its (corresponding) half-quatrains" [said she]. Then Senchán was silent [?] and all the poets. But then the aforesaid youth sprang before Senchán, et dixit "O hag, thou shalt not approach Senchán. It is not meet for thee; but address me, for none other of this family shall address thee". "Question, then", said the poetess, "what is the [other] half-quatrains"?" "Not difficult", says he :—

"From the surface of the great rock of Mann Much salt hath been made here".

"And this half-quatrains also" [said she], "what is its (other) half [O Senchán"]?"

My two ears burn me greatly" (prúll).

"Senchán shall not answer thee even yet", replied the youth. "Question, then, what is it according to thee"? says she. "Not difficult", says he :—

The artist, son of Hua Dulsaine,
From Liac of Tursaige Thúill".

"Verily", said Senchán, "thou art the daughter of Ua Dulsaine, the poetess for whom there is searching throughout Ireland and Scotland". "I am, in sooth" said she. Then she is taken by Senchán, and noble raiment is put upon her, and she came with Senchán to Ireland.

When they came to Ireland they saw the aforesaid youth before them; and he was a young hero kingly, radiant; a long eye in his head: his hair golden-yellow: fairer than the men of the world was he, both in form and dress. Then he goes sunwise round Senchán and his people, et nusquam apparuit ex illo tempore: dubium itaque non est quod ille poematis erat spiritus, etc.

Senchán Torpeist was chief poet of Ireland when Guaire Aidne was king of Connaught A. D. 649–662. The spirit of poetry is represented as ill-visaged at first, because of the difficulty of the art to a beginner. [As to the challenges to give the corresponding couplet] it was believed among the ancient Irish that a true poet could supply the second line [half?] of any quatrain if he heard the first repeated. In a ms. in the Bodleian, Laud 615, p. 134, there is a short account of a poetical contention between St. Columbkille and the Devil. The latter attempted to puzzle the former by repeating the first lines of several ranns and demanding of the saint to supply the second. In this the saint succeeded in every instance; but, in his turn, he defeated his antagonist, who could not supply the required second lines of some moral poems, and thus was detected to be the arch-enemy of mankind.—O'D.

As to walking dextrorum [dakshinam kar], see Toland's Celtic Religion, p. 143, and Martin's Description of the Western Islands of Scotland, p. 20.—O'D. In the Hills here at Simla the men walk sunwise round their gurus either thrice or seven times. As to the challenge to complete quatrains, compare the Arabic ijázat: “Verse-completing was in all times a favourite intellectual exercise of the Arabs, whose powers of improvisation were marvellous. It is when two poets contend by one reciting a verse which the other must follow with another in the same metre and rhyme, and with a continuous sense; the former then has to give a third and so on, till it is shown which has the greater imagination and promptitude. Sometimes one uttered half a verse which the other had to complete. Imr al Qays was accustomed to challenge those who claimed the reputation of poets to compete with him. Once he challenged Tow'am the Yeshkeri, and said to him, “If thou be a poet, complete the verses which I shall utter,” and he began “Dost thou see the flash gleaming in the night?” Tow'am continued, “Like a Mage's fire it blazes a blaze”. Imr al Qays: “I was wakeful to observe while slept Abu Shorayh”. Tow'am: “As oft as I said ‘it now ceases’ it flashed abroad”. Inn al Qays: “Its sound was as a murmur in a place unseen”. Tow'am: “Like the she-camels lowing wildly when they meet the herd.” The poem is given in the Diwân of Imr al Qays, p. 41, Arab. Text. When the poet found that he had an equal he bound himself by an oath never again to contend in poetry”. Chenery's Assemblies of Al Harîrî: Vol I. pp. 484-5.—Ed.

Brocán Ruis Tuirc 'B. of Ros Tuirc' Féilire, Sept. 17] to denote a wood, rassan a copse or underwood: in the N. ross means a point extending into the sea or into a lake. Ros 'flaxseed' is still in common use [Manx rass 'seed']. Ros which grows on stagnant water is commonly called ros lachan 'duckmeat'.—O'D.

mansion and another to the south. For advantage and convenience [?] it was made. Tuagrotæ i.e. a husbandman buys a way to get to a or a mountain. This, then, is its price i.e. a beast from every one who passes it, every other year. A bothar, two cows fit upon it, i.e. one lengthwise, the other athwart, for their calves or their yearlings fit on it along with them, but if they [the calves] were behind them [the cows], the cow that followed would gore.

There are three cleansings for each of them : three times at which they are cleansed, i.e. time of horse-racing, time of winter [?], time of war. These are the three cleansings, cleansing of its brush-wood, and of its water and of its weeds. These are the causes for which it is cleansed : that it soil not its chariots going on a journey, that it soil not (a) its horses going to (b) a fair : from weeds, lest any one be (c) upset [?] (d) on it when going to battle etc.

carterd (= W. carthu) raite 'cleansing of roads' is said in Senchas Mór p. 128 to be a ndrisi ocus a ndraigne do beim dib 'to cut from them their brambles and thorns'—Pictet, Nouvel Essai p. 50, connects rámáit with the Skr. rantu (from ram-tu?) 'road' 'river', rámá 'horse'.—Ed.

REO ['frost'] i.e. a Greek (word), reō enim graece gelu Latine dicitur.

The Greek word meant is probably πίγος. In Old-Irish we have réud (gl. gelu) Z. 42; in Early Middle Irish i reuth (gl. in pruina). W. rhew, Corn. reu (gl. gelu), M. Bret. reau, riou now réo. The British forms, without a final dental, come nearer to Cormac's reō, which I would connect with the Gothic frius, the Latin pruina for prusina, Skr. root prush.—Ed.

RINGCNE quasi quinque : inde dixit Ferches (the poet) when Finn ua Baiscni was reckoning every pentad in succession of the hosts of MacCon, to seek the Fian of him i.e. Ferches (e). Then Ferches passed with fury [?] by Finn, and cast the spear at Lugaid so that he was dead, and he said Ringenc (quasi carincne) rus rig ['a little pentad is a king's reproach' (f)] for this was what Finn used to say still when he was counting every pentad in turn.

A is here corrupt. I have translated the last sentence from B: "7 asbert ooca rincne quasi carincne rus rig i. arba heth atbeiread finn bezs otrimed each coicer a uair. Rincni quasi quinque". Rincne is probably a diminutive of rind. I suspect that B's carincne is a corruption of cairncne*, a diminutive of cairn* 'five', the gen. sg. of which occurs in the gloss bé charna i. ben chuicir 'a woman of 5 men', 'a harlot' H. 3.18, p. 61, col. 1 (g), and which I would identify with the Skr. pani 'hand', the lingual n. of which points to an Indo-European PARNI. The story of Lugaid's murder is thus related by Keating.—"It was a poet named Fearcheas, son of Coman, that assassinated Lugaid MacCon with a species of javelin called rincne, at the instigation of Cormac, son of Art, as the king stood with his back against a pillar-stone at Gort-an-éir ['the field of gold'] near Derg-rath (a) in Magh Feimen to the W. of Ath-na-carbad, and while he was there engaged in distributing silver and gold to the poets and ollaves of Ireland. When the poet Fearcheas, son of Coman, who was dwelling at Ard na geomlech, (which is now called Cnocach) heard that MacCon was thus occupied, he entered the assembly with others of his class bringing the rincne with him. Then when he had reached the presence of Mac-Con he thrust his victim through the body with the weapon until it met the pillar-stone against which the prince had leaned his back, and thereupon Mac-Con died immediately of the wound.—Keating's History of Ireland, translated by O'Mahony, New York, 1866, p. 322. Bress [is said to have been] king of the Tuatha dé Danann A. M. 2337, though of Fomorian descent by the father's side. He fought the battle of North Magh Tuiredh against Nuada Airgetlám ['Silver hand'] A. M. 2764, where he was slain. The site of this battle is still pointed out in the townland of Moterry, parish of Kilmactranny, barony of Tirerill and co. of Sligo. Curious sepulchral monuments are to be seen on the battle-field, of which a minute description was given by Dr. Petrie in a paper read before the R. I. A. in 1836.—O'D. Riss is probably cognate with rith 'a bard', and perhaps W. prydydd: see Coirpre's satire, supra, p. 37, s.v. Cernine.—Ed.

With rer cf. rer-cere 'plover'? cearc dhuhb, O'Cl. O'Davoren p. 112.—Ed. The quotation seems taken from a satire on Finnguine or Cenn-gegain (c) and his poet Flann mac Lonain. Finnguine was deposed A.D. 900, and Cormac mac Cuileannáin elected in his place. Mac Lonáin, a descendant of Guaire Aidne, was murdered by the Desi or Munster in 905, and is called the Virgil of the Scotic race by the 4 Masters. None of his poems have come down.—O'D. Many of his "productions are still extant" according to Dr. Todd, Wars etc. X. See the Chronicon Scotorum, p. 175. The diminutives gillgugan (leg. gillcucán? (and cennugacan) leg. cennucán?) from gilla 'puer' and cenn 'head' are curious; cf. Dubucán a man's name, Isucán 'little Jesus' (Isu), Flanducán a man's name; cridecán ('little heart'), Echucán ('little horse') a man's name. Chron. Scot. p. 186 and luducán ('little finger').—Ed.

RAIBCETH CETHRA ('lowing of cattle?') i.e. robeiced ('great lowing') beiced [din] i.e. boguth i.e. guth bo ('voice of kine').

RIND i.e. (d) crann ar is do rinn scine donither ('for it is for the point of a dagger (e) it is made').

O'D reads rind i.e. crann 'a spear-shaft' and cites O'Clery rinn i.e. cos, rinne i.e. cosa.—Ed.

RENDÁ ('stars') i.e. re nua ('a new time') i.e. gach re a tegait ar ni dogress atchitter acht anaill alo 7 anaill anoidchi ('every time (f) they come, for they are not seen continually, but some by day and some by night').

Aird-reanna is used to denote the planets.—O'D. ron-snaide don rind-nim 'may he convoy us to the starry heaven'! O'Davoren, p. 111 s.v. Rand (leg. rind).—Ed.

(a) Brian, Iuchar and Uar, or Cermait, Dermait and Aed.—Ed.

(b) 'Here comes'.—O'D. But cf. winei i.e. annsa 'difficult', O'Dav.—Ed.

(c) 'Head of a little goose' so called from his want of sense.—O'D.

(d) MS. a (no i).—Ed. (e) do rinn 'with the edge of a knife'.—O'D. (f) 'in turn'.—O'D.

ROTTA (i. uisci) 7 ROTAN i. on deirge asberthar ar is rot cech nderg ('from redness it is called, for rot is everything red').

Spa water P mineral water?—O'D. ruide, roda red-coloured mineral water that generally has a scum on it (Erris), O'D.'s Suppt.—Ed.

Rúss i. agaiddh ('a face').

Russ i. gruaiddh an chinn 'cheek of the head', O'Clery.—O'D. rús [leg. rus] i. aigidh no imdergad ('a face or reproach') O'Davoren, rusa ruirech righ treibe, ib. Rús i. gruaiddh 'a cheek', ut dicitur conach romna rus richt, 'so that a man's cheek is not red-denied'). Rús dono imdergad 7 gach nderg 'reddening and everything red', H. 3.18 p. 17.

Rosir quasi risir a rísu i. on gaire ('from the laughter').

Roisire i. roimenma ('great spirit', 'gaiety') O'Clery.—O'D. dodechaid Lochru co rosir 7 co engach co cosnam 7 cestaih fri Pátric, Trip. Life, (Egerton 93) 3 a 2.—Ed.

Ruccē i. nairi ('shame') i. ruadcheo ('red mist') vel quasi rutige ('redness').

Ruccē i. imdhéargadh, O'Clery.—O'D. asbertar ananman arndip rucce doib 'their names are mentioned that there may be shame to them' Z. 1054.—Ed.

RET ('a thing') a nomine res latine.

Now written raed, raod, rod.—O'D. rét a masc. u-stem: ainm réto 'name of a thing', Z. 254: n. pl. ind retai sin, Z. 361, 'these things'.—Ed.

RAIT ('road') i. on rota immbi a hinas ('from the rota in which is its state').

Obscure.—O'D. In his supplement to O'R, O'D cites 'raite i. cuairt ingelta', which seems a blunder: O'Davoren p. 113, has raiti i. rot ('a road') ut est frithie raiti ('it was found on a road') i.e. thy goat was found on a road or in a round of grazing (cuairt ingelta) or between a green and a mountain land (dirinn). From a green out this is a raite there'. In O'D's Suppt. we have raitig 'roads' and raitech 'a traveller'.—Ed.

ROGA ('choice') quasi togæ ut dicitur toga de rannaib 7 cumal senorba la sinnser ('a choice of divisions and a cumal of the old lands with the senior').

For la sinnser H. 3.18, p. 78 col. 1 has 'laisin saor no lasind fer': rogu 'electio' Z. 606, root GUS (Skr. jush), whence γείσ-της, gus-tus, krus-an, choose, etc.—Ed. rogha [Manx reih] and togha are still in common use.—O'D.

REMOR ('gross') i. romor ('very great') no remaire ar is aire a imarcraidd ('or rem-aire for on it (aire) is its excessiveness').

Still used [spelt reamhar] for 'thick', 'fat' or 'gross'.—O'D. Seems from a root RIBH, whence ἀλείφω, ἀλειφαρ, ἀλειφα and Lat. de-libuo. As to the infected m in Irish for vowel-infected b, cf. támh = tabes, nemh = γέφυς, promhadh = probatio, etc.—Ed.

RON ('phoca') i. animal on roshnam do(g)ni asberar de ('from the great creeping it makes it is so called').

rón (gl. foca) H. 2. 13. Manx raun, W. and Corn. moel-ron. Perhaps if rón has lost initial c, the A. S. hron 'whale' may be cognate.—Ed.

RONNA imorro quasi sron unna i. ton(n)a srona ('waves of a nose') quia est unda i. tond ('a wave').

O'D conjectures 'running of the nose'?—Ed.

RATH ('a circular earthen fort') i. baile ('a residence') i. on rates asberar ('from the ratis it is called').

Also ráith acc. pl. ráthi Lib. Armach, 6 b. 1: Gaulish acc. sg. ratin, Inscription of Poitiers. Rates seems a blunder for ratis 'fern': Dief. Origg. Eur. p. 403.—Ed.

RIASC ('a morass') i. ro-uisci ('great water') no re uisci ('a plain of water') no esc riam ('ever watery')[?].

O'Davoren explains riasc as a place wherein there is solestar 'sedge'. In Manx the cognate recast f. is 'a wilderness'.—Ed.

RINDSCINE ('top of a knife') i. ro ind ['a great top'] i. inn cech barr ('inn is every top').

ROT i. ro fada teit tar techtæ ('too far it goes beyond what is lawful') et inde dicitur echrot.

Obscure. In his text O'D translates rot by 'a cast or throw' (O'Clery has rod i. urchar); in his note he seems to think it 'a road'. If rot mean a throw, echrot (which O'D renders 'horse-kick') may mean a great throw, ech, like W. march, Eng. horse, being used (I suppose) as an intensitive.—Ed.

RASTAL ('a rake') i. ris talmuin benas ('it touches the ground') quasi trastall i. tris toll bis a coss ('its handle is through a hole').

Now rastall.—O'D. Borrowed from rastellus 'râteau', Manx raistyl, with the common progressive vocalic assimilation.—Ed.

Rosc 7 rúsc on roaisced bis forru asberthar ('from the great searching that is upon them they are called').

Obscure: ros generally means 'eye' and rusc 'book'. Rosg is said by O'D (Suppt. to O'R.) to mean 'a poem', 'a commentary', 'a meaning given.' O'Clery explains it by tuigsin.—Ed.

REBBAD quasi ribbad i. riab doberar tairis ('a stripe [?] that is brought across it').

Obscure: reubadh is 'to tear', riab 'a rent'.—Ed.

RONNAIRE ('a butler') i. ronnad doni don biud 7 aire ainm coitcend cech grada flatha ituraith ('a distribution (ronnad) he makes of the food, and aire (a) a general name for every rank of chieftain in a country).

(gl. partista) Ir. Glosses, No. 9. Corn. renniat (gl. divisor).—Ed. W. rhanwr 'sharer'.—O'D.

RAS MOEL ['a bald ras'] i. ron ('a seal').

Rasmhaol i. ron, O'Clery: cf. W. moel-ron.—Ed.

[RÉTU i.] reatus i. bidbanas ('criminality' (b)).

Bidbanas is for bidbanas 'criminality', and reatus is the Latin reatus 'state of impeachment', 'criminal charge', and intended here as a gloss on rétu, which seems accidentally (c) omitted: cf. Amra Col. Leb. na huidre, fo. 12b:—tria thuaith idlaig dorumeoin retu i. ic dul dó tria thuaith na n-ídal rofinnad a mbidbanas fri dia co tabrad forru cretim do dia 7 ondi as reatus ata rétu ('in his going through the people of the idols he knew their criminality towards God, and he gave them faith in God; and from reatus is rétu').—Ed.

RINCNE i. ainm sleige ('name of a spear').

v. supra p. 142: a diminutive from rind 'point'.—Ed.

(a) See O'D's Supplement to O'R. where the different kinds of airig are enumerated.—Ed. (b) 'Enmity' O'D.

(c) O'Clery, however, has reatas i. biodhhanas no easgcairdeas.—Ed.

Q U I N T A D E C I M A · L I T T E R A.

SANCT BRIGIT i.e. St. Brigit this.

O. W. san-bregit Lib. Land. 42,264. Sant Breit ib. 225, 251: Z. 162. Lan-Sanfreit ibid. 263, now Llan-Sanffraid.—Ed. Maire ocus sanct brigit, Broccán's hymn, I. 106.—O'D.

SÚIL ('eye') quasi sol, for through it is light to man. Soilse ('light') ab eo quod est súil.

SOLAS 'light' a sole [i. on gréin 'from the sun' B].
v. Aingel supra p. 12.—Ed.

SOBRAIGHIT [Sobraig B] a sobrio [a sobria i. on subachus B].

Sobra i. subhachas gan meisge 'cheerfulness without drunkenness'. Mac Firbis.—O'D. Sobraighit is the 3d. pl. pres. indic. act. of a denominative, meaning sobriant 'they make sober': cf. the adj. sobrich soberius 'Z. 1059.—Ed.

SUBAIG i. a sobrieteat.

now subhach 'merry', 'cheerful'.—O'D. Subaig is probably a scribe's blunder for subraig = sobrich cited supra.—Ed.

SENOD ('synod') a synodo.

senudh sruith 'a synod of seniors', Chron. Scot. p. 176. W. senedd, Corn. sened.—Ed.
SALOND [salonn B] i. e. sail onn i. salt stone, unde dicitur saile ('brine').

SANAS i.e. sain-fhiss 'rare knowledge'.

dia na sanaise (aidhchi na heiseirgħi ar aen lith 'the day of the Annunciation and the night of the Resurrection (are) on one feast'.—O'D. supp. to O'R. s.v. Sanais. Bnt is not sanas here literally 'a whisper', 'secret' (Corn. hanas)? see Tbreicec infra and cf. the phrase mac sanaise 'a secret child' O'D's suppt. In the title Sanas Chormaic, sanas may perhaps be cognate with W. hanawd 'derivation'. But as the title of this glossary is sometimes rendered by 'silentium', I would rather connect it with the Manx sannish 'whisper', Corn. hanas.—Ed.

SROLL i.e. light, unde apud Scoticos diu [din B] sroll i.e. dies solis.

Sroll (sróll) is probably from stroll* (Nhg. strahl) root STAR, whence Skr. strinomi, στρόννυμι, sterno, Goth. strauja. Din 'day' (whence tre-denus, Z. 1040) seems the Old Slav. dinu, Skr. dina, Lat. nun-dinae, peren-dinus.—Ed.

The use of the term Scotici here and in the articles Cocul and Mo-de-broth to designate the inhabitants of Ireland tends to shew that this Glossary was made before the middle of the eleventh century. So they are called 'Scoti' s. vv. Angel, Drúcta déa, Grasticum, Nescoit and Manannan mac lir, and Ireland is called 'Scotica' s.v. Mug eime. See Skene, Chronicles of the Picts and Scots, pref. p. lxxvii, and Pött, Etymologische Forschungen, 2te aufl. II. 847.—Ed.

SAN i.e. rii frigrit [rifriget B].

Explained by MacFirbis in margin of H. 2.15 "refrigeo" i.e. athfhuaruighim.—O'D. The true reading is probably sán i.e. refrigerat, and sán may be = the Latin sanat.—Ed.

SÉGAMLAE [segamla B] i.e. lactiferousness: séig then i.e. milk, inde dicitur in Bretha Nemed "a cow is (a) estimated by her ségamlae" i.e. her milkiness.

O'Davoren, p. 116, has segamail i.e. lacht 'milk', and quotes the above passage from the Breton laws.—Ed.

SMERÓIT [smerfoit B] i.e. smér 'fire' and fuait 'remnant' i.e. a remnant of fire.

Now smearóid 'a live coal': gríosach is a collection of small smearóids mixed with hot ashes.—O'D. smeróid (gl. carbo), Ir. Glosses No. 945, where W. marwydos 'embers' is cited: μαρπίλη, μαρπίλη may also, perhaps, be cognate.—Ed.

SIREM ('a disease') i.e. because it moves (siress) from place to place in capite et in toto corpore.

síreamh i.e. galar no tinneas [=Manx chingys] 'disease or sickness', O'Clery.—O'D.

SERR ('reaping-hook') i.e. a serra.

In H. 2. 16 serra is explained spel 'a sithe' [=Aeol. σπαλίτις], but MacFirbis explains it by carrán 'reaping-hook'.—O'D. So in Old Welsh serr glosses falx.—Ed.

SNUAD i.e. hair of the head.

So O'Clery, who adds an example: gidh iomdhá a snuadh i.e. gidh fada a fholt ('though long is his hair').—O'D.

SECC from siccus.

B reads secc 7 secka ondi is siccus.—Ed. Now síoc 'frost', gen. seaca.—O'D. Surely secc is an adj. = the Highland scac 'withered', 'dry', 'sapless', W. sych, Corn. sygh, Bret. sec'h, all borrowed from siccus. Síoc, O. Ir. and Mid. Ir. sic (see infra, p. 154), sicc (sicc mór 7 snechda, Chron. Sc. 247) is perhaps cognate with sting, Goth. stiggran.—Ed.

SECNAB [secnap B] i.e. secund-ab i.e. secundus abbas, vel secundus abbati; vel secnab i.e. sequens abbatem.

'prior' or 'vice-abbot'.—O'D. n. pl. secnd-apid (gl. gubernationes), dat. pl. secnd-apthib (gl. actoribus) Z. 74. Hence secnopote, Chron. Scot. 136, 'vice-abbacy'.—Ed.

SECHT ('seven') ab eo quod est septem.

S ('six') ab eo quod est sex.

See as to sé, Ir. Glosses No. 777.—Ed.

SNAD i.e. hair v. supra s.v. Snuad.

SPONGE [spong B] 'sponge' i.e. a spongia.

W. yspwng, Br. spouenk, spoué.—Ed. The Irish apply this word at present to the herb colt's foot. It occurs in The Tribes, etc. of Hy-Fiachrach p. 22: dochuirsiod sbongc re lasadh i mbeol in righ 'they put a lighted spong into the King's mouth'.—O'D, where it seems to mean 'tinder', Manx sponk.—Ed.

SABALTAIR [sobaltoir B] i.e. sepultur i.e. a sepultura, i.e. a graveyard (relicc) of a plague, i.e. a great field in which pagans used to bury.

There is a townland of this name, anglicized Subulter, in the parish of Kilbrin, of Duhallow, Co. Cork.—O'D.

SEIST i.e. nomen for mid-day, quasi sexta hora.

Ital. siesta, Fr. sieste.—O'D.

SPÍRUT ('spirit') ab eo quod est spiritus.

W. yspryd.—O'D. Corn. speris, Bret. speret.—Ed.

SPÍRACUL ab eo quod est spiraculum.

MacFirbis explains: poll as a dtig gaoth no anal no deattach no aer truailligthe ('a hole from which proceeds wind or breath or smoke or foul air').—O'D.

SCREPUL quasi scriptul ab eo quod est scriptulus.

Scrupulus i.e. cloch beag géar tecmhus eadar neach agus a hhorrog, no co(m)throm fchit gráine corna d'ionnmhus 7 fiche traig talmhan ('a small sharp stone which comes between one and his shoe, or the weight of 20 harleycorns of wealth' (silver) and 20 feet of earth') MacFirbis. In a tract called Fodla Feibe preserved in the Book of Ballymote, a screpall of silver is defined as weighing 20 grains of wheat: see Petrie's Round Towers, p. 215.—O'D. The Old-Irish form is in leth-scriptul Z. 286.—Ed.

SNÁTHAT ('needle') i.e. snáth-shét ('thread-road') road of thread i.e. eye of a needle.

im snáthait 'for a needle' Senchas Mór, p. 150. O. W. notuid now nodwydd 'needle', Br. nadoz: W. noden 'thread' = Br. neuden: Corn. noden (gl. filum), snáithe, snáth and snáith (Corn. snod) (gl. vitta) = W. ysnoden, Br. neud, neuden. All cognate with Umbr. snatu 'vittatus', asnatu 'non vittatus' (Zeyss, Kuhn's Zeitschr. xiv. 75).—Ed.

SAIM i.e. every yoke; whether it is between two persons, two horses, two oxen, or two cows.

saimh i.e. gach córaid no gach cúpla 'every brace or couple', O'Clery.—O'D. See Essem supra p. 64.—Ed.

SIMÍN ('a rush') i.e. fine (seimh (a) its top (inn)).

dat. pl. isna simnib supra, s.v. Itharna. This seems seimin (gl. festula), Ir. Glosses, No. 211 (Manx shuin), with which Diefenbach compares Ohg. semida 'juncus'.—Ed.

SCENG i.e. a bed, unde est imscing a small tent which surrounds a bed. Inde dicitur ferr imscing adbai 'better a bed-tent than a house' (b).

sceng i.e. leaba ('a bed') no both bheag ina mbí leaba ('a small booth wherein is a bed') O'Clery.—O'D. sgeng i.e. iomda occurs in that strange collection of Pictish (?) words entitled Duil Laithne, H. 2.15, p. 116: imscing i.e. tech bec atalla imdai, H. 3.18, p. 635, col. 3. I would equate sceng with Lat. sponda as scing with O.N. skinn, v. supra, p. 134, s. v. Puingene.—Ed.

(a) seim (gl. macer, gl. tenuis) Z. 23, 261.—Ed.

(b) 'a bed is the best residence'.—O'D. B. reads ferr imscing adbair il.—Ed.

SACART ('priest') i.e. sacerd ab eo quod est sacerdos, or sacart i.e. knowledge (suithe) with him (acca) is his ordo.

'fully learned in his order, i.e. his profession'.—O'D. But is not ord here the ord eclasda which Fiace read in one night? Note in sacart, 1° the progressive vocalic assimilation, 2° the provection of d to t, as also in Manx saggyrt.—Ed.

SORB i.e. a fault, quasi sord i.e. a sordido.

B reads: a sordento (sic) i.e. ont-salchar ('from the filth').—Ed. O'Clery explains: locht no salach ('a fault or filthy').—O'D. The Gr. $\rho\acute{\nu}\tau\omega\varsigma$, if for $\sigma\rho\acute{\nu}\tau\omega\varsigma$, is probably cognate.—Ed.

SLABHRADH ('a chain,') i.e. slabhar iad i.e. a narrow closing i.e. slabhar everything narrow, esslabhar everything wide.

Still the common word for a chain.—O'D. It points to an Indo-European root SLAB, whence perhaps the Homeric $\xi\lambda\lambda\alpha\beta\sigma\sigma$ from $\xi\sigma\lambda\alpha\beta\sigma\sigma$.—Ed.

SAMRAD ('summer') i.e. sam hebraice, sol latine, unde dicitur samson 'sol eorum': samrad, then, a course (rad) which the sun runs: then most does its brightness delight (a) and its height.

Sam = W. haf—O'D. Corn. haf, Bret. hanv.—Ed.

SALT ab eo quod est saltus i.e. a leap.

Z. 1075: isinbliadin-sin hi cuiretar salt.—Ed. The barony of Salt in Co. Kildare takes its name [from salt i.e.] a salut salmonis, Leix-lip, laxelöb.—O'D.

SEN ('old') ab eo quod est senex.

W. Corn. and Bret. hen, Zend hana, Skr. sana.—Ed.

SEINDSER [senser B] i.e. senex et fer.

Seinnser is still in common use for 'ancestor' and 'senior'.—O'D. It seems to be formed from sen 'old' with a double comparative suffix, like Lat. sin-is-ter applied to the left hand as the weaker, (Kuhn), or rather perhaps, euphemistically like $\alpha\rho\iota\sigma\tau\epsilon\varrho\varsigma$, $\epsilon\nu\acute{\omega}\nu\mu\omega\varsigma$.—Ed.

SALCHUAIT [Sailchoit B] i.e. sail-choit i.e. coit a wood in the Welsh. Sailchoit a great wood of willows.

Cognate and synonymous with Latin salicetum: the name of a townland, anglicised Sallowhead or Sulloghid in the barony of Clauwilliam, about four miles W. of Tipperary town and celebrated in Irish history.—O'D. The hardness of the t in Salchuit shows that it is a loanword, and that the coit or cuaít is either, as Cormac says, from O.W. coit now coed, or from the Latin coetus (arborum), whence I suspect the W. word is borrowed.—Ed.

SADB i.e. so-adba i.e. a good abode.

So O'Clery: W. haddef for haddf (Siegfried). Like Skr. sadman 'house' from the root sad.—Ed.

SINE ('a teat') i.e. quasi snige ('flowing').

sine seain (gl. ugula, Ir. Glosses No. 151: snige is rather 'trickling' 'dropping'.—Ed.

SERB i.e. daughter of Scath [Sceithirne B] a druid of the Counaughtmen: it is she that planted the trees (feadha) of Athlone, i.e. Brón ['Grief'] and Dub ['Dark'] and Dur-dibeoil ['Hard-Dumb' (a)], when she gave the three meetings at Athlone to Cormac Conloinges, son of Conchobhar.

(a) doutne A, doatne B: 'in which its light and height are greatest'.—O'D.

For some account of this lady see the story Toghaile Bruighne Dachogadh. The Feadha of Ath Inain was the name of O'Naughtan's country containing 30 quarters of land W. of the Shannon, in the barony of Athlone and Co. of Roscommon.—O'D.

SÍN i.e. everything circular, unde the sín of Mac Main i.e. a sín that was round his neck for declaring truth: when it was truth he used to say it was wide for his neck: when it was falsehood it was narrow.

Sion i. idh no slabradh.—O'Clery. See above s. v. Anairt—O'D. B adds: no eipistil bo imon bragoit fri foigell firinde 'an epistle that was round the neck for declaring truth'.—Ed.

SÉG i.e. a wild deer: inde dicitur séghuinech [seguinidh B(b)] i.e. a man who slays ségs i.e. wild deer.

segh i. agh allaith 'wild ox', O'Clery.—O'D.

SERRACH ('a foal') i.e. serr everything proud and everything timid, inde dicitur serrech lem i.e. I am afraid (c). Serrech also i.e. serech, behind his mother's heels (serid) he is usually grazing.

Now searrach, gen. siorraigh.—O'D. Manx sharragh.—Ed.

SCUIT ('the Scots') i.e. a Scota, daughter of Pharoah, king of Egypt.

Scuit is the nom. pl. of Scot (d): dat. pl. scotaib, Fiacc, l. 35. For the legend, see Senchas Mór, p. 20.—Ed.

SÁTH i.e. food, inde dicitur sáithech ('satiated').

Sáth i. biadh: as uadha sin a deirthear sáitheach, O'Clery.—O'D. bái séim sáth i. ba bec a sáith i. ba bee domeled no ba bec a hasad. Anra Cholumchille.—Ed.

SANBH i.e. son of Augaine [the Great], unde Magh Sainbh.

Magh Sainbh 'the Plain of Sanbh' was one of the old names of Machaire Chónacht or Magh Aoi, a plain between the towns of Roscommon and Elphin, Strokestown and Castlereagh in the Co. Roscommon.—O'D.

SENG i.e. everything slender (?) in the Book of the Great Wood.

seang [Manx shang] now 'slender'.—O'D. The word segdac, which O'D translates 'slender', is explained in B by cosmail fri seigh é ar a feige 7 ar a glicus 7 ara gabailchi, 'like a hawk is he, for his sharpness and his cunning and his graspingness (?)'.—Ed.

SÉN i.e. a net in which birds are caught: inde dicitur sénbretha ('birdnet laws') and sénairecht.

So O'Davoren, p. 117. O'D renders sénairecht by 'bird-catching'—a mere guess. Sén is = W. hwynen 'spring'.—Ed.

Additional Articles from B.

SEGON ['pismire'] quasi se[ng] gen. i. gen segdæ ab eo quod est seng each segdæ isin duil feda mair.

(a) O'D makes four trees, Dur and Dibeoil being two. (b) Seghguinidh O'Clery.—Ed.

(c) B. has serr cech nogdadh.—Ed. (d) not a nom. singular, as Mr. Skene (Four Ancient Books of Wales, i. 107) strangely supposes.—Ed.

v. Seng supra p. 152. Sengan is the common word for 'pismire'—In the S. of Ulster it is pronounced as if written seghghan, the ghgh remarkably guttural.—O'D.

SAU i. soer ('noble') ut est isna brethaib nemed ('in the Bretha Nemed'): Fairc-dither maire mathae macuib sau sochraite ('Let good horses be kept [?] by youths of noble trains').

cf. perhaps the Skr. sava 'offspring'.—Ed.

SAB i. so saebtha no asa a soud.

Obscure. O'Clery explains sab by sonairt no láidhir ['powerful or strong', cf. Fiacc, l. 23] and by bás ('death').—O'D. So O'Davoren, p. 114: Sabh i. tren 'mighty'. ut. est atait .iii. sabaidh tuaitha 'there are four mighty ones of the district'. At p. 115 he also explains sab by taisech 'chieftain' and calma 'brave'.—Ed.

SOP ('a wisp') i. a sopinis ar is fuigell tuige e ('for it is the remains of straw').

Manx sap 'wisp', W. sopen 'a truss': sopen o wair a 'a truss of hay'. Sopinis seems for stopinis dat. pl. of the low Latin stopinus 'a wick', Lat. stuppa, but the meaning points to a connection with the Germ. stoppel, Ital. stoppia.—Ed.

SRIAN ('a bridle') quasi frian a nomine frenum.

W. ffrwyn.—O'D. See Z. 94. 114. Manx streean, as stroin = Ir. srón, stroo = Ir. sruth (a).—Ed.

SRON ('nose') i. sruaim ena ('stream of water') i. imat uisque ('abundance of water').

srón (gl. nasus) Z. 28: a fem. ā-stem.—Ed. W. trwyn, Gr. ρίς ρινός.—O'D.

SRATHAR ('a packsaddle') ar sreith nanesnad bit ('on the range of the ribs it is').

Z. 929. From Med. Latin stratura.—Ed. W. ystrodur.—O'D.

SRAND ('snoring') i. sronand i. ann ('there') isin sroin bes (in the srón 'nose' it is').

srann and srónán are now used for 'snore' or 'snort'.—O'D.

SRUTH ('a stream') i. sruaim etha ('a river of food') i. imat eise int ('abundance of fish in it').

sruth sleacht i. lorg na srothann, O'Clery. sruth also: means imat 'abundance'. O'Dav.—Ed.

STAD ('stop!') i. a verbo sta i. tairisim ('to stay').

borrowed, perhaps, from status: it is used for 'a mark of punctuation'.—Ed.

STAB ('a stoup') a stando i. ara chomnairti ('for its firmness').

v. supra s.v. Ana, and cf. Low Latin staupus, A.S. steap m., O.N. staup 'poculum', from one of which words, it is borrowed.—Ed.

SDIALL i. is di iall ídi 'it is of a strap of a clasp' [?] i. di leinid ('of a leinid?) vel quasi stiad i. isdi iadtar immuinchille ('it is by it the sleeve—leg. in muinchille—is closed').

(a) strane 'a file or rank' = Ir. sreith, sraith: strauan 'cake' = Ir. srubhan, srubhdg: streeley 'to scatter' = Gael. sraoil 'sparge' are other instances of this epenthesis. The Maux strimp = Eng. shrimp (for scriimp?) is perhaps an instance of the change of sc to st.—Ed.

(b) 'a straddle.'—O'D.

stiall i. explained fuathróg 'a girdle' by O'Dugán in his Forus Focal.—O'D. The gloss is obscure. O'Clery has sdiall i. clár: go sdiallaib airgid i. go gelaraibh etc. In Scotland stiall is 'a strip' 'a lash'.—Ed.

SGIAN i. is gae aen í ('it is a spear one') i. a henur í ('alone is it') vel a verbo scindo (a) i. dluge nech ('I cut (b) one') scian [from secian*] gen. scine, dat. scín 'knife' = W. ysgien.—O'D. Derived from the same root as W. ysgaw, Mid. Br. squeiaff, viz. SAK, whence Lat. seco, securis, French scier, scion. See sice (leg. siche?) infra s.v. Tarathar p. 161.—Ed.

SCUIT i. genaide i. is cai faithessai forammhí ('it is a path of watchfulness whereon is') no cai faitbiuda do chach ('or a way of laughter to every one') (c).

Vide infra s. v. Scatan. E. Curry thought that genaide was 'a laughingstock', from gen ('a laugh' v. supra s. v. Gentráig, p. 90), and if so, we may equate scuit with W. ysgantyn 'buffoon': cf. also O'R's sgoitighe 'mountebank' (if the word be genuine), and the Highland sgoiticheachd 'quackery'.—Ed.

SCAILP a verbo scalpo i. lomraim ('I peel').

Obscure. In the story of Nede mac Adnai (Three Irish Glossaries, xxxix) Caier goes to "a flagstone behind the fort under a scailp there". There is a mountain-cleft called the Scalp near Dublin.—Ed.

SESS ETHA(I)R ('bench of a boat') quasi sos ind fir imramae ('support of the rower'—lit. man of rowing).

Seas is now used for a bench (scamnum).—O'D. Ses (gl. aptempna i.e. antemna) Ir. Glosses No. 70 and p. 155: gen. pl. sesa, Senchas Mór, p. 170. As to ethar v. supra p. 66.—Ed.

SRUB MUICCI ('a pig's snout') a verbo ruo i. sroinim.

O'D renders sroinim by 'I root with the nose', as if it were derived from srón, but it rather seems the modern sraoinim: srub may be connected with Lat. sorbeo and ῥοφέω, Ion. ῥυφέω.—Ed.

SIUR ('sister') a nomine soror latine.

Now 'cousin', 'kinswoman': deirb-shiur (compounded with dearb) is 'sister': cf. Corn. huir.—O'D. W. chwaer, Bret. c'hoar, Lat. soror from sosor, Skr. svasri—all from SVASAR, whence also other Irish forms, fiar, fiur. Sethar in sethar-oircnid Z. 767 'sister-slayer' and pethar 'sororis' appear to come from SVA-TAR. The Pictish (?) salur in the Duil Laithne, seems from sador, sator.—Ed.

SAL NA TRAIGED ('heel of the foot') a sola i. lar ('ground') no ontsalchar for-dobi in cois ('or from the mire on which the foot is').

salaib (gl. bassibus) Gildas: sál 'heel' like the W. sawdl, M. Bret. seuzl, is from STA-tlo.—Ed.

SAIR i. ('willow') i. sofllti í ar a maithi ('pliant is it for its softness').

The dimin. saileog is still in common use for 'sallow'.—O'D. Manx shell, shellagh. W. helyg 'willows', Corn. heligen (gl. salix), Bret. halek.—Ed.

(a) MS. scinde.
(b) 'to cut'.—O'D. but dluge here is for dlugiu, one of the vocally ending 1st persons sg. above referred to s.vv. Duite and Ithe.—Ed. (c) 'a laughingstock to all'.—O'D.

SINNACH ['a fox'] i. sennech i. nech is sine do chonuib é ar fot a ree ('one who is oldest of dogs from the length of his life').

apparently the same word as sindach (gl. putidus) supra s. v. Putte: asrir in sinnach n-allaid, Broccán's hymn, l. 61. Manx shynnagh.—Ed.

v. supra p. 149, s. v. Secc.—Ed.

SALTAIR i. a nomine (p)salterium.

There were at least three Irish compilations in metre called by this name: The Psalter of Cashel, the Psalter of Tara and the Saltair na rann.—O'D. Cormac's glossary is called the sanásán saltrach Cormaic in Laud 610, 86 a, col. 3, which exemplifies the gen. sg., M. Br. sauter, W. sallwyr.—Ed.

SCATAN ('herring') i. scuit inn ena i. genaid ind uisci ['the buffoon (scuit) of the water (en), the laughing-stock of the water'].

Now scadan.—O'D. Manx skeddan, W. ysgadan 'herrings', ysgadenyn 'a herring'. Herrings are also called in Welsh pen-waig 'empty heads', and the Irish etymology above given seems to rest on some such contemptuous opinion as is expressed by the Welsh name last cited.—Ed.

SETHOR i. noe. un. bibliotica i. librorum custodia.

O'D conjectures 'a library'. This and the following article come in the ms. at the end of the words beginning with T.—Ed.

SETHOR no men do dia ('for God') unde est isin tris tig anail morainn mac mún laind lais sethar sorar i. lais ar siur i. lais ar siur anarndainib la dia 7 berid mac ndo 7 rl. 7 bid aonta do fri dia 7 dosngegha ara genas 7 a naibe 7 a feile 7 rl. ata dono nomen coibnesto don anmaimsin isin duil fed a mair i. sithothar cech tren ('our sister shall go among our people with God, and shall bear a son to Him, etc., and he shall have a covenant with God, and he shall choose her (a) for her chastity and her holiness and her honour (b) etc. There is, moreover, a nomen related to this noun in the Duil Feda Máir i.e. sithothar every one mighty'.

See above s.v. Anart.—O'D. See also s.v. Niae p. 121. Sethor 'a name for God' reminds one of Cicero's caelestum sātor i.e. Jupiter.—Ed.

(a) do-sn-gega, reduplicated futurs of togu, with the infixd pronoun sn. So do-n-gegat 'they who choose'. Z. 1057.
dogegaind anad sund 'I would choose to rest here.' Trip. Life, 6 b. 2.—Ed.

(b) 'and he shall prevail by his chastity, meekness and love'.—O'D.

SEXTA DECIMA LITTERA.

TRÍATH i.e. a king, because through him (treime) are foods (a) of the land (ethæ iathæ.)

B reads: iarsinni treith nethas iathæ treime ethæ iathæ.—Ed.

TÍ i.e. a garment (brat) i.e. a fire (breo) against cold (fuit)

So O'Davoren, who cites do-m-igfa tí mo macain mui.—Ed.

TORT i.e. a cake i.e. nomen de sono factum est: inde tortíne i.e. a little cake.

W. torth.—O'D. Corn. torth, Bret. tors, all from Lat. torta.—Ed.

TOISC i.e. voluntas hominis i.e. what is pleasing to a person, unde is said toisc dam 'it is pleasing to me.'

toisc-limm 'voluntas apud me' = volo, Lib. Arm. 18. a. 2. Perhaps the W. dais.—Ed.
O'Clery has the derivative toiscidhe i. toil.—O'D.

TRÍATH also, three things it means: tríath 'king' i.e. he pacifies (sidaigther) the land (tír): tríath 'sea' it terrifies (uathathar) the land: tríath 'hog' it turns up (soodathar) the land. Now they are distinguished in their genitives (b): tríath, now, 'king', tréith is its genitive: tríath 'sea', tréthan its genitive: tríath 'boar', tréithe [treithirne.—O'D.] its genitive.

tréith 'regis' occurs supra s. v. Orc tréith. tréthan the gen. and tréthain the acc. sg. of triath 'mare' occur in the Féilire, June 3, Dec. 11. With this Siegfried compared Tptwv and Zend Thraetaona ('Feridun'): trethan (gl. gurges) Z. 737 (whence the adj. trethnach 'stormy') seem connected. I have not met triath 'boar' elsewhere, except in O'Clery's Glossary, where triath is also said to mean tulach 'a hill'. The several etymologies of triath are thus in B: Tríath i. ri tirsith a taithmech. Triath i. muir tiruath a taithmech Triath i. tore tirsod a taithmech. Here taithmech is a grammatical term meaning, apparently, 'analysis'.—Ed.

TINNE i.e. disease (iubar) of death i.e. it stiffens every entrail. Tinde, then, i.e. tenn-eo, a point (c) that stiffens the feeling [?] of the heart until the animal is dead therefrom.

B has: Tinne i. iubar bados i. tenneo i. eo tinnes teinm in cride combi marb de an annmandæ.—Ed. Iubhar i. galar H. 3.18. p. 654, col. 2. eo i. riinn and tinm i. tuigsin O'Clery.—O'D. The passage is obscure: tinne glosses chalybs in Z.726.—Ed.

TECH 'house' ab eo quod est tectum.

(a) 'the corn'.—O'D.

(b) 'oblique cases'.—O'D.

(c) 'dart'.—O'D.

Still the word in use in most parts of Connaught. In Munster the form is tigh, in Ulster toigh, in Meath tigh, stigh and stagh. Cf. Lat. tego and tectum with Gr. στέγω. It enters largely into the topographical names, as Taughboyne (Teach Baothin) in Donegal. Tedavnet (Toigh Damhnaide) in Monaghan, Timoling (Tigh Moling) in Kildare and Carlow: Stackallan (Toigh Chonáin) in Meath, Stillorgan (Tigh Lorcain) near Dublin, etc.—O'D. The form with s (cf. a-sdeg 'vom hanse' Z.565: a-steach 'into' (a) a-stigh 'within') is the oldest: cf. Skr. stagh. The ch for gh is not easily explained. The W. ty, pl. tai, points to an Old Celtic tagi.—Ed.

TOREICC i.e. secret telling (?) i.e. information which is given in silence: i.e. in a whisper (hi sanais).

TORC ('a hog') quasi porc i.e. a mutation.

Still in use to denote 'hog', 'wild boar'. Enters largely into topography, as Turk mountain, Drum turk, Clonturk etc. W. twrch.—O'D. Corn. torch, Br. tourch.—Ed.

TARBH ('a bull') quasi taurb i.e. a tauro.

W. tarw.—O'D. Manx tarroo, Corn. tarow, Bret. taro, all from the Old Celtic tarvos. The Latin taurus is for tarvus as the Greek ταῦρος is for tarpos.—Ed.

TETHRA, name of a king of the Fomorians: inde dicitur in the Dialogue (of the Two Sages) (b) iter triunu Tethrach 'among Tethra's mighty men'.

Tethra is glossed in the Forus Focal by badb 'scallercrow' τέτραξ, and O'Clery has also teathra i.e. muir 'sea'.—Ed.

TREB ('a tribe') i.e. trib ab eo quod est tribus.

treabb, gen. treibhe, still in common use to denote 'tribe', 'sept'.—O'D. There was an O. Ir. triab and there is a Gaelic treubh.—Ed.

TENLACH [sic B, tenlaeg A] i.e. tene ('fire') lige ('bed').

Seems the same as teallach 'hearth'.—O'D. In Z. 822 tenlach glosses tolletum.—Ed.

TEIRT i.e. tertia hora.

itir teirt 7 noin, Senchas Mór p. 104 'between the third hour (after sunrise) and the third hour before sunset'.—Ed.

TÉT ('a string') nomen de sono factum.

tét (gl. fidis) Z. 79 = W. tant, pl. tannau = Skr. tantu 'thread', tantri 'string of a musical instrument'—root TAN, whence τάρνυμαι, τείνω, ten-do etc.—Ed.

TEMAIR ('Tara') i.e. te-múr wall (c) of Té daughter of Lugaid, son of Ith. Or Greek was corrupted there: teomora [Θεώρεω?] i.e. conspicio. Temair, then, every place from which there is a remarkable [?] prospect both in plain and house (d), ut dicitur temair na tuaithe ('temair of the country') i.e. a hill, temair in tige ('temair of the house') i.e. an upper room.

Temair was common as the proper name of a woman, and is still the name of several conspicuous hills in Ireland.—O'D. v. Milgitan and Mug-éime supra pp. 107, 112. As to Té (better Téa) see Three Ir. Glossaries pp. xii, xiii.—Ed.

TEIM [Tem B] everything dark, unde dicitur temen 'dark or pale-grey'.

(a) See Tairsech infra.—Ed. (b) is in imagallaim in da thuar, B.—O'D.
(c) 'mound'.—O'D. (d) cech loce as mbi aurgnam deiesi iter mag 7 tech, B.—Ed. 'omnis locus conspicuus et eminentia sive in campo sive in domu, sive in quocumque loco sit, hoc vocabulo quod dicitur Temair nominari potest,' Dinnseanchas.—O'D.

From root TAM, whence Skr. tamas darkness, and timira = Ir. temel, Corn. tivul in tivul-g-ou 'tenebrae', M. Br. teffal, teffoal, W. tywyll. See Deme supra, p. 55.—Ed.
TENLAM i.e. a spark, i.e. fire (tene) of (the) hand (lámh).

O'Clery explains this by teine creasa.—O'D., which glosses igniferium.—Ed.
TAILM [Teilm B] ('a sling') i.e. tell-fhuaim i.e. the stroke [?] of the thongs (iall) and their sound.

I would rather read with B tobae iall 'division, or separation of thongs'. Tailm (M. Bret. talm), seems cognate with W. taflu for taflu, talmu. An early example occurs in Leb. na huidre, (Amra Cholumcille, note): maidid esi a deilm amail chloich a tailm 'her cry breaks from her like a stone from a sling'. gaibthi cloich isin tailm, a Lóig 'Put a stone into the sling, O Loeg'! Seirglige Conculainn.—Ed.

TROGEIN ('daybreak') i.e. gein 'offspring' and trog 'to bring forth' [?] i.e. the rising of the sun, and this is the brilliance before the sun in the morning.

B has: 7 as geinither a ruithni riasin gréin isin matain 'and from it is born the brilliance before the sun in the morning'. As to trog, it is glossed by clann infra s. v. Traigli.—Ed.

TORB quasi turb i.e. a troop or number.

The meaning is that torb, W. torf 'a crowd', is from Lat. turba, τύρβη.—Ed.

TI PRA ('a well') quasi topra [i.e. water bursts (tobruchta) from it], or teipersiu 'a springing'.

From B.—A is corrupt here: tipra gen. tiprat, dat. tiprait, is an ant-stem.—Ed. Still a living word: also written tibra, tiobraid and tobar: enters largely into the topographical names.—O'D. deissetar in chléirich icon tiprait 'the clerics sat by the well', Trip. Life of Patrick. Manx chibbyr.—Ed.

TO TH every feminine word and every female, quod est nomen membra muliebris.

So O'Clery.—O'D. root TU.—Ed.

TROETH [B; traaeth A] i.e. everything neutral and every neuter.

TUILM i.e. muliebre membrum.

TAURGEIN [tuirigin B] i.e. a king.

[TUIRIGIN i.e.] Tuili-gein i.e. a mouth (gin) that fills (tolín) with truth out of nature, so that it is made one with the truth of the scripture. [Aliter] Tuirigin i.e. tur-gina i.e. a tongue. Aliter Tuirigin ('a brehon') quasi gein a tuir, i.e. as there is a great tower supporting a house and many arms out of it, sic his house is the present world; this then is the tower, the truth of the law of nature. These are the many arms from the tower, the various meanings and various ways of judicature.

TUIRIGIN also i.e. a king, as is said in Duil Roscadach: Ni tulach fri tuirigin tuigethar tuile mara muirne (a) "Not a hill for a king who perceives great floods of spears" (b).

(a) The three last words are cited by O'Davoren s. v. Muirenn. The passage in A is corrupt.—Ed.

(b) 'It is no addition to a king to pass over the waves of the briny sea'.—O'D.

(Aliter) Tuirigin i.e. torracht-gein i.e. a birth that passes from every nature into another (a) i.e. a birth of the true nature (b). Ut dixit Fachtna son of Senchaid: Fuirem gein torrachta doreith aicned noll o adam conimteit tre gach naimsir nadamra cobetha brath, berid aicned enbethae di each duil derb deisin oen connoe i. cossin duine ndedenaig [ndedenach F] bias cobruindi brathae 'he gives a transitory birth which has traversed all nature from Adam (c) and goes through every wonderful time down to the world's doom. He gives a nature of one life (d) to the last person who shall be on the verge of judgment'.

Aliter Turigein, i.e. toerae-gein i.e. a child næræ (eræ?) i.e. a child that is born, i.e. his two feet before him [and his head at the end (e)]. That child then puts forth its columns, like a sentence i.e. the brehon repeats a judgment of true nature and a poet's comment: these (are) the two feet of the judgment (f): its head at the end i.e. the testimony of the canon.

A bad thing (is) any sentence that is passed which is not wrought up after industrious reading, which is not accompanied by the holy canon, which is not guaranteed by a noble apostle (g), which is not strengthened by the Holy Spirit;
and every thing is pure which harmonizes with the canon.

This is the last word in the Bodleian copy.—O'D.

TEIST [teisst B] ('a witness') a teste.

tesst, Z. 61: cáin-teist 'bonus testis' Z. 826: o testaib coraib, Senchas Mór 266. W. tyst, Bret. test.—Ed.

TURUD ('dry weather') i.e. tur-shuth i.e. tur everything dry and suth 'weather'.

F has taurad, A, tuarad, B turud. Suth 'weather' occurs supra, s. v. Flechad. tur is probably = du + ARu: cf. Lat. āreo, āridus.—Ed.

TORC a nomen for a heart, ut dixit Etan, daughter of Diancecht, Im foindam mo thuirc i.e. as to the palpitation which is on my heart.

B has I fondam mo thuirc i.e. fogluasacht mo cride. F has ni fó in dam dom mo thuirc i.e. mo chridi im chliab coíl for crith ('of my heart in my breast which is trembling'). O'Clery has not only torc i.e. croidhe 'heart', but torc i.e. eineach no aghaidh 'face'. So O'Dav. 121.—Ed.

TREFHOCAL [Trefhoclæ F. trefocul B] i.e. three words that are in it, i.e. two words of praise to counteract [?] the reproach which the third word causes i.e. the word of reproach and satire.

(a) Gein torracht [i.e.] torroich as gach aigniud inalaill B.—Ed.

(b) 'A mouth that resolves the difficulties of another's mind that is the person of natural truth'.—O'D.

(c) 'The month which resolves the difficulties of great nature has laid down from Adam'.—O'D.

(d) 'To every creature that is certain from one to another'.—O'D.

(e) '7 a chend fodeoid, F and B.—an agrippa.—Ed.

(f) 'He is the pronoucer of judgments of natural truth, and it is the obscure words of the poet that dictate the judgment here'.—O'D.

(g) 'Nothing is right which by judgmentis not awarded, which is not according to full learning arranged, which with pure canon is not.....which with the noble (apostle) is not practicable'.—O'D.

TAURTHAIT ('an inadvertent assault') i.e. taurachtither ('it is.....') i.e. verbi gratia (a), thou makest a throw from thee to hit [?] anything (b) whatsoever. An animal is suddenly roused (c) before it, and was wounded or struck or killed by it from this occurrence [?] then is said Taurthait or turachur.

TIGRADUS i.e. the last responsibility (d).

This should be tig-rathus (or, as in F, Tigrathos) see tigba and cf. rath rathachas 'security'.—Ed.

TIGEA i.e. everything last, this is tigradus i.e. he who parts from the treasure (frisin main) or from the person last.

cf. H. 3.18, p. 74, col. 1: Tigh i.e. each forceann nderid ('every conclusion of an end').—Ed.
TUGEN [tuigen B] quasi Togen i.e. a toga; toga enim est genus vestis pretiosi. Aliter tuigen i.e. tuige én 'covering (tuige) of birds' (én), for it is of skins of birds white and many-coloured that the poets' toga is made from their girdle downwards, and of mallards' necks and of their crests from the girdle upwards to their neck.

Seems cognate with the Gaulish name Tugnatius and the Ir. verb ind-tuigther (gl. in-*duit*ur) Z. 465. The latter part of the article I translate from B: oa cris sis 7 do braigdib cailech loichen 7 dia cuircib o cris suas co(a)mraigit.—Ed.

TOP [tap B] i.e. a start or sudden: inde est 'the precipitate (top) does not obtain his end: it is incumbent on a tutor to check the rash.'

TAMHLACHTA i.e. tam-slechta i.e. a plague that cut off the people in that plain) i.e. in a great mortality during which the people used to go into the great plains that they might be in one place yet before death, because of their burial in those plains by those whom the mortality did not carry off. For if each of them were dead, one after another in his own place, they would not bring them to churches, for the people who were alive after them would not be able to bury them; et inde Tamlachta nuncupatur.

As don duinibadh sin muintire Parrt(h)alóin adberar tamlechda fer nEreann, Chron. Scot. p. 8. Tám-lechta ('plague-graves', tám=tabes) is probably the right reading.—Ed.

TENDAL i.e. tene dál i.e. a flocking (dál) to fire (tene) i.e. to the place where the tendal is kindled.

O'D conjectures 'a concourse of people at a signal fire'.—O'Clery has Teanndal i.e. tene dhál i.e. dál no triall go teinidh, a 'bonfire', perhaps.—Ed.

tru is understood to mean a wretched or miserable person.—O'D. am trú-sa tra else 'I am a wretch indeed, says he'. Seirglige Concualainn: cf. perhaps A.S. threá afflictio, malum, calamitas.—Ed.

TURESC ('a saw') i. taresc i. tairis tescas each ni no diriuch tescas ('what cuts everything across it (b). Or what cuts straight').

TROID i. obann í no luath ('sudden is it, or quick') unde dicitur tiefha intraite i. coluath ('he will come in-troite i.e. quickly') vel quasi trú ait i. ait i la troich ('it is pleasant to a wretch').

Troid now signifies 'a fight'. The phrase i traide [the substantive occurs supra s. v. Truid] is used by the 4 Masters, A.D. 1590, for 'quickly', 'instantly'.—O'D.

TRAILL ['a thrall'] i. a nomine trulla i. lossat ('a kneading-trough') i. ar doíre a fognama ('for the slavishness of its service').

O'D says traill means 'a drudge, a trull [?], a harlot [?]', but tráill 'servus vel serva' is living in the Highlands. O'Clery also errs about tráill, glossing it by losad. O'Mulconry (H. 2.16, col. 97) has cacht i.e. cumal i.e. ban-traill 'a female thrall'.—Ed.

TACCAD i. ticaid i.e. ar ti cadhussa bis no ar ti chuad ata ('watching for honour or for fame [?] he is').

Obscure: the verb tacca, Z. 885, may perhaps be connected.—Ed.

TIR ('land') i.e. a terra.

Tír, the common word for land as contra-distinguished from sea, water.—O'D. Manx cheer, W. and Corn. tir, Osc. teerúm, Beitr. II, 158.—Ed.

TUNTI LIN a verbo tundo.

O'D conjectured that this was a smachtín or mallet for pounding flax, and he (P) writes in the margin 'tuinte lin is a living word for 'a lock of hair', and 'menaith 7 tuinn 'awl and end'. He afterwards thought it 'a lock of flax'.—Ed.

TRAIGLI ['shoe-latchet'] i. traig a lethet ('a foot is its breadth') no da raigled doberar fair ica beim fein dia thoebaib ('or two scourgings it receives in striking itself against its sides') no trog ialle i. a ialla fein ise a trog i. a clann ('its own thongs, this is its trog i.e. its children').

TAST ('silence' [?]) i. tae astas hé ('silence stops it [?]) tost is 'silence', perhaps cognate with W. g-osteg.—Ed.

tiag [better tiach (gl. pera, Ir. Glosses No. 41)] is borrowed from théca, θήκη.—O'D. W. twyg 'a garment'. B also contains this: Tiag quasi teg vel a nomine graeco custodia.—Ed.

TON ('anus') a tonitro i. on torainn bis inti ('from the thunder that is in it') vel a tono fograigim ('I make a noise').

tón=W. tin.—O'D. Corn. tyn. The etymology reminds one of John of Gaddesden's for peritoneum, viz. 'juxta tonantem' (Morley, English Writers, II. 66).—Ed.

TARRACH i. uamnach ('timid', 'fearful') quia fit tor i. ecla ('fear').

cf. with tor, τρέω, terreo, terror.—O'D. Tarrach from tarsáco* may well be connected with these words (τρέω σώω, terseo*, tensor*) which come from the root tras whence Skr. trasámi, trasyámi; but tor seems from the shorter root tar, whence Skr. tarala 'tremens'.—Ed.

TIMPAN i. tim i. sail ('willow') 7 ban i. umae bis inti ('brass which is in it') vel quasi simpau a symphonia i. on bindius ('from the harmony').

'A small stringed instrument' O'Don. supp. to O'R. Hence timpanach (gl. timpanista), Ir. Glosses No. 6 and p. 153, where the phrase tiompan téad-bhinn 'sweetstringed timpan' is cited from The Battle of Moy-Lena. How did tympanum ever get to mean a stringed instrument? In the Duill Laithne ninan is glossed by tiompan and piplennan by tiompanan.—Ed.

TAGRA ('discussion') quasi dagra i. da n-agra bis ann ('two arguments that

O. Ir. tacrae means 'arguments' (deg-tacrae, Turin No. 81) from do-ad-GAR-ae.—Ed.
TUSTALL i. ar tustoltair riasin leim ('for ... before the leap').

Tustare 'pulsare', Ducange, may possibly throw light on this obscure gloss.—Ed.

TERMONDD i. tirma a maine cin a fliuchad imuich ('dry its treasures without being wet outside').

tearmonn is said to mean 'sanctuary', 'protection' in O'D's supp. to O'R.—bid
derach do termain (leg. termonn?) 'illustrious is thy asylum' O'Davoren's gl. s. v.
Derach. Probably borrowed from Lat. termo.—Ed.

TAIRER ('belly') arinni taircther ind each biad ('because all food is collected [?] in it').

W. tor and v. supra p. 102, s. v. Lethach.—Ed.

TAR i. olc ('evil') unde rothar i. ro olc ('very bad').

TORRACH ('pregnant') quasi tairr recht i. ro-racht a bru immon ngein ('her womb reached around the child' (a)).

Manx torragh.—Ed. W. torog 'big-bellied'.—O'D.

TREFOT i. eriu 7 manann 7 albu ('Ireland and Mann and Scotland') unde dicitur trefot i. tri foide meinib libertæ as each tir dib condenta cœnaicde dib tre druidrecht 7 rl. ('three sods of ore which were brought from each country of them so that one fabric (b) was made of them through magic' etc.) inde dictum est ag togail brugne da dergæ ('at the demolition of Brui-ghin da Derga') Maidfe riala fuada. Cia asberar din fuata ('she then insularum. Tres enim erant reginae i. Ere 7 Fotla 7 Banba. Lege gabala erend ('the conquests of Ireland') si vis plenius scire.

The story about the three sods of ore is now unknown. Trevot (Trefoid) in the Co.
Meath is the locality at which the magical case (aicde) was placed. The story called the demolition of Bruighin Da Derga or Da Bearga, is preserved in two vellum mss. in the Library of Trin. Coll. Dublin, H. 2. 16 and H. 3. 18, and also in Lebar na h-Uidre in the Library of the Royal Irish Academy [and will, it is hoped, soon be published by Mr. Hennessy]. The event took place 25 years B. C. according to Tighernach. The fort was situated on the Dothair ('Dodder'), and a part of the name is still preserved in Bohermabreena, a well-known place on that river, near Dublin. Fodla was a Tuatha dé Danann queen.—O'D.

Here O'D inserts (I know not from what source) the article Tromdhe i. Dei tutelares
i. de urlair no de dídin 'floor-gods or gods of protection'.

(a) 'her womb is big with young'.—O'D. (b) 'article'.—O'D.

USSARB i.e. death : inde dicitur in the Amhra Conri Rí rodet doussairb in ulltaib i.e. Conrí came by his death from Ulstermen.

So O'Clery. See H. 3. 18 for the Amhra Conri.—O'D. In sarb I suspect the Skr. strih 'to hurt' (which Bühler has lately found in the Apastamba-sútras) from STARBH, sterben, starve. The prefix us would then be by assimilation from ud (cf. ὑστερός from ὑδρεπος, A.S. ut, Eng. out) which Siegfried saw in the Ir. oscrad.—Ed.

UDMAT[H] .i. ud(d)amnad 'fastening or enclosing' [?], a bar upon the cattle so that they are tied in the middle [?].

Guesswork: A seems corrupt here: B has: udmad .i. ud 7 damnad .i. crand ar lias, ('a bar on a cattleshed') .i. gobung gaibther forsin crand condamnaite anude i comulg. F, has: Udmad .i. ud 7 damnad .i. crann ar lias .i. gobenn gaibthir forsin cethrae condamnaite anúde i cuming 'a gobenn which is put on the cattle so that their úds (heads?) are tied in a pound' (?) : cf. cumann 'a cattle pound', Senchas Mór, p. 268: damnad has been put by Bopp with Skr. dáman 'rope': cf. also κρή-δεμνον.—See also O'Davoren s.v. udhma.—Ed.

UIDIM i.e. a name for the hole through which goes the bar that is on the hurdle when it is being closed.

B has: Udim .i. nomen dondroi triasa teit in crand bis forsin cleith ocon udmad no occa dunad.—Ed.

UR i.e. three things it means (a) : úr, first, i.e. earth, and úr every thing new, unde dicitur imb úr 'fresh butter', and úr everything evil, unde dicitur lan-daerthae [lín dosiathach F] cach n-úr 'fully condemnable is everything úr i.e. everything evil.

These three meanings are not yet obsolete: úr 'earth', now usually written air, is often applied to the mould of a churchyard (b). The second meaning is common in Connaught, where they call the new moon gealach úr and new town baile úr; but in the S. úr means 'fresh' as im úr 'fresh butter', feoil úr 'fresh meat'. The third meaning is generally used as a prefix in compounds, as urghrána.—O'D. In urghrána 'valde deformis', O'Molloy, 99, the ur is = the O. Ir. intensive prefix air, aur, er, and has nothing to do with úr 'evil', which stands, perhaps, for pú-r, root pú (Skr. puy) whence

(a) 'So called'.—O'D.

(b) In a note on the Amra Choluimchille (Leb. na huidre, 12a, 2) it is said of Columba's grave: no-fcad a drucht no a ur ar each ngalar 'its dew or its mould used to heal from every disease'. And in the Bodleian Tripartite Life: is hé cetsna marb dochuaid fo úir cuana maitic nois 'he is the first dead man that went under (the) mould of Clonmacnois'.—Ed.

πέρω, Lat. pus, pu-teo, Goth. fu-l-s, soul. With the second meaning 'fresh', úr = Manx oor, W. ir, and, perhaps, as Siegfried thought, वृपात्. To úr in this sense I would refer húrda (gl. viridarium), húrdae (gl. viridia), úrdatu (gl. viore) Z. 66, n-uragedar (gl. cui virere) Z. 1070. With the first sense 'earth' úr, Manx oor, is perhaps = Skr. urvi 'earth' lit. 'the Wide', εὐρεῖα. But the O.N. aur 'earth' in Alvismál, 11, should not be forgotten.—Ed.

UCH i.e. ab eo quod est aucha i.e. aurgat feda.

The aurgat feda is the herb now called airgead luachra or meadow-sweet [σπειραία]. In the N. feadh gen. feadha is used to denote strong rushes of which they make rush-lights.—O'D.

UBALL ('an apple') quasi aball : Aball autem from a town of Italy whereunto is the name Abellanius : thence they brought the seed of the apples. Or uball i.e. eo-ball, eo 'a tree' [yew], and ball 'a member'. Or uball i.e. Eva-eil i.e. because Eve was corrupted by it at the transgression.

See Ebel Beitr. II. 170, and add to the words there cited avallo (gl. poma) from Endlicher's Gaulish glossary, and the Manx ooyl.—Ed.

UIM i.e. brass.

The m hard, as appears from the reading of F. viz. uimm : the Skr. ambh 'sonare' is not belegt.—Ed.

UINCHI ETHA i.e. scarcity of corn.

uinchi may perhaps be cognate with the Skr. ūna 'wanting' : etha gen. sg. of ith 'frumentum', an u-stem = Zend pitu.—Ed.

UCHT N-OSNAE i.e. ucht osmenta, i.e. a thinking which he thinks i.e. the scrutiny (with which) the poet scrutinizes the composition (aircetal). The place, then, wherein is the scrutiny has the nomen ucht n-ossnae.

Additional Articles from B.

UASSAL ('noble') i.e. uassa fil ('he is over them').

UΛAIR ('hour') ab hora latine.

W. awr.—O'D. Corn. ur. The glossographer seems right here: but in the W. awr, not ur (u=6, Z. 117, 118), the aw=á makes one think that we have a trace here of the Indo-European YĀRĀ (Zend yāre, Gr. ωρα). On the other hand, why is not the initial y preserved in awr?—Ed.

UILLIND ('elbow', 'the letter U') i. uillin a fil and ('an angle that is there') i. da cnaim no da fid ('two bones or two strokes').

USQA ('lard'?) quasi susge i. geir ('tallow') suis i. na muici ('of the pig').

URGAL i. togbal ('raising up').
